SELBY.

We are having quite good sleighing at the present.

We are sorry to say there are quite a few on the sick list.

Mr. Graham is very low, having had a stroke recently.

Rev. T. F. Dowdell is confined to the house with a severe cold.

What might have proven a serious accident happened here last Saturday morning. Charles Gonu, while driving from Napanee, lost control of his horse, the latter breaking in the horse mouth. The beast ran for a considerable distance, but no serious damage was done.

Rev. R. Dike is attending a convention in Toronto this week.

Mr. Walter Dodge and family are moving in with Edward Dodge for the summer.

Mr. Vincent Storms lost a valuable cow last week.

Mr. J. R. Anderson has returned home after visiting friends in Northport.

Mr. Swain has returned from Smith's Falls, accompanied by his daughter, Mrs. Robert McCormack.

Mrs. John Dafoe has gone to live with her daughter Mrs C. Vanalstine.

CLOVER HILL.

Miss May Saul, our popular teacher, spent Saturday and Sunday at her home in Camden East.

Quite a number from here attended the at home that was held in the hall for Mr. Sidney Reid and family who are about to leave for the west.

Mrs. Johnston Cousins and little daughter spent a few days with her sister, Mr. M. Hughes.

Miss Nellie Black, Miss Bell Warner and Mr. Robbie Huffman, also Miss Lillian Davey, Edmund Thompson and Wellington Davey at Mr. Ard. Jackson's on Sunday.

Mr. Ed. Cousins spent a few days last week at Napanee.

Mr. Jackson and family arrived home from Fenelon Falls Saturday after spending three weeks with his sister, Mrs. Jack Edgar.

Mr. Geo. Hudson called at Mr. Ard. Jackson's on Sunday.

Mr. Seymore Burgess is spending a few days at Bancroft on business.

Mr. Byron Crook at Mr. Ard. Jackson's on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Milligan and daughter Hazel were guests at Mr. Jas. Hudson's on Monday.

Mrs. Everton Crunk and children are spending a few days at her father's, Mr. Ard. Jackson.

Mr. Ed. Bell and Henry Seyfield are making their farewell visit in this vicinity. They intend going to the west.

Mr. Geo. Collins spent one day last week in Enterprise.

Mr. Irvine Burgess and Wellington Davey are breaking colts these days.

Mr. Ross Milligan and his mother spent Thursday at Mr. J. Cousins.

Misses Jennie and Ida Jackson at Mrs. John Black's one day last week.

MODERN DISPENSING.

Modern, up-to-date dispensing calls for a thorough knowledge of the drug trade, drugs of the best quality, and the proper facilities for insuring accurate and quick work. Our arrangements are perfect for dispensing work and our prices right in every case.

A POPULAR MEDICINE.

Paine's Celery Compound is giving marvellous results to sick people. The wonderful cures wrought have made Paine's Celery Compound jobably popular. Thousands cured of rheumatism neuralgia, blood troubles and nervous complaints, now sing the praises of the great medicine. We always have a full stock of the genuine "Paine's." T. B. WALLACE, Druggist, Napanee, Ont. 10d

CAMDEN EAST.

The snow has come at last and if you were here, Mr. Editor, we would take a drive in our Quebec cutter.

Some of our village people have been thinking for some years past that our pathmaster should allow them one day's road work every year for keeping the snow shovelled off the board walks. I would suggest that all who will say they have shovelled snow this winter to the extent of a day's road work up to March 30th should be allowed for their time. For my part I'm not in it.

Sorry to hear Mr. Charles Histed is laid up with a bone back.

We are glad to be able to say Mrs. R. J. Leroy is somewhat better and we hope for her speedy recovery.

We sympathize with Mr. and Mrs. H. Darlington, Marlbank, in the loss of another daughter. Her remains were brought here on Sunday last and placed in the vault.

Lesley Skinner has moved to Mr. Patterson's house, and Fred. Walker to Mrs. Galbraith's house.

Mr. C. Clancy at W. M. Evans' this week.

Mrs. J. B. Allenbrack at Kingston on Tuesday.

We welcome back to our village Mrs. Hooper who has been spending the winter with friends in Napanee.

Miss Sarah Hamilton at her father's, A. Hamilton, on Tuesday.

Wm. Lemmon called home on Wednesday last.

Mrs. Walker, Deseronto, at Mrs. Histed's this week.

Improvements are to be made on the following places this summer: Mrs. Galbraith's house, Dell. Hutchin's house, cheese factory, Mr. Brien's house, C. E. Peters work shop and mill, Damon Peters' house.

On the sick list—Mrs. D. K. Saul, Mr. Patterson, John Watts, John Skinner. Mrs. Stedman and Harold McGuinness.

ANNIE MAY DAHLINGTON, beloved wife of Mr. Nelson Brodi, of Watertown, N.Y., passed peacefully away at the home of her parents, at Marlbank, on Friday morning, March 16th, at the early age of 22 years. The funeral sermon was preached in the Methodist church by Marlbank, by Rev. Mr. DeMille, on Sunday morning, after which the remains were taken to Camden East, and placed in the vault to await interment beside her mother who predeceased her. The hymns sung at the funeral were selected by her before she passed away. Besides a devoted husband, deceased leaves a father and mother, three brothers and two sisters, Mrs. John Mosier, of Marlbank; Mrs. Melville Babcock, of Rochester, N.Y., John Darlington, of Napanee, and Archie and Howard, at home, to mourn the loss of a loving wife and daughter.

STRATHCONA.

While Mr. P. Bowyer was assisting in putting some new machinery in the paper mill, the of the large rollers gave way falling to the floor with a crash. Mr. Bowyer, who was standing a little to one side, tried to jump out of the way, but not so he jumped the roller struck him on the hip and shoulder. The roller weighed over a ton. Another occurrence happened one day last week by which Mr. J. Milne might have been killed. He was engaged in helping tear down the kiln, when the floor on which he was standing gave way and he fell a distance of twenty-five feet. He had presence of mind to grab a rod which held the kiln together. If he had missed his hold he would have been killed instantly. We hope that it will be a lesson to the other workers to be more careful where they are while engaged at such dangerous work.

Mr. Wm. Wilson is all moved into his new house at Strathcona.

Mrs. McCoy is spending the week visiting Mrs. M. Lott.

Mr. Wm. Cooper is busy hauling up his summer supply of wood.

Mr. Roy Cassidy intends leaving first of May for the Northwest. He will be accompanied by his brother, Victor, of Selby. We wish them every success.

Mrs. Murphy is no better.

Mr. Joseph Lasher is visiting his brother Mr. Wm. Lasher, of this place.

The farmers are taking the good of the sleighing and the merry sleigh bells can be heard once more.

YARKER.

Rev. L. Farnsworth preached a very impressive sermon last Sunday evening to a large congregation.

Miss May Huffman and Mr. Herbert Garrison, of Tamworth, were quietly married at the parsonage on Wednesday evening.

Look out for the transcribing Easter Monday, April 9th, under the auspices of the Methodist church. Come and hear Rev. W. H. Lindsey, of Napanee, and others who will take part in programme. Admission, 25 cts. Further particulars later.

We are glad to report Mrs. W. H. Walker is improving after a severe illness of two months.

Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus Edgar entertained a number of their friends Friday evening.

Mrs. McCready, Cherry Valley, is visiting her cousin, Mrs. Joyner.

Miss Thomas, of Newburgh, spent Sunday with Miss Alice Irish.

Miss Beeman, teacher of Newburgh High school, spent Sunday with her uncle, J. V. Burn.

Miss Conine has returned to her home in Smith's Falls, after spending the winter with her sister, Mrs. William Carl.

Mrs. Frank Simpkins has returned from Kingston hospital with her little son Walter, who underwent a successful operation on his eye.

Cyrus Peters has secured a position again with I. C. Connoly.

Lenten services are being held every night this week in the English church, by Rev. Radcliff.

A number of hogs were shipped from here on Tuesday and Wednesday by Mr. Foster, of Moscow, and Mr. Garrison, of Petworth.

TAMWORTH.

Tamworth was on Thursday, Mar. 15th, visited by another disastrous fire which spred out the block on the south east of the town, consisting of three stores. W. A. Fuller's store and warehouse, old post office, occupied as a dwelling by Mr. Fuller and Harry Sampson, Mrs. Godley's dwelling, Jas. King's house and cabinet shop, the undertaking establishment occupied by Taylor & Co., and the old cabinet shop, known as Ben. Smith's furniture factory. W. A. Fuller carried insurance of $1,000 on store, $1,500 on stock and $1,000 on dwelling and contents; Mrs. Lott, $300 on dwelling; Mrs. Godley, $400 on building, nothing on contents; Jas. King, $200 on building, nothing on contents; Jay Taylor $400 on building, nothing on stock; the Ben. Smith factory, owned by Mrs. Herkimer, had no insurance. Owing to the fire taking place early in the evening and lots of help, and the south-west wind being favorable, most of the contents of the dwellings were saved. Mr. Fuller lost all of his tools and large portion of his stock. As there were lots of willing helpers Mr. Brandon's house and barn with the barn on the back street were all saved. Mr. Fuller's and Mr. Taylor's houses were both on the several times, but the bucket brigade did good work in saving them both. The total lost is estimated at $10,000. The fire started from a hot chimney on Mrs. Lott's house.

Fresh stock for spring at Floyd's; suits made to order, $10.00 up.

C. S. Wheeler, Kingston, spent Friday in town.

Mrs. Hayes, Minnesota, at the Queen's.

Miss Gemis Brandon spent the week-end at Miss Asselstine, Moscow, spent Saturday and Sunday visiting friends in town.

A. S. Blyth's saw mill is running full blast.

Barney Lacey, after but a short illness of a few days, died of pneumonia on Monday last.

Mr. Will Boyle and Mr. A. T. Harshaw, Napanee, were in town Wednesday.

Mr. John Gardiner, Kingston, was in town on Wednesday last.

Mrs. P. F. Carscallen died quite suddenly on Wednesday night, aged about sixty-eight years. Deceased was afflicted with a stroke last Saturday, from which she died as stated. Mrs. Carscallen was a worthy christian woman, and leaves besides her husband three sons and three daughters. Last fall Mr. Carscallen purchased a comfortable home in Tamworth, to which they removed to spend their declining years. Much sympathy is expressed for the bereaved husband and children. The funeral will take place on Friday at 2 p.m.

PUBLIC MEETING.

A public meeting will be held in the council chamber this Friday evening at 7.30 o'clock for the discussion of the establishment of a house of refuge in this locality. This is a matter that should have the attention of all our citizens and a large attendance is requested.

A FAVORITE REMEDY FOR BABIES

Its pleasant taste and prompt cures have made Chamberlain's Cough Remedy a favorite with the mothers of small children. It quickly cures their cough and prevents any danger of pneumonia or other serious results from a cold. It not only cures croup, but when given as soon as the croupy cough appears will prevent the attack. For sale at the Red Cross Drug Store. 9e

MOSCOW.

Real estate is booming. Wellington Craig sold his 100 acre farm to Wm. Ritchie, of Oldes, John S. Bradford sold his farm to Howard Ritchie, of Long Lake. Fred Johnson is about selling the farm where he lives to W. J. Allen and we are likely to lose in him a good citizen.

Messrs. H. A. Baker, Joseph and Manly Foster have their houses connected by a private telephone line.

Mr. John Shorey, recently from California, has engaged for the summer with W. A. Martin and will soon occupy a house in the village.

Sap refuses to run although some bushes have been tapped for some time.

Captain Amey is still in Toronto in military work.

A good many horses have changed hands recently. Prices are very high and the demand seems more than the supply.

Messrs. Morley, George and Willord Huffman have had water tanks put in their houses by the Waverly Foster Co.

John W. Bell is on the sick list.

Percy Foster, of the blacksmith, is likely to leave us. This will leave a good opening for a good blacksmith.

T. F. VanLaveu is in Toronto this week in connection with his roller-bearing axles.

Henry Huffman has taken a team of horses in Arden.

Mr. Harvey Card is in the Kingston hospital where he had an operation on his eye.

FAITH'S SAVING POWER

AS ILLUSTRATED IN THE FAMILIAR STORY OF RAHAB.

A SINNER SAVED BY GRACE

Rahab Reward, on Account of Her Faith in God, Included the Saving of Her Personal Life and Also Those of Her Father, Mother, Sister and Brothers—How to Apply Lesson In Spiritual Sense to Our Own Lives.

Entered according to Act of Parliament of Canada, in the year 1906, by Frederick Dwight, of Toronto, at the Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

Los Angeles, Cal., March 18.—In this sermon the saving power of faith and the influence we may exercise to bring others into the kingdom are illustrated in the familiar story of Rahab. The text is Joshua vi. 25: "And Joshua saved Rahab the harlot alive and her father's household and all that she had."

Marvelous are the stratagems by which walled towns supposed to be impregnable and fortresses believed to be unscalable have been captured. For ten long years the Greeks, under Agamemnon, laid siege to the citadel of Troy. At the end of the ten years they were no nearer their object than they were in the beginning. Then the Grecian leaders built a huge wooden horse and rolled it up to the gates of the impassable walls. Then during the night the Grecian army and navy withdrew and sailed away to Tenedos, pretending that their disgust they had raised the useless siege. When morning broke and the inhabitants looked forth and saw this wooden horse and noted that the besieging army had gone, they said: "Aha! The Greeks have fled. They have left one of their gods to terrify us." So they opened the gates of the city and in derision rolled inside of the walls this wooden horse to make sport of it. But the next night, while the great city slept, the side of that wooden horse mysteriously opened, and out of it leaped a swarm of Grecian soldiers. They ran to the city gates and flung them open. Meantime the Grecian army, which had set sail for Tenedos as a ruse, returned. The besieging soldiers marched in; the awakening defenders were slain before they could engage in line of battle, and Troy fell. The dishonor of Helen, who had been stolen by Paris from Menelaus, was avenged.

You remember how the Sabines captured the citadel of old Rome. Day after day, week after week and month after month the useless siege went on. Then what the Sabine army could not do by force of assault they accomplished by bribery. They went to Tarpeia, the daughter of Spurius Tarpeius, commander of the hitherto impregnable fortress, and said, "If you will open for us the gates by night and let us capture Capitoline Hill, we will give to you that which you wear on our left arms." Her cupidity was aroused. She supposed that they would give to her the golden bracelets, which the Sabine soldiers always wore on their left wrists. The gates were opened, the city fell, and Then the Sabine soldiers came and threw upon Tarpeia their heavy war shields, which they wore upon their left arms, and crushed the traitress dead. You remember how Babylon was captured by Cyrus through stratagem and how Gibraltar was captured in 1704, by the English general, Sir George Rooke, through stratagem. But of all the strange and weird attacks ever made upon any fortified town not one was so strange and weird as that employed in the overthrow of Jericho, the first city to fall before the advancing armies of the Israelites after they had crossed over the Jordan and entered the promised land.

This plan of campaign was not mapped out by Joshua, but by the Lord God Almighty himself. Once, twice, thrice, four, five, six times the Israelites encompassed the town. Thus did the besiegers for six days march around it. Then on the seventh day the Hebrews arose very early for they were to march around the city seven times. When the priests had marched around the seventh time they blew the trumpets and shouted, and the Jericho walls began to totter and to fall. Soon the whole city lay at the mercy of the invaders, and every man, woman and child was put to the sword. All were slain, with the exception of Rahab and her father's household and all that she had.

Now, you know the history of Rahab. As not to have been taken note as the symbol of the sinner saved by grace, I want to describe to you Rahab's reward and how this reward can apply in a spiritual and in a temporal sense to our own lives. Rahab, on account of her faith in God, had her material reward. Not only was she personally saved, but the lives of her father and mother and sisters and brothers were also saved. You may remember the story of the siege of Weinsberg. Emperor Konrad III. laid siege to this famous German castle. Week after week his army lay encamped before those impregnable walls until at last the garrison was starved into submission. Then the commander of Weinsberg made an agreement with Konrad that the fortress and all it contained should be surrendered, with the exception of the women and what each woman could carry away upon her back. Konrad agreed. On the day of the capitulation a wonderful sight was seen. When the city gates were thrown open each woman came forth carrying upon her back her greatest treasure. This treasure was not a bag of gold, but was the body of her father or husband or son or brother. Emperor Konrad was so touched at this devotion and love that he allowed these women with their burdens to go free. Centuries later in the year 1477 Count Charlotte of Wurtemberg built upon this same hill where once stood the town of Weinsberg a castle and "treat" for the women of the present day who have been distinguished for self sacrifice for their loved ones. But though the women of Weinsberg each saved a husband, a father, a brother or a son, I want to tell you about Rahab of Jericho did far more than that. Through her faith in God she was the means of saving the lives of her father and mother and brothers and sisters. She carried forth out of that destroyed city not one, but many lives. She saved the lives of her whole family.

"Nonsense," says some one to me; "nonsense. Rahab did not need any help of God that Rahab saved the family. They were saved on account of the bargain she made with the Israelitish spies." After she had hidden these two spies in her home and saved their necks from the pursuers she made them swear an oath to save her and her father's household. They had to do it, being bound by their agreement. Then during the night the Grecian army and navy withdrew and sailed away to Tenedos, pretending that

WISE AND OTHERWISE.

The Lady In Shoes — And you brought that lively parrot from the island, eh? What's it say? Dead? Dear us! Take it all off.

The Sailor Man, embarrassed—If I'm Kerrect, me mate, mum, but not for publicity use!

Not a Nauseating Pill—The ingredients of Parmelee's Vegetable Pills are so compounded as to produce their maximum good. They can be carried into any latitude without impairing their strength. Many pills in order to keep them from adhering, are coated in powders, which prove nauseating to the taste. Parmelee's Vegetable Pills are prepared that they are agreeable to the most delicate.

Guessing Match.—Shall I stop the engine?

Groom—Never mind that, sir. But if you gents wouldn't mind just gettin' out and lookin' behind to see if any one else comes, I think it's a menagerie coming.

How to Cleanse the System.—Parmelee's Vegetable Pills are the result of many years study of the effects of a variety of certain roots and herbs upon the various organs. Their use has demonstrated in many instances that they possess the power to act upon the liver, and the kidneys, purify the blood and carry off all morbid accumulations from the system. They act directly upon these and their action is mild and beneficial.

"I'm glad Billy had the sense to marry a settled old maid," said Grandpa Williams after the wedding.

"Why, grandma?" asked the son.

"Well, I guess it's because she's such a kinder overrulin' and upsettin' But Billy said he'd be thankful and willin', please?"

It Is The Farmer's Friend.—The farmer will find in Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil a potent remedy for wounds or sores of the body or for affections of the respiratory organs and for house-hold use generally. The farmer will find it a convenient friend in treating injured horses, cattle, etc., or relieving them when attacked by colds, coughs or any kindred ailments to which they are subject.

"Do the barbers in this town shut up on Sunday?"

"No, they only close their shops."

Help your children to grow strong and robust by counteracting anything that causes ill-health. One great cause of disease in children is worms. Remove them with Parmelee's Vermin Worm Exterminator. It never fails.

"The diamond in the ring you gave me is a awful small, Bob!"

"Well, I told the jeweller it was for the smallest hand in all England!"

Yes, be happy while you have corns. Then do not delay getting a bottle of Holloway's Corn Cure. It removes all kinds of corns without pain. Failure with it is unknown.

A vinegar-faced old woman, travelling on top of an I. C. C. car, remonstrated vainly with the big Irishman who was distributing his tobacco smoke among the outside passengers. He listened, without making retort, till the woman, losing her patience, exclaimed:

"You cold brute, if you were my husband I'd give you poison!"

Giving a compliment puff to his pug. Pat looked at her steadily and replied, "Begorra, if I was your husband I'd take it!"

"A Grand Medicine" is the encomium often passed on Dickie's Anti-Consumptive Syrup, and when the results from its use are considered, as borne out by many persons who have employed it in stopping coughs and eradicating colds, it is more than grand. Kept in the house it is always at hand and it does not count as a costly remedy. If you have not tried it, do so at once.

The engagement of Mr. Waldorf Astor to Mrs. Nannie Langhorn shaw was announced in Washington. Shaw is the name of the millionaire's valet.

There would appear to be very doubt ful truth in the widely published statement that appears in the "Agony" column of a London daily paper:

"Notice.—If I——, who is supposed his friends at home be will hear of something to his advantage. His wife is dead."

When the ladies were picking up the dishes after a Sunday School picnic given to children of the poor, one of several slices of cake were found in the bottom of the basket. One carry found.

"Well," he replied, taking it rather listlessly, "I guess I can still chaw, but I can't swallow."

"Yes, we used to sit out on the old porch in the beautiful moonlight so easy. Jack never believed he kissed me as often as I accused him of doing."

"Ah, how did you convince him, dear?"

"Why, the next night I told him is cut a notch in the porch each time he took a kiss."

"How did the scheme work?"

"Very well for a while, but—by the end of the week there wasn't any porch left."

TOWN COUNCIL.

Council Chambers,
Napanee, March 19 h, 1906

Council met in regular session on Monday evening, Mayor Lowry in the chair, and Councillors Ming, Emery, Simpson, Graham and Williams present.

Minutes of last session were read and confirmed.

Mr. W. T. Gibbard was heard before the Council in regard to a house of refuge. He was there to press upon the Corporation, if he could get the proper assistance, to go on and establish such a worthy institution. He thought that a representation should be appointed from each of the municipalities, Town Council and Board of Trade, to push the matter on. Other towns had them, why not Napanee, and to proceed at once.

COMMUNICATIONS

Mr. Jas. Kenny appeared before the Council in reference to taxes on the McCallum property. He said that he and Mr. McCallum had both paid the taxes, and he thought that he should be refunded his amount.

On motion the matter was left in the hands of the Finance committee with power to act.

Mr. Jas. Robbin appeared before the Council asking information as to why Mr. Kimmerly and the committee had paid $1.00 to Messrs. Wilson & Bros. for the firemen's rubber boots, when he had offered the same article for $3.75. Mr. Kimmerly said that the order would have been given to Wilson & Bro., even if both figures had been the same, because Wilson & Bro. paid $600.00 a year taxes on their property, where J. J. Hahn & Co. did own a dollar's worth. The Council thought that a poor excuse; the order should have been given where the lowest figures were given.

John A. Robertson, secretary of the Underwriters' Association, reported the report laid on table till next regular meeting.

From Canadian Rubber Co., Montreal, offering to supply the town with any amount of hose at $5.75 per foot.

The Treasurer's report was received and adopted.

From the Treasurer, saying he had a communication from one of the Napanee butchers, saying he would get no more licenses, as every grocerymun was retailing fresh meat.

Coun. Ming reported that he had endeavored to find out where it was being sold, and not in on single instance was it the case.

On motion the Treasurer was instructed to collect from those who refuse to pay their licenses.

The Council as a whole, expressed their views on the question of a house of refuge.

Moved by Coun. Kimmerly, seconded by Coun. Williams, that the Mayor and Councillors Ming and Graham be a committee to give the officials of the Board of Trade and Board of Trade and see what could be done.

On motion the committee's time was extended until next regular meeting.

Moved by Coun. Graham, seconded by Coun. Williams, that the auditor's report be published in the newspapers.

ACCOUNTS

John Lowry, expenses to Toronto, $16.75, paid; T. H. Waller, ballast, $1.00, paid; M. S. Maddle, work on bridge, $1.50; M. S. Maddle, plank, $6.50 paid; G. T. R. rent weight scales six months, $12.50; Wilson & Bros., rubber boots, $25.00; Wilson & Bros., rubber coats, $11.00; Graham, rubber coats, $11.00, paid; C. W. Mack, rubber stamp, $1.00, paid; S. Symington, expenses, $15.00 paid; Bell Telephone Co., $25.00, paid.

Council adjourned.

Women Angrily Aroused

All Over the Dominion.

Information from various Provinces of Canada points to the fact that many women have been deceived and induced to use the weak and adulterated packages now put up by unskilled and unscrupulous manufacturers to imitate the popular DIAMOND DYES.

Canadian women, thoroughly aroused, after loss of time, money and annoyance through the use of worthless, blotchy and weak dyes, are justly laid the blame for their losses on the retail merchants who sold them the imitations.

This action of indignant women has forced many of our retail and wholesale dealers to pack up and return to the manufacturers responsible for the worthless and dangerous dyes.

Moral—When ladies decide to do home dyeing work, it pays to use the well-known, reliable, popular DIAMOND DYES, which have been the home friends of the ladies for over 25 years. Before buying, see that each package bandled to you bears the name DIAMOND PACKAGE DYES. Users of DIAMOND DYES soon become experts in the fascinating work of home coloring, and find that a ten cent package will renew the life of any faded and clingy suit, dress, skirt, blouse, jacket, cape or garment, be it wool, cotton, coat, vest or trousers. Allow no dealer to offer you the something "just as good." No other AS GOOD." No other DIAMOND DYES

Send your name and address to Wells & Richardson Co., Limited, Montreal P.Q., and you will receive free of cost our Dye Book, Card of Dyed Cloth Samples and Booklet in verse, entitled "The Longlein's Trip to the Klondyke."

IS YOUR CATARRH ANY BETTER?

Probably not. Why not give up that snuff and stop dosing your stomach? The one sure treatment is "Catarrhozone," sure to cure because it goes where the disease really is. Certain to cure in your case because it has proved cures of thousands worse than you are. Catarrhozone is a thorough cure because it destroys the causes as well as the effects of the disease. Relief is prompt, cure is quick with this powerful remedy which is guaranteed to cure. Catarrh in any part of the head, nose, throat, bronchial tubes or lungs, is cured by Catarrhozone. Two months' treatment, sold everywhere, $1.00 size. Sample size 25 cents, at druggists or N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston.

THE CARE OF CHILDREN.

Nowadays wise mothers do not dose their children with harsh, griping castor oil or purgatives, nor do they give them poisonous opiates in the form of so-called soothing mediciues. Baby's Own Tablets take the place of these harsh and dangerous medicines, and the mother has the word of a Government analyst that the Tablets are absolutely safe. Baby's Own Tablets cure indigestion, constipation, colic, teething troubles, diarrhoea, simple fevers, and other little ills of childhood. An occasional dose will keep children well. Mrs. R. P. Long, Peschard, N. S., says:—"I have found Baby's Own Tablets unsurpassed for teething troubles, breaking up colds, reducing fevers, and other ills, and they make a child sleep naturally. I now always keep them in the house." Ask for the Tablets at your druggist or you can get them by mail from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont., at 25 cents a box.

ARDEN.

The absence of snow has greatly inconvenienced those who have been in the lumber business. Logs are being brought to the saw mill on wagons.

Mrs. Geddes, wife of Mr. Geddes, has arrived and will shortly become a permanent resident. The doctor is rapidly working up an extensive practice, the Medical profession of Arden having guaranteed him the entire territory if he would settle here.

Alfred Clark, of Beaver Creek, died very suddenly on Saturday of heart trouble. He was suffering from inflammatory rheumatism only one week, which went to his heart. The funeral was held on the following Monday at Beaver Creek, and was largely attended. His remains were interred in the Beaver Creek cemetery. The funeral service was conducted by Rev. A. C. Huffman, assisted by Rev. Mr. Hyde, of Arden.

Hope during the month of February, valuable additions and improvements were made to the cheese factory, a large number of the young men and young women have been converted.

Mr. Henry Huffman, of Moscow, purchased a team of horses from Mr. Wilson Clark recently, paying the handsome price of $300.00.

Mr. Harry Hall, of Sharbot Lake, is about to start a planing mill in the village, in the building formerly occupied by Mr. G. E. Thornton.

Mr. Daniel Scott and family have left for the Northwest, and will settle in Saskatoon.

Miller's Worm Powders, a remedy safe for children. For sale at The Medical Hall—Fred. L. Hogg.

ELIAS FORTER SMITH

Dies Suddenly To-day.

On Tuesday of last week Elias Porter Smith, one of the earliest pioneers of this district, passed away quietly at the ripe old age of 87 years. Eighty years ago on the first day of last March he came with his parents from New York State, and settled on the farm where he died by the British flag was at the time flying. Some fifteen years ago Napanee now stands his father built a log house in the wilderness, and during the rebellion took up arms. He helped to erect the first log meeting house and bore arms for his adopted country in the battle of Ogdensburg, 1812. He married Miss Margaret Hess, who survived him, and raised a family of nine children seven of whom, however, died in infancy. His daughter, Mrs. Emma Fretts, died about 32 years ago, the only survivor of his family now being William Smith, who is well known in Deseronto. In the spring of 1887 his wife died.

In religion Mr. Smith was a Methodist having been converted at the early age of 23, at a series of meetings held in a log school house then occupied by Mr. Dupre. He united with the Methodist Church and was appointed a local preacher, in which capacity he officiated for about 40 years ago.

His political leanings were strongly Reform, having always been a staunch supporter of the principles of that party.

He leaves the sorrowful circle, and at the working position will be missed by many. Residents in California and Montana as well as in Canada will learn of his death with regret.

After a long and extremely useful career his end came suddenly, he having died in a stroke of paralysis, two days only after it assailed him.

IN MEMORIAM

A few thoughts suggested by the death of Mrs. C. B. Perry, who fell asleep in Jesus, March 19th, 1906.

Our sweet, sweet rest forever with the Lord
Our loved one is. She waits to come with Christ,
When His the resurrection and the Life,
Shall change her moldering dust, each grain of which he watches o'er,
Not one is lost, but in these precious blood hath purchased all.

'Tis well to think of her at rest, who knew Christ, the Lord.
Her spirit now with him is blessed, according to God's Word ...
She, once a sufferer here on us,
In Jesus now she sleeps,
Free from all suffering, while resting thus As hopeless cannot weep
How bright the glory will dawn on morn On all the church will break
The Lord himself will then return His sleeping saints to take
Then with the blessed, then shall see Whose blood for us was shed
With Him for ever shall be Made like our blessed Lord.

We must not linger o'er the tomb To faith shines bright beyond its gloom
Christ's glory to display. J. S.

Don't Dose the Stomach.

Hyomei Cures Catarrh by Breathing Aromatic Healing Air.

You cannot afford to risk permanent loss of health by taking nasty drugs into the stomach in the vain hope of curing catarrh of the nose and throat. The only true way of curing catarrh is by breathing the vapor of Hyomei, which is breathed through a neat pocket inhaler that comes with every outfit.

Hyomei is a safe, secret remedy, and its formula is given to all reputable druggists. It is the famous eucalyptus oil. This is combined with mild healing balsams and balsams, so that when used in the inhaler, the air you breathe is full of germ-killing, health-giving curative powers. It kills all catarrhal germs and restores the diseased membrane of the nose, throat and lungs to healthy vitality and condition

The complete Hyomei outfit, consisting of a neat pocket inhaler, a bottle of Hyomei, dropper and complete, costs but $1.00, and extra bottles, if ever needed, only 50 cents, making it the most economical method of treating catarrh, as the cure is the most reliable.

If you cannot obtain Hyomei of your dealer, it will be forwarded by mail, prepaid, on receipt of regular price. Write to-day for consultation free of charge. Address The Hyomei Company, Hyomei Building, Ithaca, N.Y.

SLATE FALLS.

Jobbers have completed their work for this season on account of no snow.

Mrs. A. G. Smith entertained a number of her lady friends at a "thimble party a few days ago.

Corporation of the Town of Napanee

TO THE MAYOR AND COUNCIL OF THE TOWN OF NAPANEE:

Gentlemen,—We, your Auditors, having completed our examination of the books of the Town Treasurer and the Treasurer of the Napanee School Board, beg leave to report as follows:

We found proper vouchers for receipts, and proper authority and vouchers for all items of expenditure, and cash on hand as represented to you in a detailed statement of receipts and expenditure with which we present you in duplicate.

We also present you with a detailed statement of the debenture debt, and the assets and liabilities of the Corporation to the 31st day of December, 1905.

We also present you with an abstract statement of Collegiate and Public School accounts for the year 1905.

The Treasurer's surety remains the same as in former years, which we consider is ample security.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

IF YOU BUY HERE YOU'RE SAFE!

It's a great idea — when a merchant asks ten dollars for a suit — the buyer offers six and the merchant "takes him up."

The question is, what does "he" get? If the "he" means the merchant, he gets the man's six dollars and his suspicion for evermore. If the "he" is the man

If that merchant could afford to sell the garment for less than he asked, why did he not name the lowest price at once? Is the merchant reliable? Can you afford to risk his judgment? He certainly takes quite a load on his shoulder when he attempts to carry trade that way.

DIED IN CHICAGO.

Utica Observer, March 19th.

Editor A. M. Dickinson of the Utica Saturday Globe received by wire yesterday the unexpected and painful intelligence of the death in Chicago of his sister, Mrs. Henry MacDonough. That the sad event was unexpected by relatives in Chicago as well as in Utica is shown by the fact that Mr. Dickinson this forenoon received a letter from his sister written last Friday afternoon in which she spoke of a contemplated visit in Utica in May next and of spending her birthday with relatives here. Nothing was said in the despatch as to the cause of death, but as she had not been in the best of health for years it is presumed she passed away as a result of attack of heart trouble.

Mrs. MacDonough's maiden name was Minnie Dickinson. She was born in Newburgh, N. Y., May 4th, 1863, and married Henry MacDonough of the same place, on March 17th, 1884. They removed from Newburgh to Dakota and three years later went to Chicago, where Mr. MacDonough engaged in the printing business. Mrs. MacDonough visited in Utica about sixteen years ago, and another year in this city seven years ago. During her visits here she made many friends who will be surprised and grieved to learn of her death. She was a prominent worker in the Methodist church and made a deep study of the Bible from all available sources.

Mrs. MacDonough had no children. There survive, besides her husband, three brothers and one sister—A. M. and A. F. Dickinson, of Utica, and A. W. Dickinson, of Denver, Colo., and Mrs. W. G. Edwards, of this city.

DEATH'S HARVEST.

JAMES PERRY.

During the past year or two the older residents of our town have been taken from our midst with a rapidity that is truly astonishing. Last Sunday morning Mr. James Perry was called to his reward, after but a week's illness, aged 76 years. Deceased was a son of the late John W. Perry, a pioneer business man and woollen manufacturer of Napanee, and leaves one son, Mr. George D. Perry, and a sister, Mrs. A. E. Thayer, Syracuse, N.Y. For years Mr. Perry carried on the woollen factory for some time also retired from active business life. He was an estimable and respected citizen, a member of the Eastern Methodist church, and for years a trusted member of its Quarterly Official Board. Mr. Perry took a deep interest in the welfare of our town, and was for years a member of the School Board, and for a time its chairman, and also a member of the Town Council for four years. Kind and genial in disposition, he was highly esteemed by all.

The funeral took place on Tuesday afternoon and the remains were placed in the vault of the Eastern cemetery.

MRS. JOHN GUNN.

Many friends will learn with sorrow of the death of Mrs. John Gunn, which occurred at the home of deceased was born in Caithness, Scotland, and came to Kingston, Canada, in the early eighties. A few years after, the wife and husband moved to the home on the Dunnott, near where their family are still living. She left a family of eleven children, seven of whom survive her, viz., Donald, of Selby; Alex. Hough, of Napanee; John, at home; Della, also at home; Barbara, of Queensbury, N.Y.; Jean, Mrs. Nelson, of Lyn, and Maggie, Mrs. Cunningham, of Winnipeg, all of whom were with her at the time of her death, except Mrs. Gilbert, who could not reach home in time. Mrs. John Gunn was a very large circle of friends, as her cheerful disposition and many amiable qualities endeared her to all with whom she came in contact. In her death she has also had no an enemy in the world. Her passing away has left a great spot in the hearts of many, while with the family circle it is deepest of all. Deceased had not enjoyed the best of health for some time, but was perfectly resigning and only waiting for the call home to join the loved ones gone before. The funeral took place on Monday, after a service at the residence, Rev. Mr. Hodgson officiating. The pall bearers were Messrs. Wm. Hough, John, at home; Della, also at home; Barbara, of Queensbury, N.Y.; Jean, Mrs. Nelson, of Lyn, and Maggie, Mrs. Cunningham, of Winnipeg, all of whom were with her at the time of her death, except Mrs. Gilbert, who could not reach home in time. The Best Flour,
Dafoe's Nonesuch,
Dafoe's Manitoba Patent

By numerous tests by the best bakers the above mentioned grades have been proven to be the best flours in the market.

When buying flour, ask for Dafoe's, and patronize your home mill, thereby producing Bran and Shorts that, you can purchase cheaper than the product of the Western mills, which has to be transported thousands of miles, at great expense and usually, when it reaches you, of inferior quality.

The grocer complains if the farmer or the mechanic sends to Toronto or to outside points for an article he can get at the home store just as good; but he does not hesitate to buy flour from mills hundreds of miles away, and sell you an inferior flour for more money than you can purchase the home product for, every bag of which is guaranteed.

Choice corn meal and buckwheat flour always on hand. Feed grinding a specialty, with the best feed mills known to the trade.

A full stock of the best Anthracite coal; also in the market for the purchase of all kinds of grain.

MILLINERY OPENINGS.

THE ROBINSON CO.

At 7.30 p.m., this evening, this entire store was at the top notch of elegant display. High class goods in the hands of artistic decorators produced a charming effect. Each department was decorated with attractive fabrics and novelties temptingly arranged. The exhibit as a whole was pronounced the best ever seen in Napanee. The Robinson Co.'s store sets the vogue in Napanee. In women's suits, in wraps, in waists, prominently in millinery, in dress goods, in women's neckwear, in carpets and house furnishings, in all these things The Robinson Co. has won a leadership expressed emphatically in the volume of sales. Keen observers of style tell us that a more up-to-date class of dress goods and suits, such as were on display, is not to be found in Canada. They give you an instance. Last week's advices from Paris, mentioned hydrangea, nasturtium, violet and crushed raspberry as the exclusive shades for dress goods. The first drapes to meet our eye on entering the store Saturday evening, were forms covered with four shades woven in each of the two shades mentioned. Can others were very obtainable about the dress goods and silks displayed.

The next section was given over to display of washable dress goods. There are many novelties in the way of weave this season, such as shadow embroidered batistes, shadow voiles, eyelet embroidered batistes, eyelet bordered swiss batistes. All indications point to the whitest kind of a white season. The firm made a great display of their white goods. For the dressy dress the Swiss muslin with the smallest kind of a spot is considered correct. White lawns, white mousseline de soie and white organdies were to the front. Next in line was the Irish linen display. The Robinson Co have curtain stretchers in Napanee for the O.I. Beach Linen, Bob's Medal Linen, Lidd's Celebrated Linens, and Richardson's, of Belfast. Table cloths, napkins, doilies and tray cloths were on display. Bed furnishings were also a feature of many.

We followed in a crowd to the first floor where the house furnishings were on display. Sheets, pillow cases, embroidered Mr. Shorey and his staff had arranged their carpet room arranged beautifully. Rich rugs on the floor, valuable pyramids here and there and artistic old curtains tastefully arranged to complete the room. Court lace and all over lace curtains were on display. The latest in ready-to-wear hats was next visited. This department is known around full of interest. THE LUST OF HATE

"Agnes," I began, "this must be the end of such talk between us. God knows, if I were able to honor it to do so, I would take your love, and hold you against the world. But, as things are, to do that would be to proclaim myself the most despicable villain in existence. You must not ask me why, I could not tell you. But some day, if by chance you should hear the world's verdict, try to remember that, whatever I may have been, I did my best to behave like a man of honor to you."

She did not answer, but dropped her head on her hands and sobbed as if her heart would break. Then, regaining her composure a little, she stood up again and faced me. Holding out her hand, she said:

"You have told me that you love me. I have said that I love you. Now I say that we must part. Let it be so. You know best. May God have mercy on us both!"

I tried to say "Amen," but my voice refused to serve me, and as I turned and looked across the sea I felt the hot salt tears rolling down my cheeks. By the time I recovered my self-possession she had left me and had gone below.

CHAPTER X.

Seven o'clock next morning found us entering Table Bay, our eventful journey accomplished. Overhead towered the famous mountain from which the Bay derives its name, its top shrouded in its cloth. At its foot crossed the town with which my destinies seemed so vitally connected, and which I was approaching with so much trepidation. As I stood on the promenade deck and watched the land open out before me, my position would have formed a good problem for a student of character. With a perception rendered abnormally acute by my fear, I could discern the boat of the port authorities putting off to us from before Capetown, and every minute have been able to see it. It had yet to be discovered whether or not it contained a police official in search of me. As I watched her dipping her nose into the seas, and then tossing the spray off from either bow, in her haste to get to us, she seemed to me to be like a bloodhound on my track. Then I deem she came to a stop, and by my near bream to beat, until it was as much as I could do to breathe. My only I could be certain that she was conveying an officer to arrest me. I felt I might stand enough to drop overboard and so end the pain of for good and all. But I did not move, and the doubt upon the point evolved me to remain where I was and brave the upshot.

As I watched her, I heard a footstep upon the deck behind me. I turned my head to find that it was Miss Maybourne. She came up beside me, and having glanced ashore at the city nestling at the foot of the great mountain, and then at the boat, she turned to me to meet us, turned to address me.

"Mr. Wrexford" she began, "I am going to ask you to do me a favor, and I want you to promise me to do it before I tell you what it is."

"I'm afraid I can hardly do that," I answered. "But if you will tell me what it is, I will promise to do it for you if it is in any way possible."

"It is this," she said. "I want you, in the event of my father not meeting me, to take me home. Oh don't say Mr. Wrexford, I want you to promise to do it. Surely you will not deny me the last request I make to you."

She looked so pleadingly into my face that, as usual, it required all my courage not to give way to her. But the risk was too great for me even to contemplate such a thing for a moment. My rescue of the daughter of Cornelius Maybourne, and my presence in Cape Town, would soon leak out, and then it would be only a matter of hours before I should be arrested. Whatever my own inclinations may have been, it for there was nothing for it but for me to refuse.

"I am not my own master in this matter," I replied, with a bitterness which must have hurt her more than much in earnest I was. "It is impossible that I can remain so long in the place. There are other vital reasons in the world against it. I can only ask you to believe that."

I saw large tears rise in her eyes, though she turned hurriedly away in the hope that I should not see them. To see her weep, however, was more than I could bear, and under the influence of her trouble my resolution began to give way. After all, if I was destined to be arrested, I might just as well be taken on Maybourne's house as elsewhere—perhaps better. Besides, it was more than likely, in the event of no warrant having been issued, Mr. Maybourne, whose influence, I had been told, was enormous in the colony, might prove a very useful friend of all others I wanted. At any rate, if I were not taken before the time came for going ashore, I would do as she wished. I told her this, and she immediately thanked me and went below again.

Just as I announced my decision the launch came alongside, and a moment later her passengers were ascending the accommodation ladder, which had been lowered to receive them. They were three in number, and included—so I was told by a gentleman who stood beside me—the harbor master, the officer of health, and another individual, about whose identity my informant was not quite assured. I looked at the last-named with no little apprehension; my nervousness endowed him with all the attributes of a police official, and my mind's eye could almost discover the manacles reposing in his coat pocket. I trust I may never pass through such another agonizing few minutes as I experienced then. I saw the party stop on to the spar deck, where they shook hands with the purser and chief officer, and watched them as they ascended to the promenade deck and made their way forward to the bridge. Here they were received by the skipper. I leaned against the rails, sick with fear and trembling in every limb, expecting every moment to feel a heavy hand upon my shoulder, and to hear a stern voice saying in my ear—"Gilbert Pennefather, I arrest you on a charge of murder."

But every minute after minute went by, and still not one came to speak the fatal words. The ship, which had been brought to a standstill to pick up the boat, had now got under weigh again, and we were approaching closer and closer to the docks. In less than half an hour I should know my fate.

As soon as we were safely installed in dock, and everyone was looking after his own baggage, saying "good-bye" and preparing to go ashore, I began to look about me for Miss Maybourne. Having found her we went to the chart-room together to bid the Captain "good-bye" and to thank him for the hospitality and kindness he had shown us. The doctor had next to be discovered, and when he had been assured of our gratitude, we made enquiries for Mr. Maybourne. It soon became evident that he was not on board, so, taking his daughter under my protection, we said our final farewells and went down the gang-way. For the first time in my life I set foot on South African soil.

The Custom House once passed, and the authorities convinced that we had nothing to declare, I hailed a cab and invited Miss Maybourne to instruct the driver in which direction he was to proceed. Half an hour later we had left the city behind us, and were driving through the suburbs in the direction of Mr. Mayborne's residence. After driving for a short road for something like a mile, on either side of which I noticed a number of stately residences, we found ourselves confronted with a pair of large iron gates, behind which was a neat lodge. But for the difference in the vegetation, it might very well have been the entrance to an English park. Through the trees ahead I could distinguish, as we rolled along the well-kept drive, the chimneys of a noble residence, but I was quite unprepared for the picture which burst upon my view when we turned a corner and had the whole house before us. Unlike most South African dwellings, it was a building of two stories, surmounted by a tower. Broad verandahs ran round each floor, and the importance of the building was enhanced by the fact that it stood on a fine terrace, which again led down by a broad flight of steps to the flower gardens and orangery. A more delightful home could scarcely be imagined, and when I saw it, I ceased to wonder that Miss Maybourne had so often experienced a preference for South Africa as compared with England.

When the cab drew up at the front door I jumped out, as I was about to help my companion to alight when I heard the front door open, and next moment a small, wizened man, about sixty years of age, crossed the verandah and came down the steps. At first he regarded me with a rare of surprise, but before he could ask me my business, Miss Maybourne had descended from the vehicle and was in his arms. Not desiring to interrupt them in their greetings I strolled down the path. But as I was not permitted to go far before I heard my name called. I turned, and found that my host had already shaken off by Mr. Maybourne.

"My daughter says you have saved her life," he cried. "I'll not ask questions now, but I thank you, sir—from the bottom of my heart I thank you. God knows you have done me a service the value of which no man can estimate."

The warmth of his manner was so much above what I had expected that it left me without reply.

"Come in, come in," he continued in a voice that fairly shook with emotion. "Oh, let us thank God for this happy day!"

He placed his arm round his daughter's waist, and drew her to him as if he would not let her move from his side again. I followed a few steps behind, and should have entered the house had I not been recalled by the cabman, who ventured to remind me that he had not yet been paid.

I instantly put my hand into my pocket, only to find, to my dismay, that I possessed no money at all. All my capital had gone to the bottom in the Fiji Princess, and I was absolutely penniless. The position was an embarrassing one, and I was just reflecting what was the best to do, when I heard Mr. Maybourne come out into the verandah again. He must have divined my difficulty for with no hesitation he discharged the debt, and apologizing for not having thought of it, led me into the house.

Passing through an elegantly-furnished hall we entered the dining-room. Here breakfast was laid, and it was evidently from that meal that Mr. Maybourne had jumped up to receive us.

"Now, Mr. Wrexford," he cried, pointing to a chair, "help yourself, my dear, and let me hear everything from the beginning to the end. Heaven knows I hardly believe my good fortune. Half an hour ago I was the most miserable man under the sun; now that I have got my darling back safe and sound, I believe I am the happiest."

I had not then heard of the wreck of the "Fiji Princess?" I enquired.

"Here is a telegram I received last night. I'll see said handing me a paper he had taken from his pocket. "You see it is from Teneriffe, and says that nothing has been heard of the missing vessel which was then more than a fortnight overdue. Agnes tells me that it was a terrible storm, and that the cargo had shifted. I understood she was expected about mid-day to-day, and I had received by my wife that I should go out into dock, in order to enquire if they had any tidings to report regarding the lost vessel. How delighted I am to find that you were safe on board her, Aggie! Mr. Wrexford, you can have no idea of the agony I have suffered this terrible day."

"On the contrary," I answered, "I think I can very well imagine it."

"And now tell me your story, I must not be cheated of a single detail."

I saw from the way he looked at me that he expected me to do the narrating, so I did so, commencing with the striking of the vessel on the rock, and winding up with an account of our rescue by the King of Carthage. He listened with rapt attention until I had finished, and then turned to his daughter.

"Has Mr. Wrexford told me everything?" he asked with a smile.

"No," she answered. "He has not told you half enough. He has not told you that when I was overboard one night, when we were off the Spanish coast, he sprang over after me and held me up until a boat came to our assistance. He has not told you that when the vessel struck he gave his own life-belt up to me, nor that he gave me up to me, nor that he gave me up to me, nor that he gave me

—Last week we announced the very sudden death of Mrs. Edward Edwards, which occurred on Tuesday after but a few hours' sickness. The cause of death was Bright's disease. Deceased was sixty-two years of age, a worthy woman, and leaves a family of three children, Gilbert, in Syracuse, N.Y., Mrs. Wallbridge, Watertown, N. Y., and Miss Libbie, at home.

The undersigned has bought the standard-bred road and carriage stallion, "Prince Lawrence" for service this season. Prince Lawrence is six years old, stands sixteen hands, strong, and weighs 1,375 lbs. He is a nice rich chestnut with a fine head, small ears, long broady neck, heavy tail and mane, well muscled and heavy boned, good feet, high gaited, and can show a 2.30 clip. I think that he will be a good producer of large road and carriage horses, as our markets have called for the large road and carriage stock horse. I purchased this horse thinking to make some money for the farmers. The horse stands at the Briscoe House stable and can be seen at any time. I would like to have breeders call and see him.

ELDORADO POTATO

Sold Spring of 1904 for $1,250 Per Pound.

The most sensational potato in price and cropping qualities of all time, the potato that caused such a furore in Great Britain, Mr. George Massey, in fall of 1903, selling 14 pounds for $7.000. Spring of 1904 Mr. Alfred Denham sold 240z for 3-ounce one, smaller ones selling for $1,200 per pound. February, 1904, Mr. Charles Needham paid $30 for half-ounce one, which produced that year 364 pounds, the largest weighing two pounds, and 200 potatoes weighing over 100 pounds. While this is the record, yet many others have obtained yields nearly as large. To those unaware of the history of this potato, this may sound incredible, but send for list containing press reports, history, photos of checks paid for potatoes, etc. WE PROVE IT TO YOU BEYOND SHADOW OF A DOUBT.

When selling for $10 per pound in 1907 we imparted a stock direct from the originator, one pound of which in field test produced 148 pounds.

We Offer Limited Quantity at $1.00 Pound

TRAINING OF THE CHILD

NEW LIGHT ON INDIVIDUAL RESPONSIBILITY OF PARENTS.

"IS IT WELL WITH THE CHILD"

Unity of Human Life Runs Down Through All the Ages, and Former Generations Leave the Impress of Their Characters and Minds Upon Those at Present Functioning In Bodies Upon This Earth.

Entered according to Act of Parliament of Canada, in the year 1906, by Frederick Haney, Toronto, at the Dept. of Agriculture, Ottawa.

Los Angeles, Cal., March 25.—In this sermon the preacher deals in homely, familiar fashion with the problem that has confronted every generation since the world began—the training and development of the child—and shows in a new light the individual responsibility of parents. The text is II. Kings iv, 26, "Is it well with the child?"

Some time ago it was my privilege to spend a day with a dear friend, who for many years was a Utah missionary. In one of his tours he became lost. He stopped for the night at a farmer's home away back in the mountains. Next morning this farmer said,

"Come, I want to show you a wonderful sight." Then he took my friend and they rode off for many miles until they came to a great lava bed about two miles wide and four or five feet high. This lava must have begun vomiting forth from a volcano hundreds if not thousands of years ago. There upon the top of this lava bed were to be seen the footprints of a woman and just behind them the footprints of a little child. My friend told me he believed that those footprints must have been made when that lava was in process of cooling. They must have been made by a woman of the mound building period or of one of the other prehistoric ages. And yet those indentations in that lava were just as clear and distinct as though made but yesterday.

We often say to ourselves, "How surprised our grandfathers and grandmothers would be if they could awake and get up out of their graves and see the modern inventions—the automobiles and railroad trains and telegraphs and telephone wires and skyscraping office buildings." But I often think we are surprised we might be if our great-grandparents could come back to earth and tell us how many of the things that our present lives were practiced many centuries ago. Dr. Schliemann, the great German archaeologist and the discoverer of the ancient site of Troy, was a devotee of Homer and he gave his wife a Homeric name and called his servants by the nomenclature of the heroes and heroines of the "Odyssey" and the Iliad." He also called his children Agamemnon and Andromache. But methinks if Hector and Achilles and Ajax and Helen and Paris could come back to the world in the flesh they would have been just as much surprised at the ways of Dr. Schliemann as Dr. Schliemann would have been surprised at their ways. For in many matters their customs were the same. In the ways of salutation, in their loves and their hates and in many of their habits I believe that the year 1906 B. C. can be found to be akin to the year 1906 A. D.

I speak thus because I want you to realize that the human life depicted in the Bible is just the same kind of human life that we have in modern times. When we study the life of Elisha in 895 B. C. we are studying the lives of the men and the women of the present day. Now, this Shunamite woman of my text had a very sick boy, and he died. What did the mother do? What would you and I have done under the same conditions? She said, "I will go and hunt up the prophet of God." When she came to Elisha, what did he do? For years this prophet when he was journeying that way had been accustomed to stop at this woman's house and sup with her, her husband and her boy. Thus, when the Shunammite woman drew near Elisha accosted her in the language of the twentieth century as well as in that of the milleniums which are gone. Elisha says: "How are you? How is your husband? How is your child?" To speak literally he said: "Is it well with thee? Is it well with thy husband? Is it well with the child?" Now, I am going to accost you with only one of the questions with which Elisha greeted this mother. I am going to inquire from you as to the welfare of your babies, of the boys and the girls. We are both parents, and so I'm in this "Home Greeting." I say, Is it with the children? Is it well with the child? Are you ready here and now to answer this important salutation?

How is the child physically? Is it well with his feet? Is it well with his stomach? Is he growing aright? Is he taking enough exercise? Is he eating the proper kind of food? This is not a superfluous question. This is the salutation which Elisha gave to the Shunammite woman. This is the question which every father and mother should be able to answer intelligently. Picture of every baby loving parent ought to be that which I saw in an advertisement some years ago. There in a cradle lay a baby boy with his cheek was aglow. The eyes were laughing. The lips were parted as though he was cooing with joy. And over him bent the sweet face of a loving mother, while above this picture were the words, "A mother's love goes out for the health of her child." Does your love thus go out? How is your child physically? Is it well with him?

It is not sufficient for us as parents to simply say, "It is not well with the child," as though the child was responsible for all his physical weaknesses. There is many a child a physical weakling to-day merely because the parent does not know the first law of hygiene and is no more responsible to take care of the child physically than I am competent to remove a cataract from a blind man's eye with a sea gull's wing. Some years ago when I was traveling through the Holy Land I came to the valley of Jezreel between Galilee and Damascus. No sooner did I arrive there than the news spread, "An American physician is here." This was my surprise a short time after when a poor mother brought to me her sick child. "What is the matter with your baby?" was the question. I answered: "I am no doctor. Why do you come to me with this?" "Why," said she, "You know," was the answer. Then I began to ask the symptoms of the disease. I found that the child had been suffering from a violent and acute form of cholera complaint. The mother, thinking that the child could not digest anything, gradually ceased feeding him until at last she gave him nothing but raw fruit. The child's only food she could give under the circumstances. And as I looked at that skeleton of a boy I said to myself: "How many mothers and fathers are there in this country just as incompetent to raise children as is this unfortunate mother?"

As intelligent parents you have no right to blind your eyes to the physical necessities of your offspring. Is it well with the child? Is it well with the food he eats and the clothing he wears and the room in which he sleeps? Is it well with him in the exercises he takes and in the games he plays? Are you developing good health in the nursery and in the public school? Above all, the body is the temple of the Holy Spirit. Are you building the right kind of physical temple? If you say children are not strong physically, what is the reason? Are you to blame? Are you living like Christian people? Remember, who thought so much of his brain that she forgot that a brain without a stomach is like a ship without a sail. St. Mark's campanile with walls tottering on account of the loosened cement which should fill up the stones together. "Is it well with the child?"

What, I say, can it be that you have no interest in your boy's physical growth? Can it be that you have more interest in the overseer of your ranch or in the gardener or in the hostler or in the coachman of your horses than you have in the schoolteachers who are placing their children's most intellectually upon your boy's mind? As you look into the past you fully realize that all you are, in a measure, is due to the training you received from certain school or college teachers now in glory. And can it be that you have no interest in and no supervision of those later teachers who are molding your children's future lives? If the colt is once broken in the wrong way it will never amount to much. Now the owner of a stock farm carefully watches every movement of his trainer. Can it be that a Kentucky thoroughbred colt is of more value than the mental development and growth of brain and blood? Is it well with the child?

In this age of rapid advancement and of the specialization of industry which has any chance for success in life unless he is developed aright for life's struggle. There is a story told that many years ago a fallen obelisk was about to be raised in Rome. The risk was very great, for if this obelisk partially raised and should be allowed to fall it might be shattered into a thousand pieces. The greatest architect of his time, Domenico Fontana, prepared special machinery for the work. The momentous day arrived. Ropes and pulleys were put into their places. The heavy ropes were placed around the backbone of the huge monument. Higher and higher the mass of stone was lifted. Inch by inch it grew in size, for most it was lifted to the perpendicular, when the cable refused to budge another inch. Then it was that a voice was cried out at the top of his lungs, "Wet the ropes!" Promptly Fontana grasped the situation. Buckets of water were soaked. On account of the wetting these ropes contracted. Then slowly, but surely, the obelisk was drawn higher until it stood straight upon its own foundations. Ah, the wetting of the ropes did it! And in all the great obelisks of the future, the great pyramids, the great arches of the bridges, are to be built our children must know exactly how to do the work, else they will be pushed aside as useless and others will do their planning. They must not only be like Domenico Fontana, but they must be like Domenico Fontana plus the intelligence of the sailor boy who suggested wetting the ropes. How is your boy getting along in school and in his physical development? Is it well with the child?

Are your children growing up without any more chance for their manhood by mankind as a runaway engine is feared by the railroad men? Up and up this engine climbs the mountain side. Then it reaches the top. Then, when the engineer tries to put on the brakes for the down grade horror paralyzes his nerves because he finds the brakes will not work. Then, like a fiend of death, the engine starts on its terrible journey. On and on it goes, until it dashes by the little station headlines of the signals. Then the telegraph machines begin to work. "Clear the track!" is the message sent ahead. "Clear the track! There is a runaway engine." Like the hurricane wind, it rushes along the track and by switchings. Its wheel just escapes the passenger train which has pulled into the side track. Then it comes to the open drawbridge or tumbles down the embankment or crashes into the freight train which has not speed enough to outrun it. Then the mangled forms of its engineer and fireman are to be found amid the piled up ruins, where iron bars are bent like reeds and crumpled blades of grass. Is that the way your children are growing up, to be feared by mankind? Are they growing up like so many children we see about us, who are never taught to obey and who never do right? Are they growing up to do right? How are your boys and girls in reference to the moral law? By the moral law I mean all those laws that teach honesty and purity and uprightness. Do they respect other people's rights as they demand that others should respect their rights?

Then how is it with your children spiritually? We will suppose this child have cared for them physically, mentally and morally, but have you aided them in their spiritual lives? Have you ever interested yourself in their Sunday school lessons? When the evening hours come have you ever taken them upon your lap to show them the Bible pictures? Have you ever told stories of the great sacred characters of the old Testament and the New? Have you tried to teach them to love Jesus Christ and lead them to walk hand in hand with their Saviour? You know, by the law of pedagogics there are two ways of teaching. The first is to bring out or develop what is in the child. The second way is to continually drive before you an "ideal child" and then try to pattern all your children after the "ideal Child." In your own home and around your fireside is there any "ideal child" called Christ?

By the higher spiritual law could not this be what the Shunammite woman of my text said if your child was dead? Supposing one of those terrible quick and fatal diseases should come to your home and take away your baby in a night and that, as your pastor, I came to your home and accost you in the words of Elisha, "Is it well with the child?" Could you answer, like the Shunammite woman: "It is well. Yes, he is well with Jesus. He is well with all dear ones who preceded him. Yes, my child is well because he is forever safe from sin. He is well in heaven!" Could you say that? If you could not say that, you had better beware, for the death angel seems to be partial to our little ones. Oh, how many small graves there are in the family plot! It almost seems that to some of us life only has a purpose by means of a boy or girl. Is it well with the child?

Then, when the baby began to utter a plaintive wail, the poor woman said: "Poor sir, sir, he isn't cry like a well baby. He ain't never been strong. None of my babies are. I've buried seven and I've only one picture of any of them, so I thought I'd try and get a picture of this one in case anything should happen. I'm a widow and am a scrubbing if you would only take this picture, for I'm afraid this little one won't live long." Then the woman brushed away a tear as he said: "Yes, good woman, I will take a picture of your baby and you shall have it as I read the story I said: "O God, art thou going to take away any of my babies as thou took away any of those other babies? If they are taken away shall I be able to say, 'They are well with thee; because I have given them to thee? And if I am myself taken away, shall I still be able to say ere I go that it is well with my babies, because I have taught them already to meet me before the great white throne in heaven?"

But I cannot close this home greeting without giving you still another salutation. I would salute you with the words, "Is it well with thy neighbor's child as with thine own child?" And when I accost you thus I would call to you why I do it. I have had in mind for some time to preach upon our duty to care for the abused and neglected children of the slums. I wanted to do so to-day, but the more I thought upon this subject the more I felt that if a parent did not realize his responsibility to his own children he could not realize his responsibility to his neighbor's children. Now, I do believe we realize our responsibility to our own. Therefore I can I-not say just a word or two in reference to our duty toward those poor little waifs of the street or to or worse than orphans, the children of the outcasts of sin?

You already how hard it is to develop children aright even under the very best conditions. And if there is a bad spot in your neighborhood at once you can see the influence of his life upon the actions of your own little son if they go together. What chance has that little child whose mother is a drunkard and whose father is a libertine? What chance have those little girls who are growing up surrounded by the vitiating and appalling atmosphere of licentiousness unless the Christian society of our large cities come to their rescue? Do you not know that in our large cities some willing to sell their children into a life of crime when they have not yet entered their teens? O God, as we are realizing these things, may we not reach out the hand of rescue and help this Christly work of taking the little children out of these slums and putting them into thine arms, as the mothers of old gave their little ones to Christ that he might bless them?

If Christian society in the name of Jesus Christ will not rescue these children, in all probability no power on earth will. Years ago three men were camping in the Indian jungle. Suddenly, with a mighty bound, a tiger leaped upon the back of one of the party. The two untouched men at once climbed a nearby tree. Then the tiger called to her young to come and have an evening meal. The men were not very hungry, so the old mother allowed them to play with their prey for a little while. Then she herself asserted itself. The play stopped and the sound of the crunching bones was heard. Ah, I wish I myself never had read that story how often do we see sin playing with her victims like that? And in no way is she more cruel than with more fiendish glee over her prey than when sporting—with the children of the slums or with those idealless or cruel parents. Oh, my friends, if amid the brightest joys we have in our own homes we fail to raise our children right shall we not in Christ's name try to rescue these poor little ones who are growing up in homes and take away your baby in a night and that, as your pastor, I came to your home and accost you in the words of Elisha, "Is it well with the child?" Could you answer, like the Shunammite woman: "It is well. Yes, he is well with Jesus. He is well with all dear ones who preceded him. Yes, my child is well because he is forever safe from sin. He is well in heaven!" Could you say that? If you could not say that, you had better beware, for the death angel seems to be partial to our little ones. Oh, how many small graves there are in the family plot! It almost seems that to some of us life only has a purpose by means of a boy or a girl. Is it well with the child?

Then the woman brushed away a tear as he said: "Yes, good woman, I will take a picture of your baby and you shall have it as I read the story I said: "O God, art thou going to take away any of my babies as thou took away any of those other babies? If they are taken away shall I be able to say, 'They are well with thee; because I have given them to thee? And if I am myself taken away, shall I still be able to say ere I go that it is well with my babies, because I have taught them already to meet me before the great white throne in heaven?"

But I cannot close this home greeting without giving you still another salutation. I would salute you with the words, "Is it well with thy neighbor's child as with thine own child?" And when I accost you thus I would call to you why I do it. I have had in mind for some time to preach upon our duty to care for the abused and neglected children of the slums. I wanted to do so to-day, but the more I thought upon this subject the more I felt that if a parent did not realize his responsibility to his own children he could not realize his responsibility to his neighbor's children. Now, I do believe we realize our responsibility to our own. Therefore can I-not say just a word or two in reference to our duty toward those poor little waifs of the street or to or worse than orphans, the children of the outcasts of sin?

You already how hard it is to develop children aright even under the very best conditions. And if there is a bad spot in your neighborhood at once you can see the influence of his life upon the actions of your own little son if they go together. What chance has that little child whose mother is a

HEALTH IN SPRING

Nature Needs Assistance in Making New Health-Giving Blood.

Spring is the season when your system needs help. In the spring—you must have new blood. Just as the trees must have new sap, Nature demands it. Without new blood you will feel weak and languid; you may have twinges of rheumatism or neuralgia, occasional headaches, a variable appetite, pimply complexion, specks before the eyes, pale, pasty complexion. These are sure signs that the blood is out of order. A tonic is needed to give new energy. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are the best tonic in all the world. Don't put off, don't neglect your greatest need in spring. They make the rich, shiny red blood—make you strong and well. Mrs. Thos. Masson, Yamaschiche, Que., writes: "I am a great value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in building up people who have become weakened and run down. She says—"In the winter of 1905 I was very much run down and lost flesh rapidly. My blood was poor. I suffered from indigestion, severe headaches and general debility. In this condition I took to using Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a trial, and thanks to the valuable medicine I am again enjoying perfect health."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cure all the ailments due to poor blood or shattered nerves. That is why they cure anæmia, rheumatism, neuralgia, kidney trouble, indigestion and the special ailments of women. Sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Don't be humbugged at once you can see the influence of his life upon the actions of your own little son if they go together. What chance has that little child whose mother is a drunkard and whose father is a libertine? What chance have those little girls who are growing up surrounded by the vitiating and appalling atmosphere of licentiousness unless the Christian society of our large cities come to their rescue? Do you not know that in our large cities some willing to sell their children into a life of crime when they have not yet entered their teens? O God, as we are realizing these things, may we not reach out the hand of rescue and help this Christly work of taking the little children out of these slums and putting them into thine arms, as the mothers of old gave their little ones to Christ that he might bless them?

If Christian society in the name of Jesus Christ will not rescue these children, in all probability no power on earth will. Years ago three men were camping in the Indian jungle. Suddenly, with a mighty bound, a tiger leaped upon the back of one of the party. The two untouched men at once climbed a nearby tree. Then the tiger called to her young to come and have an evening meal. The men were not very hungry, so the old mother allowed them to play with their prey for a little while. Then she herself asserted itself. The play stopped and the sound of the crunching bones was heard. Ah, I wish I myself never had read that story how often do we see sin playing with her victims like that? And in no way is she more cruel than with more fiendish glee over her prey than when sporting—with the children of the slums or with those idealless or cruel parents. Oh, my friends, if amid the brightest joys we have in our own homes we fail to raise our children right shall we not in Christ's name try to rescue these poor little ones who are growing up in homes and take away your baby in a night and that, as your pastor, I came to your home and accost you in the words of Elisha, "Is it well with the child?" Could you answer, like the Shunammite woman: "It is well. Yes, he is well with Jesus. He is well with all dear ones who preceded him. Yes, my child is well because he is forever safe from sin. He is well in heaven!" Could you say that? If you could not say that, you had better beware, for the death angel seems to be partial to our little ones. Oh, how many small graves there are in the family plot! It almost seems that to some of us life only has a purpose by means of a boy or a girl. Is it well with the child?

Then, when the baby began to utter a plaintive wail, the poor woman said: "Poor sir, sir, he isn't cry like a well baby. He ain't never been strong. None of my babies are. I've buried seven and I've only one picture of any of them, so I thought I'd try and get a picture of this one in case anything should happen. I'm a widow and am a scrubbing if you would only take this picture, for I'm afraid this little one won't live long." Then the woman brushed away a tear as he said: "Yes, good woman, I will take a picture of your baby and you shall have it as I read the story I said: "O God, art thou going to take away any of my babies as thou took away any of those other babies? If they are taken away shall I be able to say, 'They are well with thee; because I have given them to thee? A GREAT WORK

We regret the removal of good workers from our midst, but we sorrow, we rejoice that they are going to other fields to come and labor with others who have heard the gospel preached in its fullness and have received it with joy. Our preaching, members were few, and were brought to realize that they were Saviour, and rarely ever attended Sabbath School or prayer meeting. Since the coming in of Chris Jones and his wife, the whole aspect has changed. Not only our good brother and sister, but the whole community around is ward, for truly the harvest is great and the laborers few. Come to the young in Christ, and more by reading the Bible, more by meeting and more by beloved brethren, to realize the privilege and joy of the Christian life, and to enter into the work of the Lord. Let us "grow in grace and in the knowledge of our Lord" Also see 9, 10, 11, and 12 verses.

HON. ALLAN BRISTOL AYLESWORTH.

Canada's New Postmaster General.

From Canadian Graphic.

Intellect coupled with industry, concentration with application, energy with hard work—these are the foundation stones on which Canada's new Postmaster General has reared the first storey of his edifice of success.

And, now, varying the architecture, he is about to attempt the superstructure.

At fifteen a boy on the farm, spending the long hours of the winter evenings reading and studying by candle light, or by the flickering light of beech fire in his father's home; at eighteen pulling himself through college by winning scholarship after scholarship; at nineteen carrying off in arts of Toronto University, a Prince's prize, with the Supreme Court bench at Ottawa entering the Federal Cabinet, "by the great door," as the saying is, and declined the position at the Premier—that surely is as proud a record of unaided success as that of an eight a promise for the future; and in the Canadian Law Journal of life and in the full possession of all his powers, can boast.

His success has been fairly won. He has had to spell all the letters of the word. Mr. Aylesworth has been no favored son of wealth or position. Nor has he travelled the usual road to politics—preferment via the committee room and the hustings. Middle-aged, brow in his study and the unremitting exercise of the intellect is the finest quality have been his only passports.

It had been said that the measure of a man's career is determined by three things: First, the talent that ancestry gives; second, the opportunity that events offer; third, the movement that the mind and will create and compel. Mr. Aylesworth's ancestry of old United Empire Loyalist stock gave him a rich heritage of natural talent in the shape of brain power, a sound constitution, an appetite for work and a healthy ambition. He got an early training on the Aylesworth homestead, kept by the old village of Newburgh, Addington, in the first principles of the gospel of work, in religion and in politics and money. He was early indoctrinated by father and grandfather with the theory and practice of the old-school Liberalism of Baldwin, Hincks, Blake and Lafontaine were among the household gods.

Newburgh Grammar School, one of the oldest in the Province, was the first Alma Mater. There he developed a passion for reading, and spare hours were spent pouring over books before the logs on the hearth blazed. Ever since he has been an omnivorous reader. He has covered a wide range of literature, ancient and modern, Greek, British, French, English. He has lingered with Homer English. He has gates of Troy; with Pericles and Plato to Ione has sauntered through the groves of Athens. Hence something of his cultured diction and the versatility of his powers as a conversationalist. When the Newburgh Academy alum was exhausted he matriculated in to Toronto University, and entered with flying colors. They have been flying ever since. His university course was as brilliant as it was unique. To take first-class honors in three departments—mathematics, history and metaphysics—and then add Lafontaine were among the household gods.

His university course was as brilliant as it was unique. To take first-class honors in three departments—mathematics, history and metaphysics—and then add would be to-day at once the envy and the despair of all undergraduates. Yet he did it. He won enough money in scholarships to put him through his whole course. He graduated with first-class honors in the Prince of Wales prize and which history was awarded to him in three silver medals. It is interesting to note that among his fellow-students in residence at Varsity, were many, he, like himself, achieved large success in the calling of law—Judge Killam, late of the Supreme Court Bench, Judge Macbeth of London, Judge Bridges, of Hamilton, Judge Madden, of Napanee, and the late Hon. Arthur D. Dorion, formerly Minister of Justice, and a half dozen others.

In such company and in view of his subsequent position, it was inevitable that he should gravitate to the legal profession. Here was offered the second factor determining measure of a man's career, as noted above—opportunity. The office of Aylesworth up the ladder, the third factor, the opportunity was offered and with the principal motive power. In '78 he was called to the Bar, shortly afterwards he opened his office in Napanee, and began to build up a practice which soon became known as one of the most lucrative in the Province. He was not long in reaching the front rank of his profession. Within a few years he was counsel in the Gamey case. He had never taken any great interest in active political life, beyond this interest in professional way. Almost the only time he had spoken on the hustings was on the occasion of his father's candidature as Liberal standard-bearer for the Legislature in Addington County.

But Sir Wilfrid is a hard man to refuse. "We and the country need you," he said, "a larger field is open to you." "You have been interesting law; now come and make law." So, in the fall of 1904 he decided to step into the "seven ways." He stood for Durham. But unfortunately Durham was set in the sun and would not stand for him. After a strenuous campaign in which mud was slung at the "corporation lawyer" this Stratton candidate got the ultra-Tory majority and he was defeated by a small majority. Mr. Aylesworth was led he would have no more of this sort of practical politics and he quit the field in disgust. Other constituencies were offered him, including one of Sir Wilfrid's spare seats in Quebec. But he declined with thanks.

A year later the Premier came again knocking at his door. A new Postmaster General was wanted in the room of Sir William Mulock's shoes at Ottawa. Anywhere should they look for one of the "ablest" but Aylesworth. A. R. A.? Sir William, an old fellow-student, backed up Sir Wilfrid's position. The call of duty and patriotism counterbalanced the personal sacrifice of seven or eight thousand dollars a year. Brain tells, perhaps a word wrought with hard thinking over legal tomes, needed a change of exercise. A new world to conquer loomed up. Fortune gratified in one field of endeavor, saw golden opportunity offering in another field. The "seven ways" of the Premier—that surely is as proud a record of unaided success as that of an eight a promise for the future; and in the Canadian Law Journal of life and in the full possession of all his powers, can boast.

But Sir Wilfrid is a hard man to refuse. "We and the country need you," he said, "a larger field is open to you." "You have been interesting law; now come and make law." So, in the fall of 1904 he decided to step into the "seven ways." He stood for Durham. But unfortunately Durham was set in the sun and would not stand for him. After a strenuous campaign in which mud was slung at the "corporation lawyer" this Stratton candidate got the ultra-Tory majority and he was defeated by a small majority. Mr. Aylesworth was led he would have no more of this sort of practical politics and he quit the field in disgust. Other constituencies were offered him, including one of Sir Wilfrid's spare seats in Quebec. But he declined with thanks.

A year later the Premier came again knocking at his door. A new Postmaster General was wanted in the room of Sir William Mulock's shoes at Ottawa. Anywhere should they look for one of the "ablest" but Aylesworth

Easier for Women.

How many women fairly groan under too much work? How many despair of ever getting through washing milk things? How many say, "Oh, if I just had fewer pans, crocks and cans, I could read, write or sew more, or even take a little rest each day."

An Easier Time

Ask your husband to make the dairy work 50 per cent. easier, 50 per cent. neater 50 per cent. more pleasant, and 50 per cent. more profitable by using a Sharples Tubular Cream Separator. Until you try the Tubular you can't imagine the difference it makes. It skims the milk immediately after milking—there's no milk standing around—no cans and pans to wash. The Tubular is so simple and convenient. Come with your husband and let us take a Tubular apart for you.

A POPULAR YOUNG MAN.

It is many a day since a more popular young man was called to leave our town than Mr. Fred. S. Lapum, the genial "Pum." It is Fred's intention to start for Mexico City, Mexico, at noon next Sunday, where an excellent situation awaits him with the United States Banking Co. To show their good will about thirty-five of his companions, including from a distance, Messrs. Geo Rawden and D. J. McKinnon, Kingston; T. S. Holgate, J. Doyle, Wm. Burke, Belleville, and P. Johnston, Foresters' Island, assembled at the Royal Hotel parlors last night, and presented Fred. with an elegant fitted leather lined club bag, afterwards entertaining him to a supper fit for a king, served in Royal style. After supper the balance of the evening was spent in the parlor where complimentary addresses and vocal and instrumental music were indulged in. Everybody will wish Fred. health, happiness and prosperity in his new home, as he is a favorite with all with whom he has come in contact.

GREAT ENGLISH ACTRESS COMING

Miss Ellis Jeffreys, the English actress who comes to the Grand Opera House, in Kingston, on Wednesday, April 4th, in Alfred Sutro's new play, "The Fascinating Mr. Vanderveldt," was a little annoyed because of the attention the New York papers gave to the dresses she wears in the various scenes of the comedy. In London Miss Jeffreys is known as the best dressed woman on the stage, but she says that she has never tried to gain that title. The fact remains that Miss Jeffreys' gowns are always of the very latest—indeed, of the advance styles—and wherever she appears women flock to the theatre to study her costumes. She is a comedienne of rare ability and familiar as she is with London society she is able to present the various types and foibles with an accuracy that no other actress on the stage can attempt. Mr. Sutro wrote "The Fascinating Mr. Vanderveldt" especially for her, and the part she plays, that of a gifted woman of fashion is exactly suited to her.

DIED IN BUFFALO.

The funeral of Miss Margaret J. Evans, who died at the Sisters' Hospital, Buffalo, on March 21st, while undergoing an operation for appendicitis, was held from the home of her sister, Mrs. M. McGurn, of No. 98 Potomac Ave., at 8 o'clock, Saturday morning, March 24th, and from the Church at 9 o'clock, which she was a faithful member. The services were assisted of Grand High Mass, followed by a sermon preached by Rev. Father Carr, who spoke of Miss Evans in the highest terms. Miss Evans was bookkeeper and cashier at Arnold Wegener & Bode's, Forest Ave. She was formerly a Canadian school teacher, being a graduate of the Collegiate Institute, Napanee, Ont., and taught school near Tweed, in the same province, which is thirty miles from her home in Croydon.

Miss Evans is survived by her mother, five brothers, John and Daniel, of Croydon; Thomas, of San Antonio, Texas, and Hugh, Will and Joseph, of Buffalo; also two sisters, Francis Evans, of Croydon, and Mrs. M. McGurn, of Buffalo—Buffalo paper

A FAREWELL TEA.

A large number assembled at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Mooney, Mill st., on Monday evening, the 19th inst., to bring the occasion of their farewell to Mr. and Mrs. William Spratt, Miss Mary Spratt, Messrs. Dennis and Patrick Spratt, all of Enterprise, and Mr. and Mrs. James McCarten, of Pleasant Valley, all near relatives of the hostess. After tea had been served in elaborate style, and the inner man gratified, the rest of the evening until midnight was spent in games and amusements, when they took their departure for Kamloops, B.C. Their many friends all joined in wishing them a safe journey, and happiness and prosperity in their new homes.

UNDER SOUTHERN SKIES.

One of the most pretentious productions, from a scenic viewpoint, touring the country this season is Lottie Blair Parker's "Under Southern Skies." The use of a 60 ft. baggage car is required to transport the scenery and mechanical effects, and the services of 27 people are needed in the presentation of the play. The unqualified endorsement of the Eastern press has been accorded this organization and all indications point to the forthcoming engagement as one of the most important of our season from a theatrical and social standpoint. Under Southern Skies will be at the Grand Opera House in Kingston, on Tuesday, April 3d, one night only.

The Wash Goods Department.

This week we call your attention to the famous Shamrock brand Dress Linens, having control of this particular make, which is manufactured in Belfast, Ireland, and sold with a guarantee. Our dress linens are being shown in various grades and weaves and are most suitable for summer dresses. Ask to see our complete stock of table linens and napkins, towels, etc., in this reliable brand, the Shamrock brand.

The Smallwear Department.

The Department of Novelties. With a section specially equipped such as this, we doubt not in saying that it is the most up-to-date in central Ontario, with our buying facilities and your interests considered. With sole control in Napanee of each and every novelty bought, we are in a position to supply you with only the latest and newest in Ladies' Gloves, Belts, Collars, etc.

CARPETS.

In our ground floor department with the best and brightest light the new Carpets are gathered for your inspection. Never was such art displayed in these new designs, and never were the colorings so artistically blended before, exclusive patterns every one of them and above everything else dependable. Carpets cost a heap of money; too much for you to afford to buy an inferior grade, even at a few cents a yard less in price. The best real values and the most reliable carpets are the kind we offer, and if you pay less than our fair prices there's something wrong with the carpets. You shouldn't do any carpet buying without first seeing the extensive and handsome display we have here.

COUNTY COUNCIL.

Napanee, 3d April, 1906.

Council met in special session on Tuesday at 2 p.m., all the members present except Mr. Bryden, who has removed to Edmonton, Alta. Warden in the chair.

Minutes of last day of preceding session were read and confirmed.

An account for committee services, $1.00; Bowen, $2.50; W. A. Martin, $3.50; Col. Clyde, $13.70, passed at last day's session, was ordered to be inserted in the minutes.

The Warden stated that a deputation would wait on the Council this afternoon in reference to establishing a house of refuge for this county. He also stated that at a meeting of the citizens of Napanee recently, and gave an estimate of what such an Institute would cost, and what the cost would be to each municipality to maintain it.

On motion Mr. W. T. Gibbard and Mr. Casey were heard as to the advisability of erecting a house of refuge.

Mr. Gibbard urged the erection of a suitable home for our poor in all its phases, in eloquent and convincing terms, and was ably supported by Mayor Lowry.

Messrs. Martin, Baker, Paul, Creighton, Clyde, Miller, Woods, and Hall replied to Stewart, Gibbard and Lowry, commended the condition of the poor in their municipalities, and the members of the committee of the County Council and those whom they represented as to the care taken of their poor and their opposition to a house of refuge.

County Commissioner Hall was in favor of a house of refuge. While he was reeve of the Township of Ernestown they tried to take care of and provide for their poor, but unfortunately he (at that time) was not properly cared for. He was in favor of a house of refuge.

An account from James Bryden, for commissioner services, $18.20, deputation to Toronto, was referred to the finance committee with the understanding that accounts of other members of deputations be also referred to the same committee when submitted.

From P. C. Bogart, for two phantom showing County roads, $25.00. Laid on table until to-morrow.

From H. Rose, coal, $54.00, Pd.

From F. Burrows, postage, $3.00. Paid.

From Jas. Richardson, $2.50, Paid.

From Jas. Symington, $5.00, Pd.

From G. B. Joy, $8.00. From Alexandria Industrial School, expenses of Lillian Pile, $13.75. Referred to Finance committee.

Also, notice from Police Magistrate Rankin, giving notice that Mahmon Abanes, North Fredericksburgh, had been sent to the Victoria Industrial School Pile.

On motion, Mr. Cameron, of the Waterous Engine Co., and Mr. Scott, of the Canadian Rand Drill Co., were heard before the Council.

From W. A. McCarthy, Kingston, for operating on Joseph Saad, $240, was referred to the Finance committee.

COMMUNICATIONS.

COUNTY COUNCIL.

Napanee, 3d April, 1906.

Council met in special session on Tuesday at 2 p.m., all the members present except Mr. Bryden, who has been appointed Reeve of the Town of Bogart presiding.

Minutes of last day of preceding session were read and confirmed.

Mr. Baker presented committee reports. M. C. Bogart, $2.50; W. A. Martin, $2.50; Col. Clyde, $2.70, passed at last day's session, was ordered to be inserted in the minutes.

The Warden stated that a deputation would wait on the Council this afternoon in reference to establishing a house of refuge for this county. He outlined the action taken by a meeting of the ratepayers of Napanee recently, and gave an estimate of what such an institute would cost, and what the cost would be to each municipality to maintain it.

On motion Mr. W. T. Gibbard and Mr. Ashley were heard as to the advisability of erecting a house of refuge. Mr. Gibbard urged the erection of a suitable home for our poor in all its phases, in eloquent and convincing terms, and was ably supported by Mayor Lowry.

Messrs. Martin, Baker, Paul, Creighton, Clyde, Miller, Woods, and Hall replied to Mr. Gibbard and Mr. Lowry, represented the condition of the poor in their municipalities, and the view taken by the members of the Council generally, and those whom they represented as to the care taken of their poor, and the opposition to a house of refuge.

County Commissioner Hall was in favor of a house of refuge. When Mr. Hall was Reeve of the Township of Richmond they tried to take care of their poor, but their poor, as a rule, nevertheless he felt that they were not in favor of a house of refuge.

Mr. Baker, seconded by James Bryden, for committee services, $18.20, deputation to Toronto, etc., referred to the same committee when submitted to-morrow. Carried.

Mr. Baker, seconded by Mr. Bell, for printing Good Roads Machinery Co., were heard before the Council.

Mr. Baker, seconded by Mr. McCarthy, Kingston, for operating on Joseph Stark, $2.80, was referred to the Finance committee.

COMMUNICATIONS.

From Wm. Bicknell, Camden East, asking for $100 on pedlar's license. Filed.

From High School, Picton, re account submitted at last session to Council. Filed.

From Col. Clyde and Mr. Woods, re report of same to the Hon. the Minister of Government, re grants to Colonization roads. Filed.

Moved by Mr. Creighton, seconded by Mr. Clyde, that all the communications and correspondence relating to our County Roads by-law be laid on the table. Carried.

Mr. Martin submitted his report as to the Township of Ernestown, and that on the Government, re County Roads system.

The Warden also reported the action of the Council as member of the deputation.

Council adjourned till 10 o'clock to-morrow.

WEDNESDAY—SECOND DAY

Council met at 10 a.m.; members all present; Warden presiding.

Minutes of yesterday's session were read and confirmed.

Mr. Baker, as to business men of Napanee were heard regarding the proposed moving of the ferry.

Dr. Simpson, M. S. Madole and W. Irwin, of Napanee, addressed the Council in the interests of the ferry.

Moved by Mr. Martin, seconded by Mr. Baker, that the application of the deputation for a licensee of the ferry grant to assist in opening up the approach, be referred to the Roads and Bridges committee. Carried.

On motion the account of Mr. F. C. Hawley, for the use of horse, etc., was ordered to be paid.

Mr. Baker gave notice that he would withdraw his notice of the increase of salary of the clerk and treasurers in bats.

Health Tablets

These tablets will cure all menstruation and uterine troubles even when chronic.

They take away the backache, constipation and dragging-down pains, which are symptoms of a run-down condition or some serious disorder.

As the weak and diseased organs (no matter which they may be) are made strong and well, that tired feeling, nervousness and irritability which come from a run-down condition, disappear.

Women are writing us every day testifying to their gain in health since taking these tablets. Improvement is noticed in a week's time.

The Better Way

The tissues of the throat are inflamed and irritated; you cough, and there is more irritation—more coughing. You take a cough mixture and it eases the irritation—for a while. You take and it cures the cold. That's what is necessary. It soothes the throat because it reduces the irritation; cures the cold because it drives out the inflammation; builds up the weakened tissues because it nourishes them back to their natural strength. That's how Scott's Emulsion deals with a sore throat, a cough, a cold, or bronchitis.

A SHAMROCK LUNCHEON.

Belleville Intelligencer.

Among other festivities of St. Patrick's day was a shamrock lunch eon, given by Albert College girls to Lillian Burke, superintendent of the domestic science department of Albert College. The dainty repast reflected great credit on Miss Burke's abilities as an instructor and on three of her apt pupils, Miss Jones, Miss Pearl Amy and Miss Ida Jones, who cooked and served it. The menu cards were most artistic, being painted in green by Miss Pearl Amy, and on them were shamrocks and Irish harps galore. They will be treasured by those who were fortunate enough to be presented with them. Miss Pearl Amy's mother is the daughter of Mr. Damon Amy, of Odessa.—Ont.

THE HORSE SHOW.

The Canadian Horse Show is an event which has done much to benefit one of Canada's most important agricultural industries, the breeding of horses. This year will mark the twelfth annual renewal of the show, which will be held in the Toronto Armouries on Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday, April 25th, 26th, 27th and 28th. The sum of $5000 will be distributed in cash and plate. There are ninety-five classes in which the entries close on Wednesday, April 11th. They should be addressed to the Secretary, Henry Wade, Parliament Buildings, Toronto. The show will be opened on Wednesday, April 25th, by H. R. H. The Governor-General of Connaught who will be present for two days. Reduced rates are offered on all railways within a convenient radius of Toronto.

THE LOCAL PAPER.

The local newspaper, as a rule, spends endless time, space and energy in boosting the town, for the sense of the merchants and business men seem to begrudge it a little patronage, haggle and growl down prices and in many cases give their work to the "fellow" who is travelling. There is no local enterprise which should be so willingly or sympathetically supported as the local paper, however humble it is or not as big as the city paper, and the keen bargainer who would not get down prices rate never fails to point out that the city newspaper is the best medium in the city daily, but the little local sheet fills a place which the city daily never does nor never can. It is not a rare thing to hear some hard-headed individual sneer in derision at the local paper and point out its defects. Well, it has defects and plenty of them, no doubt, but as a rule, regardless of community pretty accurately in this respect as in all others.

BROKEN SLEEP, TIRED NEXT MORNING.

Sleep not only rests, but builds up the body. Our days the hours are steep, and you cut down health in the same proportion. Rebuilding then ceases, nerves go to smash, you grow tired, weak and wretched.

To restore sleep you must get more bodily strength, more nutritious blood healthier nerves. Ferrozone solves the whole problem, makes you sleep soundly, gives endurance, vim, ambition. No more morning weakness—instead of the fire of youth will run in your veins, supplying abundance of energy and vigor. Whether expresses the instant effect of Ferrozone; try it.

ONTARIO TEACHERS.

The forty-fifth annual meeting of the Ontario Educational Association will be held in the University of Toronto on April 17th, 18th and 19th. The sixteen departments and sections of which the association is composed for each one very full programme is arranged and many live educational questions will be discussed during the meeting.

The programme of the Public School Department will be found thoroughly practical, and of direct personal interest to every Public School teacher in the Province. It gains special interest inasmuch as the Government proposes some important changes along several lines indicated in the topics for discussion on this year's programme.

Some of the topics for discussion are, The Salary Question, Superannuation, Teacher Advertising, Men and Women Teachers, Organization of Teachers, Teachers' Qualification, the organization of Training Schools, etc. The attendance and interest in these annual gatherings of the teachers of the province is increasing year by year. And the importance of this year's meeting will no doubt largely increase the attendance of Public School Teachers. Single fare rates on all railways will enable them to attend the Convention at a minimum of expense.

An excursion has been arranged under the auspices of the association to the Ontario Agricultural College, at Guelph, on the invitation of President Creelman, for Friday, April 20th. All members of the association will be entertained at luncheon, and a full programme has been arranged so that the visitors may see all the departments of the college, the Macdonald institute, and the Consolidated Rural School.

Baby's Own Tablets is the only medicine that gives the mother the guarantee of a government analyst that it contains no poisonous opiate and is absolutely safe. This is very much to every mother who cares for the future welfare of her child. The Tablets are given to the youngest baby or for the well grown boy or girl, and cure the minor troubles that are inseparable from childhood. Mrs. W. J. Matthews, of Harbor, N.B., says: "I have used Baby's Own Tablets for constipation, vomiting and colds and have found them a splendid medicine. I give the Tablets to all the cross, fretful children I nurse and they soon become healthy. I did health my little one now enjoys." You will find that by using them you can keep a box of these Tablets on hand, or can get from any druggist, or by mail from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont., at 25 cents a box.

The Best Flour,

Dafoe's Nonesuch,

Dafoe's Manitoba Patent

By numerous tests by the best bakers the above mentioned grades have been proven to be the best flours in the market.

When buying flour, ask for Dafoe's, and patronize your home mill, thereby producing Bran and Shorts that you can purchase cheaper than the product of the Western mills, which has to be transported thousands of miles, at high rates and usually when it reaches you, of inferior quality.

The grocer complains if the farmer or the mechanic sends to Toronto or to outside points for an article he can get at the home store just as good, however humbly. It is not any big as the city paper, and the keen bargainer who would get down prices rate never fails to point out that the city newspaper is the best medium in the city daily, but the little local sheet fills a place which the city daily never does nor never can. It is not a rare thing to hear some hard-headed individual sneer in derision at the local paper and point out its defects. Well, it has defects and plenty of them, no doubt, but as a rule, regardless of community pretty accurately in this respect as in all others.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in the curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

HOUSE OF REFUGE.

Editor of The Beaver,—

A committee appointed at the meeting of the citizens to promote the building of a House of Refuge, for the unfortunate poor in our County, have the pleasure of asking the different denominations in each municipality in the County, and in every case we have not received a reply from the urgent need of such an institution.

The following extracts taken from a few of the leading papers will show the feeling in the matter. One from Newburgh, writes: "It is a shame that we have no place but the common jail to which to send our friendless and helpless old people, and those who are in real need of such care would rather die in the poor house than in jail. We had a case here last winter of an old helpless man, who, through circumstances, disowned him and would not do anything for him, and he was without any one present to give him any aid, although he was heard calling for help."

Another from one of the municipalities in Camden, writes, "My experience in the public institution such as you mention is an absolute necessity and our aged poor are to be disgraced by being sent to prison for the offence of poverty. Therefore, I think it is high time that some official action was taken to respond the County Council to do their duty in the unfortunate but deserving poor of these united counties. It is a crime and a shame that ours should be the only county in the province not to have some provision in regard to this very important matter. I trust your deputation will have very success in your appeal to the members of the Government, and that all necessary pressure will be brought to bear upon the members of the County Council to influence them to do their duty in the interests of suffering and neglected humanity. I was very sorry to hear of the sad death in the common jail of Napanee, of a father and son, whose crime was his poverty. It is to be hoped that such a state of affairs will not continue longer than is absolutely necessary to erect a House of Industry in the county."

Another writes, "It is certainly what we ought to have, and since the government has prohibited the use of the jail it is what we must have. To remain without a House of Refuge for the friendless and destitute is a disgrace to any people or municipality, and I am sure there are plenty of friends ready to hang on your walls."

IMPROVED machinery will not, of itself, produce good flour.

You may be an excellent cook, but you cannot produce light, wholesome baking unless the flour you use be the kind that permits such results.

So in the milling; machinery alone cannot produce

Royal Household Flour

out of the wrong kind of wheat any more than you can make the right kind of bread or pastry out of the wrong kind of flour.

Ogilvie's Royal Household Flour is made from hard spring wheat—a wheat that is rich in nutriment, that grinds fine and white, and produces bread and pastry that are wholesome and nourishing as well as light and crisp—it's a flour that begins to be good in the wheat fields, not in the mills.

Your grocer prefers to sell you Ogilvie's Royal Household Flour because he knows the value of a pleased customer.

THE LUST OF HATE

Towards the end of the evening, Mr. Maybourne made an excuse and went into the house, leaving Tom Mackinnon had long since departed. When we were alone, Agnes leant a little forward in her chair and said:

"Are you pleased to see me, Gilbert?"

"More pleased than I can tell you," I answered, truthfully. "But you must not ask me if I think you were wise to come."

"I can see that you think I was not," she continued. "But now little you understand my motive! I could not stay

Thinking that perhaps she had said too much, she checked herself suddenly, and for a little while did not speak again. When she did it was only about the loneliness of my life on the mine, and such like trivial matters. Illogical as men are, though I had hoped, for both our sakes, that she would not venture again on such a delicate ground as we had reached before we said good-bye, I could not help a little sensation of disappointment when she acted up to my advice. I was still more piqued when a little later she stated that she felt tired, and holding out her hand, bade me "good-night," and went to her room.

Here I can only give utterance to a remark which, I am told, is a old at the hills—and that is, how little we men understand the apposite sex. From that night forward, for the first three or four days of her visit, Agnes' manner towards me was as friendly as of old, but I noticed that she made but small difference between her treatment of Mackinnon and the way in which she behaved towards myself. This was more than I could bear, and in consequence my own behavior towards her changed. I found myself bringing every bit of ingenuity I possessed to bear on an attempt to win her back to the old state. But it was in vain! Whenever I found an opportunity, and hinted at my love for her, she invariably changed the conversation into such a channel that all my intentions were frustrated. In consequence, I exerted myself the more to please until my passion must have been plain to everyone about the place. Prudence, honor, everything that separated me from her was likely to be thrown to the winds. My infatuation for Agnes Maybourne had grown to such a pitch that I verily believe I felt that I could not go on living.

One day, a little more than a week after their arrival, it was my good fortune to accompany her on a riding excursion to a waterfall in the hills, distant some seven or eight miles from the mine. On the way she rallied me playfully on what she called "my unusual quietness." This was more than I could stand, and I determined, as soon as I could find a convenient opportunity, to test my fate and have it settled for good and all.

On reaching our destination, we tied our horses by their reins, left the road at the foot of the hill, and climbed up to the falls we had ridden over to explore. After the view had been created by the wild grandeur of the scene, had passed, I endeavored to make the opportunity I wanted.

"How strangely little circumstances recall the past. What place does that remind you of?" I asked, pointing to the rocky hill on the other side of the fall.

"Of a good many," she answered, a little artfully, I'm afraid. "I cannot say that it reminds me of one more than another. All things considered, there is a great sameness in South African scenery."

Cleverly as she attempted to turn my question off, I was not to be balked so easily.

"Though the likeness has evidently not impressed you, it reminds me very much of Balyago Island," I said, drawing a step closer to her side. "Half-way up that hill one might well expect to find the plateau and the cave."

"Oh, why do you speak to me of that awful cave," she said, with a shudder, "though I try to forget it, it always gives me a nightmare."

"I am sorry I recalled it to your memory, then," I answered, but I was in spite of the way you have behaved towards me lately, Agnes, you are aware that I would not give you pain for anything. Do you know that?"

As I put this question to her, I looked into her face. She dropped her eyes and whispered "Yes."

Emboldened by my success I resolved to push my fate still further.

"Agnes," I said, "I have been thinking over what I am going to say to you now for some days past, and I believe I am doing right. I want to tell you the story of my life, and then to ask you a question that will decide the happiness of the rest of it. I want you to listen and, when I have done, answer me from the bottom of your heart. Whatever you say I will abide by it."

She looked up at me with a startled expression on her face.

"I will listen," she said, "and whatever question you ask I will answer. But think first, Gilbert; do you really wish me to know your secrets?"

"God knows I have as good reasons for wishing you to know as any man could have," I answered. "I can trust you as I can trust no one else in the world. I wish you to hear and judge me. Whatever you say, I will do and abide by it."

She put her little hand in mine, and having drawn me seated herself on a boulder. Then, after a little pause, she bade me tell her all.

"In the first place," I said, "I must make a confession that may surprise you My name is not Wrexford, as I have no doubt you suppose, but is Pennethorne. My father was Sir Anthony Pennethorne, of Polton-Penna, in Cornwall, a baronet, and I went to Eton and Oxford; and, as you will now see, I got no good from either. After I left college I was the blame for which was thrown upon me, my father turned me out of England with a portion of my patrimony, and I went to Australia. There I tried my hand at all sorts of employment, gold mining among the rest. Details of my life out there, with one exception, would not interest you; so I will get on to the great catastrophe, the results of which were taking me out of England when I first met you. Up to this time fortune had constantly pursued me, and I had even known the direst poverty. You may imagine, therefore, what my feeling were when an old friend, a man with whom I had been partner on many goldfields, told me of a place which he had discovered where, he said, there were promises of millions of gold to make us both millionaires half a dozen times over. He, poor fellow, was dying at the time, but he left his secret to me, bidding me take immediate advantage of it. True to my promise, I intended to set off to the place he had found as soon as he was buried, and having discovered it, to apply to Government for right to mine there, but fate was against me, and I was taken seriously ill. For weeks I hovered between life and death. When I recovered I saddled my horse, and, dreaming of all I was going to accomplish with my wealth, when I had obtained it, made my way across country by the coast to Balyago.

"Here I can only give utterance to a remark which, I am told, is a old at the hills—and that is, how little we men understand the apposite sex. From that night forward, for the first three or four days of her visit, Agnes' manner towards me was as friendly as of old, but I noticed that she made but small difference between her treatment of Mackinnon and the way in which she behaved towards myself. "Agnes," I said, "speak to me. If it only be to say how much you loathe me. Your silence cuts me to the heart. Speak to me, tell me my fate, advise me as to what I shall do. I swear by God that whatever you tell me, that I will do without questioning or comment."

"Gilbert," she moaned, 'come what may, I believe in you. Nothing shall ever convince me that you would have killed the man who so cruelly wronged you. You hated him; you longed to be revenged on him; but you never would have murdered him when it came to the point."

In answer I drew her closer to me.

"Agnes, my good angel," I said; what can I say to you for the confidence you give me? You have saved my life into me. If only you believe in me, what do & care for the world? Heaven knows I do not wish to kill the man—but still the fact remains that he is dead, and through my agency. Though morally I am innocent, the law would certainly hold me guilty."

"You do not mean to say that the police will take you?" she cried, starting away from me with a gesture of horror.

"If I am suspected, there can be no doubt that they will do so. How it happens that I have not been arrested ere this I cannot imagine."

"But, Gilbert, you must not let them find you. You must go away—you must hide yourself."

"It would be no use, they would find me sooner or later, wherever I went."

"Oh, what can you do then? Come what may I shall not let you be taken. Oh God, I could not bear that."

She glanced wildly round, as if she fancied the minions of the law might already be on my track. I endeavored to soothe her, but in vain. She was thoroughly frightened, and nothing I could say or do would convince her that I was not in imminent danger. At last, to try and bring her to a reasonable frame of mind, I adopted other tactics.

"But, Agnes, we are missing one point that is of vital importance," I said. "Knowing what I am, henceforward everything must be over between us."

"No, no!" she cried, with a sudden change of front. "On the other hand, you have shown me that there is more reason than ever that I should love you. If you are in danger, this is the time for me to prove what my affection is worth. You value my love not so lightly that you deem it only fit for fair weather? When the world is against you, you can see who are your friends."

"God bless you, dar—r," I said, kissing her sweet upturned face. "You know that there is no one in this world so dear to me as you are, and that very reason I cannot consent to link your fate with such a terrible one as mine."

"Gilbert," she said, "if you repulse me now you will make me miserable for life. Oh, why will you not be open with you?" Cannot you see that I am in earnest when I say I wish to share your danger with you?"

I was silent for a few moments. In what way could I make her see how base a thing it would be on my part to pull her down into the maelstrom of misery that might at any day drag me to my doom? At last an idea occurred to me.

"Agnes," I said, "will you agree to a compromise? Will you promise me to take a year to think it over? If at the end of that time I am at liberty

I will go to your father, tell him my story as I have to-day told it to you, and, if he will still have anything to do with me, ask him for your hand. By that time I shall probably know my fate, you will be able to see things more clearly, and I shall not feel that I have taken advantage of your love and sympathy."

"I am content to be with you and to help you now."

"Believe me, you can help me best by keeping silent. It would be cruel to make me happy by consenting to what I wish?"

"If it will please you I will do so," she said, softly.

"God bless you, dear," I answered. And thus the matter was concluded.

CHAPTER XII.

Nearly a week had elapsed since I had made my confession to Agnes at the Falls, and in that time my life at Mr. Maybourne's intention to set out on his return journey to the South. During the whole of that time not one word had been said by Miss Maybourne regarding my story. But'if she did not refer to it in speech it was easy to see that the subject was never absent from her mind. On two occasions I found her in an agony of terror I got rid of the body—left it in the street in fact—and fled for my very life. Then I came and silently crept and asleep I tramped away into the country, and at a suburban station caught the early train to Southampton. On arrival there I booked my passage in the Fiji Princess for South Africa, and went on board. The rest you know. Now, Agnes, that you have heard my wretched story, can you see for yourself why I am so desirous of getting out of civilization as quickly as possible? Can you understand why I sell whether I was right or wrong in refusing to allow you to say you loved me? Perhaps you will judge me more harshly than I judge myself.

She looked up at me with terror-stricken face.

"But you did not mean to kill the man," she cried. "You repented—you did not mean it. You suppose—"

"If it had not been for me the man would not have died," I answered. "I was guarding the life of another man, out innocent of his death, however hard you try."

A look of fresh life darted into her face. It was as if she had been struck by a brilliant idea that might mean my salvation.

"But how do you know that you killed the man?" she asked. "Are you quite certain that he was dead when you looked at him?"

"Quite certain," I answered. "I examined him minutely with a candle. I have made enquiries since and elicited the fact that he has never been seen or heard since that awful night There have been advertisements in the papers offering rewards for any information concerning him."

She did not reply to this, only sat and rocked herself to and fro, her face once more covered in her hands. I knelt beside her, but did not dare, for very shame, to attempt to comfort her.

"Agnes," I said, "speak to me. If it only be to say how much you loathe me. Your silence cuts me to the heart. Speak to me, tell me my fate, advise me as to what I shall do. I swear by God that whatever you tell me, that I will do without questioning or comment."

"Gilbert," she moaned, 'come what may, I believe in you. Nothing shall ever convince me that you would have killed the man who so cruelly wronged you. You hated him; you longed to be revenged on him; but you never would have murdered him when it came to the point."

In answer I drew her closer to me.

"Agnes, my good angel," I said; what can I say to you for the confidence you give me? You have saved my life into me. If only you believe in me, what do & care for the world? Heaven knows I do not wish to kill the man—but still the fact remains that he is dead, and through my agency. Though morally I am innocent, the law would certainly hold me guilty."

"You do not mean to say that the police will take you?" she cried, starting away from me with a gesture of horror.

"If I am suspected, there can be no doubt that they will do so. How it happens that I have not been arrested ere this I cannot imagine."

"But, Gilbert, you must not let them find you. You must go away—you must hide yourself."

"It would be no use, they would find me sooner or later, wherever I went."

"Oh, what can you do then? Come what may I shall not let you be taken. Oh God, I could not bear that."

She glanced wildly round, as if she fancied the minions of the law might already be on my track. I endeavored to soothe her, but in vain. She was thoroughly frightened, and nothing I could say or do would convince her that I was not in imminent danger. At last, to try and bring her to a reasonable frame of mind, I adopted other tactics.

"But, Agnes, we are missing one point that is of vital importance," I said. "Knowing what I am, henceforward everything must be over between us."

"No, no!" she cried, with a sudden change of front. "On the other hand, you have shown me that there is more reason than ever that I should love you. If you are in danger, this is the time for me to prove what my affection is worth. You value my love not so lightly that you deem it only fit for fair weather? When the world is against you, you can see who are your friends."

"God bless you, dar—r," I said, kissing her sweet upturned face. "You know that there is no one in this world so dear to me as you are, and that very reason I cannot consent to link your fate with such a terrible one as mine."

"Gilbert," she said, "if you repulse me now you will make me miserable for life. Oh, why will you not be open with you?" Cannot you see that I am in earnest when I say I wish to share your danger with you?"

I was silent for a few moments. In what way could I make her see how base a thing it would be on my part to pull her down into the maelstrom of misery that might at any day drag me to my doom? At last an idea occurred to me.

"Agnes," I said, "will you agree to a compromise? Will you promise me to take a year to think it over? If at the end of that time I am at liberty

I will go to your father, tell him my story as I have to-day told it to you, and, if he will still have anything to do with me, ask him for your hand. By that time I shall probably know my fate, you will be able to see things more clearly, and I shall not feel that I have taken advantage of your love and sympathy."

"I am content to be with you and to help you now."

"Believe me, you can help me best by keeping silent. It would be cruel to make me happy by consenting to what I wish?"

"If it will please you I will do so," she said, softly.

"God bless you, dear," I answered. And thus the matter was concluded.

CHAPTER XII.

Nearly a week had elapsed since I had made my confession to Agnes at the Falls, and in that time my life at Mr. Maybourne's intention to set out on his return journey to the South. During the whole of that time not one word had been said by Miss Maybourne regarding my story. But'if she did not refer to it in speech it was easy to see that the subject was never absent from her mind. On two occasions I found her in an agony of terror I got rid of the body—left it in the street in fact—and fled for my very life. Then I came and silently crept and asleep I tramped away into the country, and at a suburban station caught the early train to Southampton. On arrival there I booked my passage in the Fiji Princess for South Africa, and went on board. The rest you know. Now, Agnes, that you have heard my wretched story, can you see for yourself why I am so desirous of getting out of civilization as quickly as possible? Can you understand why I sell whether I was right or wrong in refusing to allow you to say you loved me? Perhaps you will judge me more harshly than I judge myself.

She looked up at me with terror-stricken face.

"But you did not mean to kill the man," she cried. "You repented—you did not mean it. You suppose—"

"If it had not been for me the man would not have died," I answered. "I was guarding the life of another man, out innocent of his death, however hard you try."

A look of fresh life darted into her face. It was as if she had been struck by a brilliant idea that might mean my salvation.

"But how do you know that you killed the man?" she asked. "Are you quite certain that he was dead when you looked at him?"

"Quite certain," I answered. "I examined him minutely with a candle. I have made enquiries since and elicited the fact that he has never been seen or heard since that awful night There have been advertisements in the papers offering rewards for any information concerning him."

She did not reply to this, only sat and rocked herself to and fro, her face once more covered in her hands. I knelt beside her, but did not dare, for very shame, to attempt to comfort her.

"What is it?" I enquired, as I approached him, for at the hour he was generally in the depths of the mine. "Has anything gone wrong."

"That's as ye care to take my words he answered, wheeling about and leaning me out of earshot of the house. There was something in his manner that frightened me, though I could not for the life of me have said why. When we reached the fence that separated my garden from the orchard I stopped, and leaning on the rails, once more asked him why he had come.

"I told ye a fortnight ago that there was trouble brewing for us with the natives," he said impressively "I warned ye a week ago that 'twas no better. Now I tell ye its close upon us, and if we're not prepared, God help us all."

"What do you mean? Don't speak in enigmas, man. Tell me straight out what your are driving at."

"Isn't that what I'm trying to do?" he said. "I tell ye the whole country's in a ferment. The Matabele are out, and in a few hours, if not before, we shall have proof of it."

"Good God man!" I cried, "how do you know this? And why did you not make me see the importance of it before?"

"Ye can lead a horse to the water but ye canna make him drink,' says the proverb," he answered. "Ye can tell a man of danger, but ye canna make him see it. An' so 'twas with ye. I told my message, a fortnight past, but 'twas only this minute I came to know how bad it really was."

"And how have you come to hear of it now?"

"Step this way an' I'll show ye."

He led me to a spot not far from the kitchen. On reaching it, he opened it and showed me a man stretched out upon a bed of sacks and grass. He was a white man, and seemed utterly exhausted.

"This man's name," said Mackinnon, as if he were exhibiting some human curiosity, "is Andrews. He's a prospector, and we've been acquent for years. Now tell your yarn, Andrews, and let Mr. Wrexford here see how bad the matter is".

"I've not much to tell, sir," said the man addressed, sitting up as he spoke. "It came about like this: I am a prospector, and I was out away back on the river there, never dreaming there was mischief in the wind. Then my boys began to drop hints that there was likely to be trouble, and I'd best keep my weather eye open. At first I didn't believe them, but when I got back to camp at mid-day to-day and found both my servants murdered, my bullocks killed, and my rifles and everything else of value stolen, I guessed who had done it. Fortunately, they had passed on without waiting for me, so I got into the saddle again and came here post haste to warn you. I tell you this, the Matabele are rising. The impi that murdered my men is under one of the king's sons, and for fear that they are not twenty miles distant from this spot. There can be no doubt that they are traveling this way. Those boys that deserted to Buluwayo is surrounded, while three more impis are traveling night and day with the same object in view. I now warn you of, namely, to cut off the advance of the troops being pushed forward to oppose them from the south."

"Do you mean this? On your oath, are you telling me the truth?"

"God strike me dead if I'm not," he answered, solemnly. Look at me, I've made my way in here as hard as a man could come, riding for his life. That should be proof enough; but if it isn't Mackinnon will speak for me, I'm sure."

"That I will," said Mackinnon. "I've known you long enough, and always found you a straightforward man."

I paused for a few moments deep in thought.

"How far do you think they are away from us as the present moment?"

"Not more than twenty miles at most, sir. I left my camp on the river about mid-day, and I've been here about a quarter of an hour. I came in as hard as I could ride; say five hours riding at twelve miles an hour, making a big detour of about twenty miles, to avoid them. That should have been fifteen and twenty miles away now if they did five miles an hour straight across country."

"And you're sure they mean war?"

"There's not a doubt of it, sir. I know the vermin too well by this time not to be certain of that."

"Then I must tell Mr. Maybourne at once. Come with me Mackinnon, and you too, Andrews, if you can manage it. We must hold a council of war and see what's best to be done."

I led them across the small paddock to my office, and then went on to the house to consult with my employer. I found his pacing up and down the verandah, looking rather disturbed.

"Mackinnon has been with you," he began, on seeing me. "I have been looking for you. I want a few moments' earnest conversation with you."

"And I with you, sir," I answered.

He led me beyond the verandah before he spoke again.

"You must hear me first. What I want to see you about is as important as life and death to us all. I have received a number of letters by the mail, and one all all warn me that there is likely to be trouble with the Matabele. The Chartered Company have seen it coming, I am told, and are taking all the necessary steps to secure life and property, but there is no knowing when the brutes may not be on us, and what time we may not do if they start with the upper hand. Now, you see, if I were alone I should be in no hesitation in immediately see it out—but there is Agnes to consider; and, with a woman in the question, one can think of twice before one ventures upon such a course."

"That is the very thing I came over to see you about, sir. Matters have has just reached me, and—well, to tell you the truth, we are in danger but this very minute. If you will step over to my office, I have a man there who has come in this morning within forty miles of this place, and he tells me they are advancing in our direction even now."

His face, for an instant, became deadly pale, and I noticed that he glanced nervously at the sitting-room door.

"Steady, Wrexford, for heaven's sake," he said. "Not too loud, or Agnes will hear. We must frighten her before we are absolutely obliged. Come to the office and let me see this man for myself."

Mackinnon walked over to my den where Mackinnon and Andrews were awaiting us.

The former nodded to the former and then looked searchingly at the latter.

"And how have you come to hear of it now?"

"Step this way an' I'll show ye."

He led me to a waterfall not near the kitchen. On reaching it, he opened it and showed me a man stretched out upon a bed of sacks and grass. He was a white man, and seemed utterly exhausted.

buckets which stood about the verandah. These were filled with some peculiar-looking fluid; and I enquired what it might be. I answer I was told that was oatmeal and water.

"If we are to fight," said this dandified fellow, "you will find it thirsty work. I shall put these buckets, which are at present useless places, so that you may assuage your thirst if occasion serves."

I remarked also that she had prepared a large quantity of lint in case it should be required, and had arranged with the servants to receive the verandah. Her courage put fresh heart into me, as without doubt it did into everyone else. Ere long I told her that she was braver than the boldest man amongst us, and she thereupon showed that she still had sufficient of the woman left in her to blush with pleasure at the compliment.

A Few Words to Housekeepers
—FROM—
Henry's Bookstore.

Are you going to do any wall papering this spring? If so, you will certainly gain by examining our stock and prices before you purchase. We have got the only entirely new stock in town. Last year we cleaned out the old remnants. Now we have new goods, new patterns, ranging from 4 cents to 50 cents per roll, with ceilings borders to match. Our sales so far have exceeded those of any previous year in the same period, because the patterns, the colorings, and the prices appeal to customers. Call and see, with the sample book, will have to show if intending purchasers will only look over our stock, and note the prices before buying, because we buy in quantities of from 100 to 500 of a pattern, and consequently get lower prices to start with. Then we get it in at lowest freight rates, while the pedler has to get his in small quantities by express, and the difference between freight and express charges is in itself a good profit. We can show our freight bill that we received nearly three tons at one shipment. Our patrons will only have to get the advantage of these differences.

We have a new stock of window shades, and will not allow any others to give better value at this price.

Our stock of Room Mouldings is larger than ever before, and the prices are lower than last year.

If you have any pictures to frame, we shall be pleased to show you our stock of mouldings, and can guarantee that in quality and prices no one can better.

You are invited to look over the samples—we will take pleasure in showing them, and quoting prices.

YARKER.

A splendid bale in two sections has just been packed by the Women's Auxiliary of the Church of England, Yarker, and will be duly shipped to the Rev. L. La Clare Wafford, P.O., Lake St. Martin, Manitoba. Members of the congregation put in the bale a pound of useful articles for the missionary.

The Parochial Card collection this year has so far reached $101.00, the largest in the history of the Parish. Well done, Yarker.

ABOUT THE TAXES.

Mr. Editor,—I wish to correct a misapprehension which is current on the streets to-day in regard to the powers of collector. I may say the collection of taxes is entirely in my hands, and the time for remittances has long gone by. I consider it necessary for me, as collector, to draw the line somewhere, I will understand my successors will be guided by war of further extension. I cannot accept of this, as a precedent without a business principle is valueless, and I must confess I cannot please in a financial way and your representatives unless you remit. I will have it distinctly understood, after the 30th April, all interest will be compulsory. Monies not remitted by Oct. 1st, and by mail must be handed in by October 1st, and by further notice will be forth-coming.

Spring Dress Goods.

This Dress Goods Store is in full readiness for whatever demands that may come for Easter gowns. Very fine imported goods are shown—exclusive stuffs. The range of materials at medium prices is exceptionally fine, in Grays, Blues, Creams, and the wanted spring shades. Plan your new costume now—at all events make sure of getting just what you want, while assortments are at their best.

LIGHT TWEEDS. These as you know have been scarce. We just received a case from the old country that fixes up our assortment. Good lookers at medium prices, 50c, 75c. 1.00 yd.

CREAMS. We have good choosing for you in Lustres, Serges, Cheviots, Eoliennes.

BLACKS. If in doubt about what shade to buy, you are safe in deciding on black. Not necessary to trim with black because we can give you lots of suggestions to brighten with color or white.

CORSETS.

Your new suit should be fitted over proper fitting corsets. We have trained, practical corset women here to explain the good points of the different models. Understand please that every good make of corset has points adapted to some women's help and comfort and it is our pleasure to give best service rather than to have anyone coaxed into buying a corset, that's right and best for thousands, might not suit that individual. If you wish we will fit you free of charge. If you have trouble to get corsets to fit, by all means ask for information at our corset department.

Gloria Silk Rain Proofed.

Gloria is a silk and wool material that has been used in the manufacture of umbrellas and parasols for several years. It was the first satisfactory material for wear that could take the place of all silk for appearance. A much alive manufacturer hit upon the idea of using Gloria for dresses. They turned out fine and now makers have produced them in likeable shades such as blues, greys, fawns, modes, blacks, reds. They have a rich dressy look when made into frocks, auto coats, travelling wraps, raincoats. Our price for a full range of colorings, 48 inches wide, $1.50 yard.

WOMEN'S AND GIRLS' SKIRTS
Ready to Wear for Easter.

Our Ready-to-wear Skirts of to-day are no relation to the type of skirts sold ready to wear a few seasons ago. We only handle such makers goods that we have proved reliable. We insist on all materials being shrunk before making and stitched with silk. We have such an immense range to choose from that it is easy to be pleased. The very popular light tweeds in the newest styles, $3.50 to $6.50. You cannot buy better made garments at any price. All sizes in stock from 22 inches long to 44 inches. Waist measure from 22 inch to 36 inch.

New Neckwear.

Ask any woman who knows and she will tell you that The Robinson Co. styles in neckwear and belts are the prettiest and most unusual in town. If we can possibly spare the window space we will make an extra display of Neckwear and Belts in Easter week.

The New Coats for Women are Here in Numbers.

Coats of tan and black running through a score of the best styles. The short coat seems to gain in favor for spring. Hard twisted Coverts in tans. Plain cloths for the black, 5.00, 7.50, 10.00, 12.50, 15.00.

The Best Place to Buy Your Carpets and House Furnishings.

That is the point to settle in your own mind before starting out to buy your new home furnishings and floor coverings. Any man, woman or child can see the leadership of The Robinson Co. carpet store in floor space and immensity of stocks carried. While the store's good work is to be seen in the finest homes in this section. The difference in stores depends on the stores right to first choice (for some store does get first choice). This courtesy of early choice is won through a firm's importance to the mill as a user and distributor of its goods. This advantage of first choice has long been ours with the great mills.

SPECIAL COLOR SCHEMES—If you have any color scheme or home decoration to carry out in the way of furniture covering, drapery or floor covering, etc., we will be pleased to submit you samples at your home and if necessary procure from the mills the desired color or fabric.

Men's Furnishings for Spring and Summer Carefully Chosen--Correct in Style.

We are building up a Men's Furnishing business that we are proud of. There are few wants that a man may have in the line of clothing and furnishings that cannot be satisfied at Robinson's. Last year's business was one third greater than the year before. Why does this steady growth keep us in this way? Simply because we have large assortments, we give values in every line that cannot be beaten and in some lines that cannot be equalled, and our guarantee is so broad that we freely give a new garment for one that fails or refund the money. We wish we had the space to tell you of all our varied lines but we have only room for a very few.

Men's Unlined Dog Skin Driving Gloves—in tan shades. This glove is the best dollar glove made in the world to-day. "Fownes", the maker, guarantee every pair. If they should not give you satisfaction we replace them with a new pair.

Men's Shirts—The famous Crescent Brand, famous as the best fitting and most comfortable shirt in Canada. All we ask is a trial. A new shirt for one that does not make good. Price range from 50c to 1.50 each. Many, many patterns, and each pattern multiplied by a full line of sizes.

Men's Hats—We are sole agents in Napanee for the celebrated Wakefield hat. Our special price is 2.00. They are the equal of any 2.50 hat on the market. We are also agents for the Valenza Hats, made in Italy, famous for their lightness and light in weight. They are high class and regularly sold at 3.50 and 4.00, every close as they can be sold we are putting the price at 3.00 each.

Easter Neckwear—The new shapes in all the newest shades, such an assortment as will please the most fastidious. The 50c neckwear has only to be seen to be appreciated. One customer came in to buy one and bought four, he was so delighted with the beautiful shades.

WANTED—At once, two good Pant Hands, one good first class Coat Maker. Apply at once.

—Dr. Bruce Smith, Inspector of Prisons, addressed the County Council yesterday afternoon in reference to the building of a house of refuge. This is the only county that has not complied with the law in this matter and while the Dr. was courteous and public in his remarks, he gave the members of the Council distinctly to understand that the provisions of the Act would have to be carried out. It will not be necessary to erect a $40,000 building, only such an establishment as will meet the requirements of the county. Probably $15,000 will cover the expense. We understand the matter will be taken up at the June session.

MR. JOHN W. GREMS.

On Friday, March 23d, another of Selby's oldest and most highly respected residents passed peacefully away. John W. Grems, the subject of this sketch, was born in New York state Jan 6th, 1824, and was therefore in his 82 years of age. When he was but a lad his father and family removed to Canada, settling in Adolphustown. A few years later his father died, and upon the young man devolved the responsibility of caring for a widowed mother and children. This trust he bravely fulfilled, bringing to it that resolution and fidelity which characterized all his after years. He chose as his occupation that of a carpenter, and for many years in several of the towns of Central Ontario, as architect and builder, none ranked higher than he. Many beautiful homes to-day still bear witness to his skill and ability. During the early boom of 1882-4 at Winnipeg he superintended the building of several handsome residences for Dr. Rolls, of Brighton, Ont.

Mr. Grems lived for some thirty years at Brighton, taking a lively interest in all that pertained to the welfare of the town, and taking also his share in its local and municipal honors. In the early years of his manhood, while at work, he sustained an internal injury which left him a sufferer for the remainder of his days. But he turned an unflinching face towards the world and few were of the suffering so carefully concealed, although in many ways it left its influence upon his life.

In 1846 he married Catherine, daughter of the late Wm. Wallace, of Richmond, who still survives him, after having met you ever sixty years the changing scenes of life together. Some years ago the once splendid strength forced him to give up the occupation of a carpenter, and about the same time they settled at Selby.

On Monday paralysis laid one hand and arm helpless by his side, closed his eyes, and silenced his tongue, but the fatal summons did not come until on Friday the end came. But the vigorous mind remained clear to the very last, and through the medium of the single word and the one time strong right hand, he greeted and said farewell to friends, expressed his last wish, and gave evidence of his trust in Jesus and his hope of Heaven.

On Sabbath afternoon, at the home, the Rev. R. Duke conducted the funeral service, and his strong thoughtful words on the subject of death, life and immortality were much appreciated. Then the remains were laid away in the vault at Napanee to await interment.

SUFFERED FOR FIVE YEARS WITH KIDNEY AND LIVER TROUBLE.

"I suffered for five years with kidney and liver trouble, which caused very pains across the back and a blinding headache. I had dyspepsia and was so constipated that I could not move my bowels without a cathartic. I was cured by Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets and have been well now for six months," says Mr Arthur S. Strickland, of Chattanooga, Tenn. For sale at The Red Cross Drug Store. 14d

KENNETTSWOOD STATION.

The "grim reaper" has been unusually busy of late in our midst garnering the ripest sheaves. Francis Amey, a life long resident, passed away Sunday, 25th March, after a few days' illness. He was in his 81st year. Two sisters, Mrs. C. Amey and Mrs. E. Parrott, mourn the loss of a kind brother. His funeral took place from Union church Tuesday following. Rev. Mr. Fairlie (Presb.) Kingston, preached a very impressive sermon. The remains were placed in Mill Haven vault to be interred later in the family plot, Union cemetery.

Friday last John Thomas answered the summons after a long and tedious illness. A brother and sister survive. Rev. Mr. McTier (Anglican) Bath, took charge of the funeral service Sunday last of his late home in 3d concession, thence to Millhaven vault. A large concourse of friends testified to the esteem in which he was held.

The last to succumb being Mrs. Lavina Burnett, relict of the late William Burnett, Odessa, who predeceased her 29 years. About 20 years ago she suffered a stroke of paralysis, which left her in a helpless condition, at times a great sufferer, bearing her affliction with christian patience and fortitude, looking forward joyfully to the call home. She spent her declining years with her sons at Odessa, and daughter, Mrs. W. Doyle, of this place, who ministered to her every want. Three daughters and two sons survive, Mrs. Mix, Watertown, N.Y., Mrs. Vandeusen, Lowville, N.Y., Mrs. W. Doyle and George and Herbert, Odessa, mourn the loss of a kind and loving mother. Mrs. Burnett was in her 71st year. The funeral took place from her son-in-law's residence, W. Doyle, on Thursday at 2 p.m. to Millhaven vault. A brother and two sisters also mourn her loss, George Miller and Mrs. W. Hinch, Millhaven, Mrs. Vanwinkle, Toronto.

HAY BAY.

The ice is about out of the bay and ducks are flying.

Henry Smith had the raising for his fine drive house on Thursday. It is going to be a dandy.

A. C. Parks and wife and A. T. Parks and wife spent Thursday at W. H. Cadman's, Gosport.

Chas. B. Parks is back on the farm.

Mrs. A. Peterson entertained a few of her friends on Friday evening to a sugar party. Every one enjoyed themselves.

Two ferry boats on Hay Bay this year and say there won't be two next year; mighty doubtful if there is one. Instead of running opposition ferry boats, Mr. Woodcock and the town of Napanee should have built a suspension bridge across the bay. A bridge would not stop the duckling as a couple of ferry boats running loose are surely going to do. Besides if Napanee decides to build a free electric railway to south Adolphustown a bridge will have to be built anyway.

Chas. Parker has returned from Watertown.

B. Outwater has got his large sugar bush tapped and is making syrup and syrup every day.

Woman's Missionary society held there annual election of officers in Hay Bay church on Wednesday. A large number of members and speakers were present. Officers elected as follows:

President—Mrs. Bogart.
First Vice President—Mrs. Nolan.
Second Vice President—Mrs. Miller.
Secretary—Mrs. Peterson.
Corresponding Secretary—Mrs. Spencer.
Treasurer—Mrs. Parks.

COLEBROOK.

A pleasing event took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lee on Sunday, when Miss Mary Girvin was united in marriage to Albert Been, of Yarker, formerly of this place. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Mr. Farnsworth, in the presence of a few relatives and friends. The bride is one of our most highly esteemed young ladies, and the groom is a prosperous farmer, Mr. and Mrs. Been will take up house keeping at their home near Yarker.

We are sorry to say that Mr. Sutton, who has been confined for a few days, is not gaining as rapidly as is hoped for.

Selby Charles Been is making preparations for the erection of a new house.

Miss L. Riddell is spending a few days at Yarker.

Miss Laura Lockwood, Enterprise, returned home after spending a few days the guest of Miss Bertie Huffman.

SELL YOUR COLD FOR $1.00?

You surely won't stop at a dollar bill to cure that horrid, sniffling cold? Go to any druggist and get a "Catarrhozone" and your cold will be a thing of the past. There is almost witchery in the swift way Catarrhozone kills colds. But when you consider the penetrating, healing and antiseptic qualities of Catarrhozone perhaps it's not so wonderful. Certainly there is no remedy half so prompt for colds and catarrh as Catarrhozone. Refuse a substitute and insist on having only "Catarrhozone."

WILTON.

A quiet event took place last Wednesday evening. March 28th, when Miss Estelle H. Nelson was united in marriage to Mr. William Forsythe. The wedding was of a very quiet nature owing to the death of the bride's brother, the late C. A. Nelson, in February. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. G. S. Milligan, Harrowsmith. Mr. and Mrs. Forsythe left for Buffalo to visit the bride's cousin, Mrs. E. L. Brown. The groom's gift to the bride was a gold locket and chain.

Another of our young men, Mr. Percy Shibley, son of Mr. R. B. Shibley, was married to Miss Myrtle Hughes, Harrowsmith, last Wednesday morning. Mr. and Mrs. Shibley left for Kentreal on the noon train. Mr. and Mrs. B. B. Shibley gave a reception for them on their return to Harrowsmith.

Mr. W. C. Bullock, who has been assisting in the general store of the late C. A. Nelson for the past year, left Tuesday morning for his home in Lyons. Mrs. Bullock and children expect to go after Easter.

Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Shibley are moving in with their daughter, Mrs. C. A. Nelson, who will continue to manage the store.

Mr. Ruggles Storms is very low and no hopes are entertained for his recovery.

John Babcock is also very ill.

A reception service was held in the Methodist church on Sunday morning, when about twenty-five of the new converts of the recent revival were received into church membership.

SELF-CONTROL'S VALUE

WHY THIS VIRTUE IS SO IMPORTANT FOR A SUCCESSFUL LIFE.

RULER OF HIS OWN SPIRIT

Man Who Can Capture the Citadel of His Own Heart and Hold His Will and Life in Subjection is the Higher Law Has Done a Noble Work in Himself—A Vivid Comparison.

Entered according to Act of Parliament of Canada, in the year 1906, by Frederick Diver, Toronto, in the Dept. of Agriculture, Ottawa.

Los Angeles, Cal., April 1.—In this sermon the preacher deals with one of the familiar evils of our social and business life, the curse of ungovernable temper, and shows how the misdirected energy of those who are victims of the habit may be transformed into a blessing. The text is Proverbs xvi. 32, "He that is slow to anger is better than the mighty and he that ruleth his spirit than he that taketh a city."

Popular enthusiasm is most easily kindled when the admiring multitudes are allowed to bend the knee before a human idol clothed in a soldier's uniform. The most inspiring call for the common people is the bugle blast sounding the cavalryman's charge. "To-day, the most beautiful monument of Edinburgh is the one erected to Sir Walter Scott, the writer, and in London Hall Caine would immortalize the author, not the statesman, of a single book. He would rush into the Turkish officials presence when anything went wrong, crying, 'Stop that at once! Do you; it must be done, or else our warships will soon be bombarding your capital!' But that is not the kind of fame and I are going to make our enemies bow before us. We will not subdue them by torrents of invective, but only by kind words. "It is the angry tongue that breaketh the bone," says the Brilliant Polish Jew. "The long quarrel is a prince persuaded, and a soft tongue breaketh the bone." Ah, my friends, you will overcome your worst enemies, do you? Then do it not with a sledge hammer, but with the power of kindness. When a person hates you or ill treats you, then systematically go forth to win him over by love and forgiveness.

I was never more impressed with what love and kindness will accomplish when studying the life of Lincoln. His gentleness did more to save the country and give us a united nation than all the bullets ever fired or all the swords ever drawn. His policy of conquering his enemies by love astonished all the world. Guerrilla bands, for which the Confederacy was in nowise responsible, had captured a Union officer and hanged one a major, the other two privates, and shot them down in cold blood. Gen. Rosecrans, to avenge the death of these three Confederates, one a major and two privates, should be shot. One of those so sentenced by the cruel hand of Lyons. No sooner did Lincoln hear of it than he sent a telegram ordering a reprieve until he could look into the matter and pass upon the action of the court-martial. When he got there none he would resign. This pardoning policy of the President was absolutely wrong the army.

What did Lincoln do? Did he discharge Rosecrans? No. After he had looked into the matter he sent a letter to the commander which went thus:

Dear Gen. Rosecrans—I have personally examined all the papers in the Lyons case, and I cannot see that it is a matter of executive interference, so I will turn it over to you, with the full confidence that you will do what is just and right, only begging you, my dear general, to do nothing in the case for the past, only what is necessary to insure security for the future, and reminding you that it is not the policy against a foreign foe, but our brothers, and that our aim is not to break their spirits, but only to bring them back to their old allegiance. Conquer by kindness, if you can, is the desire of your truly yours, ABRAHAM LINCOLN."

Do you wonder when Gen. Rosecrans received that letter and telegram not executing Major Lyons? Do you wonder that Lincoln's policy of love was the chief weapon of conquering the south and the south? Do you not also realize that if you try the power of love and kindness you can change many of your enemies into friends? "Conquer by kindness" was the policy of the great President. "Conquer by sternness" is the teaching of my text. Are you and I ready to choke back that sharp word we are so willing to hurl at our enemies in an angry fit of temper?

But I not only state that an ungovernable temper makes us more unkind, more hateful and bitter than ever before, but that an ugly temper reacts and strikes back at ourselves for when you ought to love best on earth, your own friends and dear ones. And of all contemptible, loathsome, despicable actions I think one of the most despicable is for men and women to go off in a pet or fit of sulks merely because something goes wrong in the house and thereby to make wives or husbands and children live in a perfect pandemonium of fear. And when I speak thus I am not talking about the occasional fret in one merely theoretical. In every church I have served as pastor there has been in my congregation perhaps at least three or four families living such a life as I have described on account of the ungovernable temper of one of its members.

The other day I had this evil brought to my attention in a very forcible way. The telephone bell rang, and a gentleman said: "I am a stranger to you. I am in great trouble. Can I come and see you at once?" "Yes," I answered. "Are on the car and come up." No sooner did he enter my parlor than his eyes filled with tears, and he was so troubled as he said, "Mr. Talmage, my wife and my two daughters have left me, and I want you to help me to get them to come back." "Do you drink?" I asked. "No, I never drink." "Are you a gambler?" "No," he answered. "Are you untrue to your marriage vows?" "No," he again answered. "What is the matter?" "Well, I will tell you." Then he told me a long story. He was a pounced upon by a waiting foe.

Now, He under the very best conditions is such an awful and arduous struggle that you are very prompted to make any mistake on account of an unconquerable temper. When we are in contact with a fellow who is not afford to let our contempt get the better of us, as did Goliath when he went forth to attack David. If you do, just as sure as you live you will place yourself at the mercy of your antagonist. Then you are prompted for life's work because something goes wrong or as an injustice is done you have no right to lose your temper. Every time a man lets his anger get the better of him he does the devil and his enemies nearly as much as he damages himself. If you would be great in your influence over others, you must be great in your power over yourself. This means that, no matter how great the provocation, you must learn to suffer injustice in silence. You must learn to bare your back for a castigation if you deserve it and gently hold your tongue even when the lash is fetching the heart's blood.

The ungovernable temper is to be dreaded and feared for a second reason. No sooner does a man lose his temper than he drives away all those who would naturally come forward as his defenders. He spikes the guns of those who would be his protectors. All through the world there is a desire to see fair play. If when going down into the arena a big boy whipping a small boy you naturally take the small boy's part. And so in this great wide world if the masses of people see that you are being abused they will take your side if you yourself are willing and ready to suffer in silence.

The ungovernable temper is to be feared and dreaded for still another reason—the bitter tongue never made an enemy less bitter; the angry retort never blunted an enemy's sword; nor threw aim off his guard or made him less energetic for your destruction. We have read about a great antagonist who was a man of such violent temper that even the grand vizier of the Turkish Sultan would tremble before him. He would rush into the Turkish official's presence when anything went wrong, crying, "Stop that at once! Do you; it must be done, or else our warships will soon be bombarding your capital!" But that is not the kind of fame and I are going to make our enemies bow before us. We will not subdue them by torrents of invective, but only by kind words. "It is the angry tongue that breaketh the bone," says the Brilliant Polish Jew. "The long quarrel is a prince persuaded, and a soft tongue breaketh the bone." Ah, my friends, you will overcome your worst enemies, do you? Then do it not with a sledge hammer, but with the power of kindness. When a person hates you or ill treats you, then systematically go forth to win him over by love and forgiveness.

CANAAN.

Our school was closed for a while on account of our teacher, Miss M. Gates, being ill.

Mr. and Mrs. S. Crook spent last Sunday at Mr. Chas. Daughtry's, Mrs. E. Wagar.

Mrs. Fred Eagar has been spending a week with her daughter, Mrs. A. Wagar, Echo Lake.

Mrs. Frank Linham spent a few days visiting friends at Brooke.

Mr. and Mrs. Jackson, while spending a week near Perth, purchased a fine thoroughbred stallion.

Mr. and Mrs. George Raymond are all smiles; it's a girl.

Messrs. Emery Smith and Arthur Cronk have gone to Cobalt. New Ontario, to spend the summer.

Mrs. Titus Wagar, who has been ill with pneumonia, has gone to Kingston General Hospital.

Mr. Bert Wagar, who has been taking a course at operating, at Toronto, is home.

Mr. Solomon Cronk lost a valuable cow one day last week.

Mrs. Cronk's little son George, who was very sick with pneumonia, is recovering.

Mr. and Mrs. Will. McCumber spent Sunday at Mr. Chas. Daughtry's, Mrs. E. Walker, Parham.

Mr. Simon Jackson was the guest of Mrs. M. Cronk.

Mr. Thos. Read had the circular saw cutting wood for him two or three days last week.

Mr. E. Vanvolkenburgh's saw mill was done enough to prove that you are sincere in your repentance. Give part of your weekly wages, and I will not ask you to give it all, and that money will help her support her daughters while you are away. Then, when your repentance is an evident fact, she, I know, will be back and live with you, for she is a good woman. "Yes," he answered, "she is a good woman."

I do not know the history of all your homes, but I do know this: Some are homes in which it is absolutely impossible for peace and love to dwell. Why? Because in some of those homes there is a father or a mother or a sister or a brother who has never learned to control the temper. No sooner does anything go wrong in those homes than bitter words come to the lips and sharp sayings sting and lacerate, until life itself becomes a miserable burden to every one around them. God forgive you, my brother, my sister, if you have been one of those who, on account of a vile temper, become a curse to all about them.

What are the causes of an ungovernable temper? There are two, and both are directly or indirectly for the most part attributable to the parents of the man or woman having the vile temper. Father and mother sometimes are impatient with their children when they raise them. They do not make their children obey. They do not teach them that "yes" means "yes" and "no" means "no." When their children begin to cry or to pout or to rebel against something the indulgent mothers and fathers say, "Oh, well, go ahead and do it, for that will stop your crying." The result is that many children never learn to subject their wills to a higher will. Allowed to indulge in fits of temper as babies, they are learning how to sulk as men. As spoiled children they kick and scream because they can not have what they want, and as adults they will lash themselves into fury when they do not have their own way in the home or in the store. Solomon was right when he said, "Train up a child in the way he should go, and when he is old he shall not depart from it." A large percentage of ungovernable temper is charged directly or indirectly against wrong parental training. Teach your children to obey. Teach them to recognize your rights, and other people must respect their rights.

The most great cause of the ungovernable temper is the custom of teasing, which is to be seen everywhere around us and especially in the home. We find boys teasing boys, girls teasing girls, men and women teasing men and women, men and women teasing children and even fathers and mothers delighting in tantalizing their own babies. We find that people are often more pleased at hearing other people swear and stamp their feet in rage and in seeing their eyes flash and their fists clinched than in seeing them smile and be happy. Beware, O man, how you make the angry passions of some one else leap and blaze! Remember that you cannot be true to your loved ones if you suffer their baser passions to assume the sway.

In closing, I would again read to you my text, "He that is slow to anger is better than the mighty and he that ruleth his spirit than he that taketh a city." You see, it is written in the present tense. It means for you to learn to govern your temper now. Perhaps by laxity of past training you have been guilty of this sinful habit. Will you not now begin systematically to curb your evil temper as a general lays out a campaign to capture a city? To say you are not able to do it is to your own strength. That is true, but by the help of Jesus Christ you can conquer. And let me encourage you in reminding you that this temper is a conquered or conquering which, if by the help of God you can bring under control, will fit you for useful service in his cause. Are you not ready to say, Oh, master, take my temper and rule it henceforth by thine own loving power?

A SPRING TONIC.

Weak, Tired and Depressed People Need a Tonic at This Season to Purify the Blood.

Spring blood is bad blood. Indoor life during the winter months is responsible for weak, watery, impure blood. You need a tonic to thin out the blood in the spring just as much as you need a new suit or a new overcoat for the summer. In spring the bad blood begins to show itself in many ways, some it breeds pimples and eruptions. In others it manifests itself as severe headaches, a miserable appetite, perhaps twinges of rheumatism, a good-for-nothing, healthgiving tonic in all the world is Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Every dose helps to make new, rich, red, healthgiving blood, which reaches every tissue and every organ in the body, bringing health, strength and energy to weak, despondent, ailing men and women. Here is proof. Mrs. Chas. Sherburn, Aylesford Station, N. S., says: "For the past ten years Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is the only medicine I have taken when I found I needed a medicine. Last spring I was feeling poorly, was weak, easily tired and depressed. I had three boxes and they made me feel like a new person. I would advise all who are troubled as I was to use Dr. Williams' Pink Pills." Every dose of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills will increase the energy and new strength. To those who may be suffering from any of the ailments due to bad blood—a fair treatment of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for pale people will be found worth a box or six boxes for $2.50.

A school teacher wrote the following sentence on the blackboard for the benefit of the young grammar class:

"The horse and cow is in the lot."

She waited quite patiently for some one in the class to tell her what was wrong with the sentence. Finally little Sammy, in the back row, held up his hand.

"Well, Sammy, tell us what is wrong with the sentence?"

"Please, ma'am, you should put the lady first," was his reply.

A Cure for Costiveness— Costiveness comes from the refusal of the excretory organs to perform their proper duties regularly from contributing causes usually considered slight. Ayer's Pannelee's Vegetable Pills, prepared on scientific principles, are so compounded that certain ingredients in them pass through the stomach and act upon the bowels to remove their torpor and arouse them to proper activity. Many thousands of persons have proved to their satisfaction by their frequency.

1.—asked—Mrs. Schoppen — You say this silk is only 75 cents a yard? Clerk—Yes, regular $1.50 value. Quite decolette, isn't it?

Mrs. Schoppen—Decollete? Clerk—Yes; cut low in front.

Nature's Storehouse—There are Medical experiments here that show conclusively that there are medicinal virtues in even ordinary herbs, roots and grasses which, put into them a value that cannot be estimated. It is a wonderful fact that Nature provided a cure for every disease which neglect and ignorance have visited upon man. However, there is one herb well known as Parmelee's Vegetable Pills, distilled from roots and herbs, and a sovereign remedy in curing all disorders of the liver.

Miss Casey—Has yer husband any infirmities?

Mrs. Hogan—Bigobs, he's under it all the time.

Last Guest — "Say, young man, the gas-eating slot machine in the parlor is a rank fraud. I dropped a nickel in it and received a printed slip telling me my age was 40, and I'm only 20!"

Clerk—Clerks' pay, boarding, etc., but that machine is for ladies only."

I Will Prolong Life—Dr. Soule, the Specialist, now in his office in Wilde's Florida, whether he went for the purpose of prolonging life or not, says: "Fountain of perpetual youth," said to exist in some unknown country, Wilde's Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil will prove perpetual youth. It will remove the bodily pains which make people old before their time, and lengthen the days of those who use it.

"Why, young man," said the sternfaced, "you certainly don't think I would be foolish enough to let my penniless youth like you marry my daughter, do you?"

"Well, it's up to you," rejoined the poor but happy youngster. "It's a conch that no rich young man would marry a girl as homely as she is."

Worms derange the whole system. Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator deranges worms and gives rest to the sufferer. It only costs 25 cents to try it and be convinced.

A lady writes, "I was enabled to remove the corns, root and branch, by the use of Holloway's Corn Cure." Others who have tried it have the same experience.

In its initial stages a cold is a trivial ailment easily cured if taken but many neglect it and the result is often the development of distressing victories of the bronchial tubes and lungs that reading Life miserable for the unhappy victim. CALIFORNIA LETTER.

Oakland, Cal., March 27th, 1906.

Dear Beaver,—The Beaver is a welcome visitor to many visitors in California. Mr. and Mrs. C. Gibbard, Mr. and Mrs. G. Gibbard, Mr. and Mrs. John Shaw, Mrs. Mc-Leod and her daughter Jessie, natives of others are witnesses of this fact, and I to-day found another enthusiastic admirer, viz., Mrs. Harry J. Pinkham, who is a daughter of one of your friends, Archie Downey, of Napanee. Mrs. Pinkham is a grand daughter of one of our old friends, John Hall, of North Fredericksburgh. I called on Mrs. Pinkham and family on Sunday morning. They are nicely and comfortably situated, in a nice home and in a fine neighborhood. They will make good citizens, and are good citizens, and we are glad to welcome them.

Our cities of San Francisco, Oakland, Berkeley and Alameda are full of Easterners who are enjoying our ideal climate. I am often questioned why your country with her beautiful bays, lakes and rivers is not visited by many thousands of people from the United States during the summer. You have the climate, and no where can you find more beautiful scenery than along both sides of the Bay of Quinte, from Trenton to Kingston. The North shore of Lake Ontario from Toronto to Niagara Falls and from the Rice Lake Harbor is one continuous line of beauty. Then thanks near Wallington, if in the United States would be populated during the summer months with many thousands. Napanee River, Hay Bay, Varty Lake, White Lake, Lake Ontario, are all perfect inducements for pleasure, and recreation resorts unsurpassed on any where. The only excuse I can see is the lack of enterprise, but you will have the money.

If some of our people would incorporate a company and beautify and build near every lake, river or bay, the result would be hundreds of your American cousins would spend the summer there and spend their surplus cash among your own people.

I believe if some enterprising men would build a summer hotel on the shores of Varty Lake, plant trees all around said lake, making a park in said row for a hundred feet, you would have a resort which would be a credit to your people, and be as popular as many on the south side of the Great Lakes. Varty Lake is a beautiful body of water, and so accessible by rail. Wherever we have such beautiful lakes they are made popular resorts, and the people flock thither, build beautiful and comfortable summer residences and spend months. months on said lake, small steamers and row boats are constantly in use, our farmers and others meet and made young; and as the years roll by we could in the language of Robert Burns, say:

"Thrice's naething like the honest nappy!
Whan'll ye e'er see men sae happy,
Or women sonsie, saft and happy
As those we meet and marry.
As them wha like to taste the drappie
In glass or horn!

I remember on several occasions while I was invited to and were at a sugar party, about this time of the year, and became the guest of a Mr. Storrer, who lived on the Bay shore, and I wish I could repeat the visit. I am fond of Canadian Maple Sugar, and some genial old friend or friends would join together and send me a fine barrel of maple sugar, how I would in the words from one of your poets say,

Your friendship much can make me blest—
O, why that bliss destroy!
Why use the only, one request
You know I will deny.

Sincerely yours,
W. S. WILLIAMS.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

You want to buy Hirtzes' Acme Stock Food and Condition Powders, for your cattle and horses. This is the best on the market.

F. W. VANDUSEN, Sole Agent, Selby.

ADOLPHUSTOWN.

We are having very bad weather to follow such a delightfully mild winter, and it is causing a good deal of sickness around us, but fortunately no deaths, and with the increase in the days, some are getting better who were confined to bed, that is we have not much room for complaint over a little bad weather to fall up the spring.

Several weddings have also occurred and rumor says more in the near future.

A man here wants the County to enforce the scott act on all vehicles even submitting to a 5-inch tire on his buggy, that we may have good roads. Well, Mr. Editor, good roads are a fine thing, but such a principle to get them as our friend advances is like trying to reap before you sow. The cause of our bad roads is the dairy industry. The heaviest of loads of milk are drawn daily over every nook and corner of the highway of our country, from early spring to late in the fall, through every storm of the season, and the consequence is something dreadful—the roads are kept in an almost impassable state of ruts and ruin. The solution to the problem of good roads is in my opinion to first make them good, and then keep them good and that takes money. And the those that dance must pay the fiddler, the man that use and destroy the roads I think should keep them in repair. I would propose that the legislation be asked to tax farmers sending milk to factories a certain amount per hundred pounds of milk, such per purpose of making and keeping in repair the roads, as all other traffic and travel sinks into insignificence to the hauling of milk. Such is my opinion.

A splendid dock has been built at Thompson's Point, through contributions of Napanee merchants and steam boat men, and others, and a great convenience is again established.

A canning factory is talked of here and may go. I hope so, for there is plenty of material to work up, even what Picton or Napanee can take. Another enterprising man is needed here with a hay press for baling hay for market, as the old hay dealers of Belleville, who used to take our hay away by the hundreds of tons, are dead.

The Cobalt district will sink into insignificance with its silver to the Fredrick House and Abbitibi district, where great quantities of diamonds and gold have been found by the survey parties of the G. T. R. and are even previous by the O.L.S. parties, that are now through my locations for veterans, got four of them in the bush for the precious jewels, as well as the land being covered with silver and valuable timber, as I guess we have the new map of the locality. The Fredrick House is by lake and river is 90 miles northwest of Cobalt, and Lake Abbitibi and river—just 90 miles miles from that, and the G.T.P. parties up along these places and the G.T.R. are to commence with the G.T.P. at this point. The latter, Mr. S. is already laid out the line for and trains running twice a week this fall and next to the end of June as he is completed.

Great interest is being taken over the trial going on at Cobourg, for cash prizes, for the best apples shown. Little apples.

We hope to see the Ontario Government pass the act introduced to make it compulsory on men going into contents of their medicine on the wrapper, and let the people see what they are swallowing. The Government has done very good work in the greatest credit from the people of any Legislature that has ever been established in Ontario. Glad to see they are to educate our doctors for our allopathy, say let us go without trial of quackery.

MUST HAVE THE BEAVER

Melita, Man., March 9th, 1906.

To the Editor.—I suppose you are waiting for a renewal from me for The Beaver, which I believe is due by the last of March. I do not want to miss a copy of The Beaver by waiting to send my subscription the last minute, as I find that it takes a week west from Napanee last March I received two or three letters from my old home. It gives me a great pleasure to read the news from there and think of writing. As long as I stay west I will not be able to enjoy that if unless I have The Beaver. Some weeks I have got pretty homesick, and when The Beaver arrived it seemed to revive life and energy again into me.

I suppose you would like to hear of a few news from the west. In the first place, I have enjoyed myself greatly, and would advise any young men to take a trip to the West for the beginning to go west. I have taken up a homestead in the Province of Saskatchewan, north of Regina, situated near the city of Moosejaw and Lake, in the Last Mountain Valley. My quarter position will be Saskatchewan, forty miles from my homestead. There is a railway being built from Regina, will most likely run within a mile or two of me by next summer or fall.

The winter out this way has been very severe; any amount of snow. It closed up about the fifteenth of November, and we have had sleighing ever since, only a few days that it rained slowly for about an hour, for the first since it froze up.

About political affairs. Most of the people are down upon the present Government at Ottawa, especially Sir Wilfrid Laurier. For I have heard strong Liberals say they would not vote again for him.

I am sending along with my yearly subscription of one dollar for The Beaver a few souvenir cards of Melita, and its surrounding.

I remain,
JAS. H. DELONG.

DIAMOND DYES

Will Dye Any Article of Clothing From Feathers to Stockings.

The Only Package Dyes That Make Fast and Unfading Colors.

Feathers, ribbons, silk ties, dress silks, shirt waists, dresses, coats, capes, jackets and shawls can be dyed at home, with Diamond Dyes so that they will look like new. Try a package of Diamond Dyes, and see what a bright, beautiful, non-fading color it will make, with but little trouble.

Diamond Dyes are the greatest money savers of the age, as many a woman with one or two ten cent packages of these dyes has dyed her old dress a lovely and fashionable color so as to save the expense of a new one. Partly worn clothing can be made over for the little ones, and by dyeing it with Diamond Dyes no one would recognize that the goods and suits were not new.

Diamond Dyes are adapted to many uses besides simply dyeing old clothing. Diamond Dyes give a new life and usefulness to curtains, furniture coverings, draperies, carpets, etc. Beware of imitation and common pack age dyes; ask for the "Diamond" and see that you get them.

FROST LOCKS

Make a Fence of Strength

The heaviest, strongest wires made can't make a strong fence unless the locks are as strong as the wires. A fence, like a chain, is only as strong as its weakest spot.

The New Frost Lock and Frost Wedge Lock are the most unyielding parts of a Frost Fence. They make the whole fence as strong as the strongest wire.

We guarantee to repair—free of charge—any Frost Fence that goes wrong

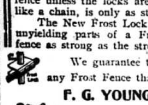
PAGE FENCING

THE BEST IS THE CHEAPEST

When you buy a knife for instance, you consider the quality of the steel in the blade. The biggest unbiased test ever made necessarily the best. Now there is just as much difference in the quality and strength of the fence wire as there is in a knife blade or razor. The Page Co. use a high carbon steel wire, which though it costs you but little more, is fifty per cent. (50%) stronger than wire in other fences. The lightest PAGE fence is as strong as the heaviest of other makes.

Notice the lock in PAGE "EMPIRE" FENCE. You may have noticed also that other fences are crimped. The PAGE wire is "COILED," not crimped.



THE LOCK IN PAGE "EMPIRE" FENCES

Besides the extra strength and superior workmanship, PAGE FENCES are dipped in a special white paint, which on top of the best of galvanizing, will lengthen the life of wire for years. And also, this white coating makes wire much more sightly.

Owing to the great strength and elasticity of PAGE fencing, one-third less posts are required, thus reducing the cost of the fencing.

As you get in PAGE FENCES one-half more fence strength, greater protection against rust, better workmanship, better appearance, use less posts, can you afford to use other fences, even though you could buy them for one-half the price of the PAGE? But really ours cost you little, if any more. 408

Easier for Women.

How many women fairly groan under too much work? How many despair of ever getting through washing milk things? How many say, "Oh, if I just had fewer pans, crocks and cans, I could read, write or sew more, or even take a little rest each day."

An Easier Time

Ask your husband to make the dairy work as per cent. easier, so per cent. neater so per cent. more pleasant, and so per cent. more profitable by using a Sharples Tubular Cream Separator. Until you try the Tubular you can't imagine the difference it makes. It skims the milk immediately after milking—there's no milk standing around—no cans and pans to wash. The Tubular is so simple and convenient. Come with your husband and let us take a Tubular apart for you.

IN MEMORIAM.

The many friends of Miss Margaret J. Evans, formerly of Croydon, were greatly shocked and pained upon hearing the very sad news of her death, which occurred in Buffalo, on Wednesday, March 21st. Margaret was a most estimable young lady, and being possessed of a bright and amiable manner, ever won the hearts and esteem of all who had the pleasure of forming her acquaintance. She will be much regretted, but as she had been always a most faithful Christian and had earnestly worked for an eternal home in God's Kingdom, those that loved her here are consoled by the though, that she is now enjoying the reward. May her soul rest in peace. Much sympathy is expressed for the bereaved family.

REVIVAL AT CENTREVILLE.

The Methodist church, Centreville, is now in the midst of a glorious revival which is being conducted by Rev. F. A. Scott, evangelist. The meetings here, with all things considered, bid fair to excel the great series just closed at Enterprise, where upwards of one hundred and fifty professed conversion and a score or more believers testified to heart purity.

Though the meetings have been in progress only eight nights, over fifty have already been at the altar and confessed Christ. Several believers have sought purification of heart, and can now say experimentally, "Blessed are the pure in heart; for they shall see God."

Notwithstanding the stormy weather and extremely bad roads last week, people flocked in from all directions. The church and surrounding community have been wonderfully stirred by the convicting power of the Holy Spirit. People are brought to feel that the "Arm of God" is not shortened, that his saving grace is mighty to convert while his sanctifying grace is all sufficient to cleanse from all sin. "If we confess our sins, He is faithful and just to forgive us our sins and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness." The meetings are expected to close here Sunday night, and great results are looked for during the remaining services. These great victories with all the praise and glory, belong to God, who alone is able to make possible, through his power, human achievement. May His kingdom ever come and His will ever be done.

INCUBATORS AND BROODERS.

J. R. Graham.

The hatching season is at hand and those who contemplate raising over two hundred chicks will find incubators and brooders more convenient than the natural method, and at the same time they can hatch their chickens early which means a better chance of getting eggs next winter.

There are a few points that need consideration in artificial incubating and brooding.

The incubator should be operated where the air is pure the air in the room where the machine is run will absorb odor due to the smell of kerosene, of dressing wood, or vegetables, the room is not a good place for the machine. The machine may hatch fairly well but to raise the chicks is another question. Those made of chicks are ruined by being brooded in rooms where odors especially if very moist.

The room should be dry, especially a hot air make, must not be run in a direct draft. Cold air will chill the chicks as well to have four or more thermometers and place them in different parts of the egg tray before putting the eggs in, to make sure your machine has no "hot spots." Raise or lower the ends of the machine if the heats at least within a degree and a half of each other. If a hot spot is found in the centre, this can be screened by attaching a cloth or a piece of metal. Keep the egg tray or egg chamber. This will usually cause the heat to distribute better.

It is wise to follow the manufacturer's directions when using a hatching machine. Different makes require different methods, and the maker usually knows what his machine requires to do good work. Care should always be taken to keep the lamp and burner clean. Always turn the wick to the base of the burner beta dirty or charred wick will not burn well when cleaned, otherwise, the lamp is liable to flicker or smoke.

Chicks, as a rule, are more easily hatched than reared. Mortality in young chicks is frequently due to bad incubating; i.e., machines run in rooms in which the air is foul, or run uneven in temperature; the parent stock being sickly or lacking in vigor, one can not be too particular about this point in selecting breeding stock; or it may be due to bad brooding and feeding, such as too low and too high temperatures, feeding sloppy feeds, indigestible feeds, or too much at a time followed by short feeds.

Our method of feeding is usually to remove the chicks from the incubator to the brooder, which has been bedded with cut straw or hay and warmed to the degrees, or the age of 36 to 48 hours. We place on a board some grit, also some fine crumbs or cracked wheat and oatmeal. We keep this well supplied for perhaps two days when we place a feeding house where to look for food. We also keep a constant supply of pure water on this day access. After the second day in the feeding house we feed about five or six times daily, just what the chicks will clean up in fifteen minutes, what of a debatable point, whether it is best to feed wet or dry, which all I wants to eat before it is two weeks old. Dry mash is best for chicks less than they would eat. Such feeds as bran, middlings, given early in the morning, which is fed on clean boards or troughs, also cracked wheat, cracked wheat or pin head oatmeal is good. The above feeds are used alternately. Also beef scrap is fed at the rate of one daily two feeds a day, after the chicks are a week old, of good or chopped root or onions, sometimes boiled potatoes; enough onions and bran is added to this to absorb the juices of the roots. For adult chicks drink some milk or if this is not at hand, a little beef scrap in the water is good. The feeding of much cooked or raw meat is dangerous to young chicks. Where there is plenty of milk or intestines of animals, this feed is beneficial. After three weeks of age, feed

There are Thousands of Run-down Women.

Are You One of Them?

There are thousands of women here, there and everywhere, who are suffering from a run-down condition.

The tendency is, to let matters go, till serious illness or some chronic female weakness results.

Isn't this a foolish thing to do?

Don't do it. Get well. Be your old self again.

Do you ask, how Do as Miss Clark and Mrs. Thomas did when they got run-down. They took Health Tablets.

Dr. Hugo's Health Tablets

Make Healthy Women.

I was suffering from a run-down condition. My doctor gave me some brown tablets. I improved so much in two weeks that I discontinued my physician. He then told me I had been taking Dr. Hugo's Health Tablets.—Flora Clark, Island Pond, Vt.

The benefit secured from one box of Dr. Hugo's Health Tablets has been so great that I am satisfied one box more will effect what you claim for them, and make me again a healthy woman.—Mrs. Jennie Thomas, Dixville, Que.

Notice, too, that there was no waiting for results. Improvement began at once. And it always does. The 72 tablets in 50c box will start you on the road to health.

ODDFELLOWSHIP DOOMING.

Last Thursday night there was a large gathering of the brethren at the commodious rooms of Argyll Lodge, No. 212, about 150 being present, including visitors from No. 81 and from Odessa and Desmondville. Twelve candidates from Odessa were given the second and third degree, by the home team, after which all partook of supper in the refreshment parlor on the lodge. There were present thirty from Odessa and twenty-five from Desmondville.

ELIZABETH ANN SNIDER.

Relict of the late Joel Snider, Violet, died 4th April, in her seventy-fifth year. Deceased was a daughter of Jacob Dorme, one of the old pioneers of Ernestown, and leaves seven children, Messrs Reuben, William Frank, Frederick and Herbert, of this County, and Mrs. Alfred, of North Frederickburgh, and a daughter, Miss Martha, at home. Mrs. Snider was a life-long member of the Methodist church, a kind wife and mother, and was esteemed by all who knew her. Her end was peaceful. The funeral took place on Friday, service being held in the Methodist church, Violet.

SMITH—KELLAR.

A very pretty wedding was consummated at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. R. Hicks, Maple Corner, Morven, on Wednesday, April 4th, at twelve o'clock noon. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Mr. Thomas, of Morven, in the presence of about fifty intimate friends. The contracting parties were Miss Hettie May Smith and Mr. Joe Kellar, of Inellown. The bride, who was given away by Mr. Hicks, was beautifully attired in nickel grey cloth with silk jacket and trimmings. Miss Dora Smith, cousin of the groom, acted as bridesmaid, and was gowned in amber silk with lace and chiffon trimmings. Little Miss Ina Kellar, sister of the groom, was flower girl, and Mr. T. D. Creighton supported the groom. The bride's going away gown was navy blue tailor made, with black braid and white bengaline silk, and blue hat to match. The bride is one of Morven's most popular young ladies, and the fortunate groom is to be congratulated on his excellent choice. The bride was the recipient of a beautiful and costly array of presents. The groom's present to the bride was a handsome crescent brooch set with brilliants, and the bridesmaid a gold brooch set with amythists, to the best man a brilliant stick pin, and to the little flower girl a gold bracelet. The happy couple took the 4.25 train from Napanee for Toronto, Newmarket, and other eastern points, amidst showers of rice and best wishes of a host of friends.

Dear Sir,—In answer to the request of the Government that we express our views increased sessional indemnity, to members of the Dominion Parliament, and pensions granted to ex-ministers, I think the country at large is opposed to first have been submitted to the people before being acted upon and endorsed by Parliament. The foundation of this great Dominion we have proud to boast of as Canadians, was laid by men who only received a few thousand dollars a session, and surely our present members can afford to let that foundation for a 50 per cent. increase, or let others have an opportunity do the work.

ALBERT.

It is our sad duty this week to announce the death of Bessie Jones, which took place very suddenly on Monday, after a few weeks' illness, of pneumonia, at the early age of 17 years. Deceased, whose home is in Shannonville, was visiting at this time in this vicinity, and while a guest of Mrs. H. Anderson, took sick, and despite all medical attendance and loving care could do, she passed away, surrounded by sorrowing relatives and friends. Deceased leaves to mourn her loss a father, Mr. John Jones, and one sister, Mrs. Goddis Bradshaw, and one brother, William Jones, all of Shannonville. The funeral took place on Wednesday from the deceased's late residence, and was largely attended, the remains being placed in Methodist vault. The funeral sermon was preached by the Rev. Mr. Mellis.

Miss Elsie Tripp, of Halston, spent Sunday at Mr. A. Mackin's.

The Best Flour, Dafoe's Nonesuch, Dafoe's Manitoba Patent

By numerous tests by the best bakers the above mentioned grades have been proven to be best flour in the market.

When buying flour, ask for Dafoe's, and patronize your home mill, thereby producing Bran and Shorts that you can purchase cheaper than the product of the Western mills, which have to be transported thousands of miles, at great expense and waste before it reaches you, of inferior quality.

Remember the by-law, "to assist farmer or the mechanic sends to Toronto or to outside points for an article he can get at home." Don't be afraid to ask, but be does not hesitate to buy flour from outside points if he can't get it here and sell you an inferior flour for more money. Support home industry and purchase the home product for, every bag of which is guaranteed.

Choice corn meal and buckwheat flour always on hand. Custom chopping a specialty, with the best feed mills known to the trade.

OGILVIE'S ROYAL HOUSEHOLD

When you plan your meals you never think of bread, yet you always have it, and if it is left off the table it is the first thing that is missed.

You can live without bread, but you can live without any other food with less hardship—think along these lines and the absolute necessity of bread comes home to you.

And because it is a necessity, its quality should be the best—quality in bread depends largely upon the flour.

Royal Household Flour

has convinced the women of Canada that it is the best for pastry as well as for bread.

Try Ogilvie's Royal Household. Your grocer recommends it, because it gives such good results.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

THE LUST OF HATE

"If the enemy were only forty miles away at midday," said Mr. Maybourne as we carried the men's tea out into the open to them, "we ought to be close at hand now. When we've done our meal we'll post extra-sentries; for though I do not for a moment expect they'll attack us in the dar, it would never do to allow ourselves to be surprised."

I agreed with him; and, accordingly, as soon as our tea was finished, men were placed not only at the four corners of the lager, but at equal distances between them. The remainder lay down to rest wherever they could make themselves most comfortable, I found myself about the only exception to the rule; and, do what I would, I could not sleep. Having tried for an hour and a half, and found it still impossible, I went across to the verandah and sat down in one of the cane chairs there. I had not been there many moments before I was joined by Agnes, who seated herself beside me. I reproved her for not resting after her labors of the day.

"I could not sleep," she answered. "Leave it to you call me, I am far too nervous to rest. Do you really think the enemy will attack us in the morning?"

"Not knowing their plans, I cannot say," I replied, "but I must confess it looks terribly like it."

"In that case I want you to promise me something, Gilbert."

"What is it?" I asked. "You know there is nothing I would not do for you, Agnes. What am I to promise?"

"That if we are overpowered you will not let me fall into their hands alive. You may think me a coward, but I dread that more than any thought of death."

"Hush! You must not talk like that. Have no fear, we will not let you fall into their hands. You know there is not a man upon the staff who would not give his life for you."

She leaned a little forward and looked into my face. "I know you would protect me, would you not?"

Wait and see. The man who touches you, Agnes, will have to do it over my dead body. Do you know that to-night, for some reason or other, I feel more superstitious than I have ever done before. I can't rid myself of the thought that I am near the one vital crisis of my life."

What do you mean, Gilbert? You frighten me."

"I cannot tell you what I mean, for I don't know myself. I think I'm what the Scotch call 'fey.'"

"I have prayed to God for you," she said. "He who has protected us before will do so again. Let us do our duty and leave the rest to Him."

"Amen to that," I answered solemnly, and then a sudden thought struck me. "

For the Children

To succeed these days you must have plenty of grit, courage, strength. How is it with the children? Are they thin, pale, delicate? Do not forget Ayer's Sarsaparilla. You know it makes the blood pure and rich, and builds up the general health in every way.

The children cannot possibly have good health, unless the bowels are in proper condition. Each dose of Ayer's Pills acts on the liver, small in size, easy to take, sugar coated.

—Rev. P. A. Scott will commence revival services in the Western Methodist church next Sunday night.

—Mr. Fred. Curry expects to be in his new store to-morrow, the shop lately vacated by Mr. "Jack" Nelson.

—Mr. F. W. Vandusen has so far this spring shipped twenty-three sets of harness to Manitoba and the Northwest.

—The members of Council 146, C.O.C.F., will be entertained at a sugar social in their hall in the Harshaw block, next Monday evening, 16th April.

—Mr. E. S. Lapum is removing to the store lately occupied by the Neilson-Robinson Co. The W. A. Rose Co. will occupy Mr. Lapum's old stand.

—Mrs. Christopher McKim, a former resident of Napanee, died at Cleveland, O., last Sunday morning. She was a sister of Mr. J. Aylsworth, Napanee.

—The inside of the town hall is being given a much needed coat of paint and the woodwork grained by Mr. Arthur Briggs. It now presents a very neat appearance.

—Look out for the opening chapters of our new story, "The Brethren," by Ryder Haggard. It is one of the best stories we have ever published. It would be a nice present to send The Beaver to an absent friend for three months, and it will only cost you 25 cents.

—Fire was discovered in the barn of Mrs. Robt. Smith, South Napanee, about one o'clock on Friday morning. It was quickly consumed with its contents of some hay, oats, etc. No insurance. The barn was rented to Mr. James Killorin. The snowfall the night before prevented the fire spreading.

—The private bill of the Town of Napanee, validating and confirming by-law No. 718 of the Town of Napanee, received its third and final reading in the Legislature on Wednesday. This is the by-law authorizing the construction and installation of a municipal electric light plant in the town, and the issuing of $35,000 of debentures for that purpose.

—A much needed improvement is being made in the telephone system in town. Instead of the poles being burdened with several hundred wires, as in the past, a single cable, will take their place, and not nearly so many poles will obstruct the streets. There will not be the trouble and inconvenience in future of crossed wires after a severe wind or snow storm.

—A very successful sugar social and literary entertainment was given at Macdonald by Court Bay of Quinte, No. 4,720, I.O.F., on Wednesday evening, after the inner man had been satisfied an excellent programme was given, consisting of songs, recitations and addresses by Messrs. Sanford Watts, G.D.H.C.R., J. S. R. McCann, H.T., and Rev. Down.

—G. A. Booth, of Trenton, was arrested at Montreal about two months ago on a charge of obtaining goods under false pretences. He was given four months or a fine of $50.00, which he paid. A warrant of a similar character was issued by Mr. H. Derbyshire, Odessa, in January, and as soon as Booth paid his fine he was held by orders from Chief of Police Graham, of Napanee. Mr. Graham went to Montreal on Tuesday after the prisoner and brought him to Napanee on Wednesday. On his arrival here Booth was given a hearing before Police Magistrate Rankin and remanded for one week.

—Hon. John D. Carscallen died at his home in Jersey City, N.J., on Monday morning, 9th April, aged almost 80 years. Deceased had been in poor health for several years, and finally succumbed to an attack of pneumonia. Deceased was born at Newburgh, and went to New York City about fifty years ago, establishing a business in Jersey City with his late James Warner. He leaves a wife, one son and three daughters. Mr. Carscallen was a man of great business ability, and amassed a large fortune. He was at one time speaker of the Legislature of New Jersey, and is credited up to the time of his death, president of the Third National Bank of Jersey City.

—The new County Council Act will go into effect in 1907. County Councillors will be constituted as follows:—One representative apportioned from the county for municipal purposes, and every township and village shall be represented by the reeve, and in addition by deputy reeves as follows:—For over 1,000 and not more than 2,000 persons on the voters' list, one deputy reeve; 2,000 to 3,000 names, two deputy reeves; over 3,000 names three deputy reeves. The number of councillors is to be decreased by the number of deputy reeves elected, but this provision shall not apply to towns or villages. Reeves and deputy reeves are to be elected by general vote. In the election of wardens, if there be a reeve, or in his absence a deputy reeve of the municipality which has the greatest assessment shall have a double vote.

FELLOWS.

Death entered the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fenton Reid, of Fellows, on March 26th, and took as its victim their only girl, Estella Mae, aged 2 years and 7 months. Estella was a bright lovable little child, the pride of her parents and loved by all who knew her. She was sick only a few days, but was the victim of those two dread diseases, pertussis and appendicitis, and despite all that medical aid and loving care could do the little spirit broke the bonds that bind it here and took its flight to that home where there is no sorrow, pain nor care. Rev. Mr. McCamus conducted the funeral services on March 28th at the family residence. The remains were deposited in the Morven vault to await interment in the 4th con. church cemetery. The family have the sympathy of a large circle of friends and acquaintances in their sad bereavement.

GRIP QUICKLY KNOCKED OUT.

"Some weeks ago during the severe winter weather both my wife and myself contracted severe colds which speedily developed into the worst kind of la grippe with all its miserable symptoms," says Mr. J. S. Egleson of Maple Landing, Iowa. "Our knees and joints aching, muscles sore, head stopped up, eyes and nose running, with alternate spells of chills and fever. We began using Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, adding the same with a double dose of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets, and in the liberal use soon completely knocked out the grip." Sold at the Red Cross Drug Store. 14d

JACOB ROMBOUGH.

One of Morven's oldest residents, Jacob Rombough, passed away Sunday morning, 8th April, at the ripe age of eighty years and two months. Deceased suffered a stroke of apoplexy three weeks ago, from the effects of which he never recovered. A family of three sons is left to mourn a tender and loving father. The sons are Mr. Marshall, on the homestead, Alexander, New York, and Frank, Morven. Deceased was a kind and thoughtful neighbor, a friend to every one and a man respected and loved by his neighbors and friends.

MR. PETER BARNHARDT.

A kindly old gentleman, a resident of Hay Bay, passed to his reward, Monday, April 2d, after a well spent life of over eighty years. Deceased was born and spent all his life on the farm on which he died, it being the old Barnhardt homestead. Mr. Barnhardt was quiet in disposition, genial in temperament, wise in judgment and of unfailing honesty. He was a kind, indulgent husband and father, and leaves behind him five children, four girls and one son, all of whom are grown up. His wife predeceased him four years ago. The children are: Mrs. J. E. Carscallen, Tamworth, Miss Leah, of Toronto, Miss Laura, now of Tamworth, Miss Lillian and Martin at home. He was an adherent of the Methodist church. He was a great sufferer during his brief illness, but bore it with great patience. The funeral services were conducted at the house on Wednesday, April 4, by his pastor, Rev. Down. A large number of sorrowing friends followed his remains to the Eastern Cemetery vault. He will be much missed, but our loss is his gain.

ENTERPRISE.

I suppose it is necessary to write the friends away from home a letter through The Beaver, Mr. Editor. I often hear people referring to what they read in your paper about home.

A SACRED PILGRIMAGE

TEXT: "COME, SEE THE PLACE WHERE THE LORD LAY."

FIRST EASTER DAY SCENES

World's Most Sacred Shrines Are Those Vaults or Cathedrals Which Cover the Bodies of the Honored Dead—But This Tomb, Out of All the Ages, Was Empty For the Lord Had Risen —O! Happy Day!

Entered according to Act of Parliament of Canada, in the year 1906, by Frederick Peters, Toronto, at the Dept. of Agriculture, Ottawa.

Los Angeles, Cal., April 8.—At this season of the resurrection of nature the preacher takes us back on a sacred pilgrimage to the scenes of the first Easter day, the text chosen being Matthew xxviii, 6, "Come, see the place where the Lord lay."

The world's most sacred shrines are the vaults or cathedrals which cover the bodies of the honored dead. When the American tourist alights in the London depot to begin the exploration of the British realm he is told one of the first places he visits is Westminster Abbey. He does this not because Westminster Abbey is near to the Parliament buildings, where assemble the legislative bodies of the British Empire. He does it not because the stones from the most beautiful architectural cornet of England. He does this because the gray walls of this centuries—the greatest dead of the British realm have been buried there. Not only do we find England's kings and queens sleeping within those stately walls, but we find there the bodies of some of the greatest poets, dramatists and musicians, painters, warriors and statesmen, whose closed eyes cannot be opened, whose ears cannot be filled by the many thunderings which the mightiest of capitals roars about those silent graves.

When you cross the channel and go to the most beautiful of all modern cities, that of Paris, what journey do you first make? Do you say, "Let us get a carriage and drive out to the boulevards and then ride up the Champs Elysees and see the Arc de Triomphe"? No, not if you are the most American tourist. You want to see where the great dead sleep. You wish to see the Notre Dame, the Madeleine, or to the Pantheon, or to that greatest of all tombs where sleeps the mighty Napoleon. You will be told when Charles V. of the Netherlands and Spain was about to be buried a courtier of his son and wife, King Philip, stepped forward and lifted a rod and struck the casket as he said: "Charles king is dead! He shall remain dead. He is dead, and there is another risen up in his place greater than he ever was." But though that may be true of Charles V. it is not true of Napoleon I., the warrior. Napoleon, the soldier, is dead, but another soldier greater than Napoleon has not risen in his place and in all probability never will arise. No wonder our tourists seek the mausoleum of the little Corsican. What is true of the tombs of London and Paris is also true of Berlin and St. Petersburg and Rome and Egypt. The graves of the great dead have, for the most of us, more fascination than the palaces and the thrones of living men, greater than their ancestors though they may be.

But though Caesar may travel hundreds of miles to stand at the tomb of Alexander the Great, and Otto III went far out of his way to open the vault which contained the body of Charlemagne, and Napoleon himself went forth to find the tomb of Caesar, and though great may be our fascination for the tombs of great men, that fascination is as nothing compared to the yearning that draw us to the lonely plots where sleep our own beloved dead. The greatest compliment we can pay to a friend is when we ask him to accompany us to the last resting place of a mother, a father, a wife or a child. Strangers may look on the loved our silent dead so much we do not wish any one to go to our family burial unless our dear ones are sacred in his eyes.

Now, Mary Magdalene loved the Lord Jesus. Next to his mother, Mary Magdalene was to her the divine being who forgave her past sins. And as we see her going to the tomb of Christ on that Easter morning we find her taking along one of her dearest friends—Mary, the mother of James, who also loved the Lord. These two women are wending their way to Christ's sepulcher weighed down with a common sorrow. As they come near to the tomb an angel meets them and says: "Fear not ye, for I know that ye seek Jesus, who was crucified. He is not here, for he is risen, as he said." Then the angel spake the eight words to which I wish to call your attention in our meditation on the events of that Easter day. "Come, see the place where the Lord lay." It a holy fascination drew Mary Magdalene and Mary to the tomb of a dead Christ surely it is important for us to visit the rifled tomb of a risen Lord. That tomb should be the happiest day of all the year to us. It is the mighty day when the Lord's humiliations and servitude came to their glorious eternal consummation and Jesus became the first fruits of them that slept.

Let us find out, in the first place, in what kind of a grave Jesus was buried. Let us see how his body was laid in that crypt. The condition of his tomb and of the clothes ought to teach us just as many helpful practical lessons as his cradle of Bethlehem and the swadling clothes in which he was wrapped as a new-born child. I suppose the smartest way to find this grave is to have Mary Magdalene for our guide. We can out some help we shall never find it at all. The cemeteries or graveyards of the far east are like the cities—mere yards of the west. They all need a guide to take the tourists through. Yes, and the amazing fact about the Jerusalem cemeteries is that you can distinguish the different graves there, just as you can pick out the different graves in Calvary cemetery of Long Island. As you go through them you will hear a guide say, "Here is the Abraham family," or "Here is the family plot of people who lived in moderate circumstances," or "Here lies the beggars where the poor are buried." You can tell all this by studying the tombstones and the elaborate monuments and the neglected graves. Now, as Mary Magdalene is leading you and me among the tombs and graves that abound the Jerusalem to the grave of Christ, much to my surprise she does not go toward potter's field or to a place where the poor are buried. She directs her steps toward a beautiful garden, in the center of which a magnificent tomb has been chiseled out of the solid rock. This must be the tomb of a very rich man. As she gets along it finally she is beside herself with grief, and I say: "Stop, Mary, stop! You are going the wrong way. This is not the tomb of Christ, who died a pauper; this is the tomb of one of the wealthy men of the east." Then Mary turns, with a sweet smile, and says:

"Nay, friend, I am not wrong. Christ may have lived and died a pauper, but he was buried as a king. Dost thou not know that Joseph of Arimathea, a member of the sanhedrim and one of the great leaders of the Jewish nation, went and asked Pilate for Christ's body after it was dead, and that Pilate gave it to him? And dost thou further-more not know that Joseph of Arimathea took Christ's body and laid it in his own family vault?" "But," I again say, "how could Joseph do that? Jesus did not own a garden. He was buried when he died. The soldiers even gambled for the coat that he wore on his way to the cross." "True," says Mary, "but Joseph did not know that, as one rich man gave Christ his own tomb in which to be buried, and that, moreover, in other rich man, furnished the funds whereby Christ's body was appropriately arrayed for his burial. Understand-ther?" Do you think that these words which I have put into the lips of Mary are purely imaginary? Read what John xv, 43, "Joseph of Arimathea, an honorable counselor, who also waited for the kingdom of God, took courage and boldly unto Pilate and craved the body of Jesus, and he gave the body to Joseph." Then turn to Luke xxiii, and there came also Nicodemus, who, at the first, came to Jesus by night and brought a mixture of myrrh and aloes, about a hundred pound weight. Then took they the body of Jesus and wound it in linen clothes with the spices, as the manner of the Jews is to bury."

Now, what is the difference between two thoughts? Why, as Nicodemus, the rich man, gave the expensive spices with which to prepare Christ's body for the burial, and as Joseph of Arimathea, another rich man, gave Christ his sepulcher for the burial, therefore it means that all the rich men of the world and all the brains of the world shall be used by the empty tomb of Christ and declare him Lord of lords and King of kings. Oh, my friends, I am glad Christ's cradle was in a manger. That proves that Jesus came a Christ for the poor and the outcasts, the wayworn and the heavy laden. I am also glad that Christ's dead body was wrapped in the spices of a Nicodemus and laid to rest in the hands of a Joseph. That symbolizes to me this other fact that some day all the wealth of the world will be used by the claim him not only the risen Lord, but also their Redeemer and Friend. May that glorious day be not far distant! It is said that just over his study desk Rev. Hawarden William E. Gladstone had these words framed and hung upon the wall: "Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace whose mind is stayed on thee." So may all the great and honored men of this day find their perfect peace in a risen Lord and Redeemer and Joseph of olden times honored him at the sepulcher.

But as we approach a little nearer to the rifled sepulcher we find another startling fact. "The body of Christ is gone!" you say. "How do you know that? Oh, no. I expected to find the body gone. All historians have alluded to this one fact in connection with the body of Christ gone. Next I want to call your attention to the fact that the graveclothes were lying in the crypt, just as they were put there by Christ's friends when Jesus' body was laid away in the tomb. What can these things be?" you ask. Then you realize that stones and doors and barred windows were no barriers for Him. When Jesus arose on the first Easter morn he did not come forth, as did Lazarus, bound hand and foot with graveclothes. He did not get up, as we do of a morning, by throwing the bedclothes from off our bodies, but he arose silently, swiftly. He arose, and the graveclothes were left in just the same positions as Christ's friends placed them. Then the "Come; see the place where the Lord lay."

What is the significance of all this? It means that when we are resurrected we shall leave all our infirmities behind. We shall not arise with a struggle, but we shall simply move quietly out of our graveclothes, all the heartaches, all the sufferings of this world. It means that when you get up on the morning of the first resurrection your back will never ache again, your head will never be weary, your heart will never fail. All these sorrows and trials of earth have had their mission in fitting us for the future life, but when that life comes the mission of Paul's thorn in the flesh shall be forever done away with. Oh, the glorious day when we shall be emancipated from our binding graveclothes, which have always been the symbol of sin and of sorrow and of death! Henceforth we shall not have new wearing apparel. Would you like to catch a glimpse of the garments of the resurrection? "Who are these which are arrayed in white robes, and whence came they?" is asked in the apocalyptic vision. "These are they which come out of great tribulation, and have washed their robes and made them white in the blood of the Lamb." Glorious, glorious is to be the change of our resurrection garments. Thank God that, like Christ's, our binding shrouds of earth shall be left in the sepulcher and be exchanged for the coronation robes of heaven.

Now, as the angels had such a large part to do in the earthly life of our Lord Jesus Christ, it is not surprising to comes to our mind is this: "Who are these angels? If they were important to Christ's life, are they important to ours?" Angels are mentioned at least 240 different times in the Bible. They were important to the lives of Abraham and Isaac and Jacob and Moses and Joshua and David and all the other mighty servants of God in the Old and the New Testament, and they are important to our life as they were to Christ's. When we shall arise from our graves God will send his angels to greet us as he sent his angels to greet Christ. We may be pardoned for wondering if the heavenly messengers who shall stand by our open graves will be the same angels who have gone beyond and have come back to earth to take us to our celestial home. We wonder if the messenger will open our then closed eyelids on our first Easter morn shall be mother or father or brother or little child. Lord Jesus, who art thou going to send to us at that time? Will it be one of our loved ones who is to be thy messenger?

But there is still another startling fact about this Easter tomb to which I would call your attention. That is the garden surrounding it. In ninety-nine times out of a hundred, when you have pictured this tomb of Joseph of Arimathea, it has been in the midst of a garden. Then you have turned to the books of Biblical lore and painted the flora of the springtime in the Holy Land. These writers have told you that in Mandeer and April there are flowers everywhere about Jerusalem. The valleys are covered with them; the hillsides are covered with them. They push their golden heads between the crevices of every rock. And when you think of the many beautiful tints of carnations and bluebells and sweet violets and jonquils and tulips and orchids and daisies and lilies and pansies and heliotropes and wistaria. You say to me: "I do not care whether there are botanical flowers or no. When I think of the garden surrounding Christ's tomb I think of the most beautiful of all flowers, and that is why Joseph's garden was like those flowers and not only like them, but far more beautiful in humanity.

You are right, my brother. No garden of the western hemisphere can be so beautiful as the garden of the Palestine hills, where Christ was buried in Joseph's tomb. But, alas, you would be very much in error if you thought this garden about Joseph's tomb was beautiful when Mary Magdalene and Mary, the mother of James, entered it on that Easter morning. If you would call to these women there you would find the lilies and the roses and all the other flowers trampled down. It was once beautiful, but now it is a wrecked garden. This beautiful garden looks as though it had been uprooted by a getting hailstorm. What was the matter? No sooner did this angel of the resurrection appear and Christ come forth from the tomb than the Roman soldiers fell down like dead men. They fell flat among the flowers. Then, as soon as they recovered from their swoon, they rose and in wild terror fled. Those flowers were torn from their roots or crushed as though a herd of stampeding cattle had jammed their hoofs into them. What lesson do we therefore learn from these crushed flowers lying around in the wrecked garden surrounding the tomb of Joseph of Arimathea? Why, this is the lesson: If we can only bring our risen Lord into touch with the intrenched armies of sin we will scatter the Satanic hosts as he made the Roman guard drop before him in the sunrise burst of that first Easter morn. Oh, my friends, will this not be your purpose, that Christ may triumph over all the forces of evil intrenched in our city streets?

We can never rid this world of sin unless we make the risen Christ our leader and companion. Almost everywhere we turn, even among the beautiful flowers about the tomb of the dead Christ, we can hear the hiss of the serpent, the touch of whose fang means eternal death unless the wound is healed by divine medicament. Bishop Meade relates how one day he was out walking in a beautiful garden with a young lady. "Oh, bishop," she cried, "look at that lovely flower!" With that she reached out her hand to pluck it, even with the most exquisite roses. She reached far forward to pluck the most beautiful rose of all, when suddenly out of that bush there darted the fang of a snake and fastened itself upon her hand. So the world about us. Even in the most beautiful of flower gardens we find the Satanic serpents wriggling, twisting, hissing, as the Roman guard was encamped about the tomb of Joseph of Arimathea from Black Friday noon to Easter morn. Oh, my friends, will you not strive to bring forth this risen Christ and let him make sin under the flash of his eye crouch and trample and die?

And, if it is important to let the risen Christ come forth to scatter sin out of the hearts of the human race, how much more important is it to let him come in touch with our own hearts and make us pure and true and good and noble and helpful! Here is a beautiful legend told that many years ago a poor, blind pilgrim was journeying toward Jerusalem, the City of Peace. After he had been many days and weeks and months on his way he met another traveler going that way. This stranger said, "Friend, submit thyself to me, and I will guide thee to the City of Peace and will give to thee whatsoever thou will ask." After the twain had journeyed on for some days more, at last the pilgrim, utterly wearied, turned and said, "Oh, good friend, thou who hast said that thou will do everything for me if I submit myself to thy will, open for me my blind eyes." The stranger said: "I will. Blind eyes, be opened." Instantly the blind man's eyes opened his eyes, and he say that he had been walking among the wrong of precipice. And he saw that his guide was Jesus Christ.

Lord Jesus, at this Eastertide we are pilgrims. We are journeying to the New Jerusalem, the City of Peace. We are journeying blither the same as the pilgrim in the midst of which stands a rifled tomb. We are blinded by sin. We are weak and we want a guide. Oh, thou Christ, who didst appear unto Mary Magdalene, come to our present gardens and unto us as thou didst to the sinful woman of old: "Thy sins are forgiven thee. Go in peace." Grant us this prayer, O Jesus! And may thy angel who spoke to Mary Magdalene and Mary, the mother of James, speak to us in thy name the glorious message of our sins forever pardoned and forever past!

A SPRING DANGER.

Many People Weaken Their Systems by Dosing With Purgative Medicines.

A spring medicine seems to be a necessity. Nature demands it as an aid to enriching the blood and carrying off the impurities that have accumulated during the indoor life of the winter months. Thousands of people, recognizing the necessity for a spring medicine, dose themselves with harsh, purgative purgatives. This is a mistake. Ask any doctor and he will tell you that the use of purgative medicines weakens the system and cannot possibly cure disease. In the spring the system needs building up—purgatives weaken. The blood should be made rich, red and pure—purgatives make it thin. What is needed is a tonic, and the best tonic medical science has yet devised is Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Every dose of this medicine actually makes new, rich blood, and this new blood strengthens every organ and every part of the body. That is why these pills banish pimples and unsightly skin eruptions. That is why they cure headaches and backaches, rheumatism and neuralgia, for most of other troubles that come from poor, watery blood. Men and women who use Dr. Williams' Pink Pills eat well and sleep well and are active and strong. Mrs. Albert E. Sampson, L'Ardoise, N.S., says: "I have used Dr. Williams' Pink Pills with the greatest benefit. I know of no medicine that can equal them in building up people who are run down."

When buying these pills see that the full name "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, is printed on the wrapper around the box. You can get the pills from any medicine dealer or direct by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Sir,—I have the honor to enclose herewith a statement of facts re By-law 204, passed by the Council of the County of Lennox and Addington under the provisions of "An Act respecting Statute Labor and Public Highways" said presentation of facts being signed by the sub-committee of the County Roads and Bridges Committee, appointed for that purpose, and for the purpose of calling in person upon you if considered necessary after the matter before you in writing as enclosed, and I am instructed by the Council to request that you would be kind enough to notify me at as early a date as possible of the decision of your Department, and if you should call and be good enough to give me early notice of your intention to call upon you.

Yours respectfully,
W. G. WILSON,
County Clerk.

Napanee, March 22d, 1906.

Hon. Dr. Beaume,
Minister of Public Works,
Toronto, Ont.

Hon. Sir,—At a meeting of the Roads and Bridges committee of this County it was decided to submit a petition to submit a written presentation in behalf of the County Council, asking for the approval and ratification of the County Road By-law, presented, signed, sealed together with a plan of the roads designated in the By-law. We are also presented to wait upon you if necessary at any time to give any additional information required by you and to urge a speedy approval of the By-law.

Our presentation of the matter is as follows:

In the year 1872 the Council of the County of Lennox and Addington purchased from the Richmond Road Company the rights, title and interest in all the roads owned by the said Company, which consisted of about fifteen miles of road in the Township of Richmond, and one mile in the Township of Ernestown, paying therefor the sum of $7,500.00. Subsequently different portions of the said road were taken over by the County Council, and in 1903 the remaining portion of the County Road By-law, presented, signed, sealed together with a plan of the roads designated in the By-law. We are also prepared

WISE AND OTHERWISE.

New Whittier Story.—Some years ago a smart young woman, who delighted to dance with awkward country lad who sat next her at a boarding house table, asked him to write in her autograph album. He blushed and stammered, but finally wrote:

Thy life—may nothing vex it—
Thy years be not a few!
And at thy final exit
May the devil miss his due!

The boy's name was John G. Whittier.

The Demon, Dyspepsia.—In olden times it was a popular belief that demons moved invisibly through the ambient air, seeking to entre into men and trouble them. At the present day the demon, dyspepsia, is at large in the same way, seeking habitation in those who by careless or unwise living invite him. And once he enters a man it is difficult to dislodge him. He that finds himself so possessed should know that a valiant friend is to do battle for him with the unseen foes in Parmelee's Vegetable Pills, which are ever ready for the trial.

"Did you ever know Bilkins to keep his word?"

"Once."

"When was that?"

"I lent him $5, and he said he'd be eternally indebted to me."

A Magic Pill.—Dyspepsia is a foe with which men are constantly grappling but cannot exterminate. Subdued, and to all appearances vanquished as one, it makes its appearance in another direction. In many the digestive apparatus is as delicate as the mechanism of a watch or weighing instrument in which even a breath of air will cause a variation. All such persons disorders of the stomach produce the most trivial cause and cause much suffering. To these Parmelee's Vegetable Pills are recommended as mild and sure.

Uncle Jerry Peebles was looking over the list of "accepted sailings" recommended by the reformers. "Good thing, that!" he exclaimed. "Ought to make it strange in them words. That's the way Milton spelled 'em."

It is an Elixir of Life—Since forgotten time, men have been searching for the Elixir of Life, which tradition declares existed. Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil is an Elixir, before which pain cannot live. It is made from six essential oils, carefully blended so that their rapid curative powers are centered in one. It has no equal in the treatment of bandage, rheumatism and all bodily pains.

George—Father, don't you think remain single would you marry the fattest girl on earth if he asked you?

Cassius—O George, this is so sudden.

One of the greatest blessings to parents is Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator. It effectually expels worms from the system, and a marvellous manner to the little one.

Sammy broke suddenly into the parlor one day, and came down in the middle of a sentence. Sitting on Mr. Browne's knee, he surprised the company by asking: "I will woon over the youngest one's eyes."

Mr. Browne refused in a little play. Sammy, explained Aunt Margaret:

"Yes, Samuel," added Mr. Brown, with a touch of sarcasm, "what did you say? 'I am too holding the queen?'"

"No, papa," answered Sammy, as he backed out of the room, "I said Uncle Jack said that he'd hold four aces against me."

Only those who have had experience can tell the tortures corns cause. Pain is almost unbearable. Burns and scalds cease with the application of Chase's Corn Cure.

A good woman of Cincinnati called her cook one morning and asked: "Mary, come and take the parrot out of the bedroom at once." The master has lost his collar button."

Some persons are more susceptible to colds than others, contracting them on the slightest exposure. These should always have on hand a bottle of Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup, the great and sovereign remedy for coughs, catarrh and inflammation of the lungs. It will effect a cure no matter how severe the cold may be. You cannot afford to be without Bickle's, family like Bickle's, for it is the best.

Lady Cosier—Do are yer stayin' at? Farmer Chirl—I ain't good at natural history.

Teacher—Tommy, when was Rome built?

Tommy—In the night.

Teacher—How came you to make such a mistake?

Tommy—You said yesterday Rome wasn't built in a day.

Teacher—How many bones have you in your body?

Pupil—Two hundred and eight.

Teacher—Wrong. We only have two hundred and seven.

Pupil—But I swallowed a fish-bone this morning.

Miss Flatnigan—I will give yez my answer in a month, Pat.

Pat—Faix, I'll not wait, me darlint, tek plinty of time to think about it. But tell me one thing—will it be yes or no?

"Look pleasant, please," said the photographer, in his (more or less) fair sitter.

Chirk—"It's all over, ma'am. You may resume your natural expression.

"It's a fine day, deacon."

"Yes; but we're all miserable creatures."

"Well, thank God, we're still a-livin'."

"Yes," groaned the deacon, "but our time's comin'!"

Patient, to pretty nurse—Will you be my wife when I recover?

Pretty Nurse—Certainly.

Patient—Then you love me?

Pretty Nurse—Oh, that is merely part of the treatment. I must keep my patients cheerful. I promised this morning to run away with a man who had lost both his legs in a railway accident.

McTavish—Have you a light, Donald?

Donald—Aye, but it's oot.

A smart young fellow called out to a farmer who was sowing seed in a field, "Well done, old fellow, you sow, and I'll reap the fruits."

"Maybe you will," said the farmer, "for I'm sowing hemp seed."

A physician of large reputation tells a good story about himself. "During my absence," he says "my two youngsters got into my consulting room where they began to play at being doctor. One of them, after he had locked a door and disclosed a terrorized look to his playmate.

"Pooh! What are you afraid of? he asked. "It's nothing but a little skellington."

"Why-wh-where did it come from?" asked the other with chattering teeth.

"Oh, I don't know," was the reply, "a long time. I expect it was his first patient."

Statistical Boarder—Have you the remotest idea, for instance, what the world's supply of honey is?

Sentimental Boarder—Yes, sir. The world's supply of honey weighs exactly 110 pounds. Now don't interrupt me. I'm not going to mention it in this crowd.

HAVE YOU HEARTBURN?

It's quite common with people whose digestion is poor. Immediate relief follows the use of Norville. Stomach is strengthened, digestion is made perfect, lasting cure results in every case. Use Polson's Norville once and you'll never be without it because every type of stomach disorder is conquered by a few doses. One 25c bottle of Norville always convinces. Sold everywhere for the past fifty years.

Four Simple Rules.

Follow Them and Health, Happiness and Prosperity Will Be Yours.

If one would be healthy, happy and prosperous follow them four simple rules. (1) Keep the bowels open every day. (2) Chew your food slowly and thoroughly. (3) Avoid indigestible foods. (4) If there are any symptoms of stomach troubles, take Mi-o-na before each meal until cured.

No matter how many years you may have suffered with stomach troubles or how worried by sleeplessness, nervousness, loss of appetite, furred tongue, specks before the eyes, headaches, indigestion or other ills that are caused by a weak stomach, you can be cured by the faithful use of Mi-o-na.

Take one of the little tablets before each meal with the fixed determination to get the most benefit out of it.

Mi-o-na is not a fanciful experiment, it is not a patent medicine, it is not a cure all. It is a scientific remedy recommended for one trouble, — weakness of the digestive organs.

Just how Mi-o-na has been used for a few days, the digestive system will be so greatly improved that all the food eaten is converted into nutriment, so that nourishments and health are given to the whole system and there is a rapid increase in weight, strength and spirits.

If you cannot obtain Mi-o-na of your druggist, it will be sent by mail, post-paid, on receipt of price. Write us for advice on your case. Mi-o-na is a leading stomach specific which will be sent free. The R. T. Booth Company, Ithaca, N.Y.

Easy and Pleasant Home Dyeing.

Diamond Dyes

Will Color Anything any Color.

The most wonderful helpers in the home to economical dressing are the Diamond Dyes. They are so easy to use, that even a child can dye a rich and perfect color with them.

Diamond Dyes make faded and dingy dresses, blouses, capes, jackets, shawls, skirts, laces and draperies look like new.

Beware of dyes that claim to color cotton and wool with the same dye. It is impossible to get satisfactory results with dyes of that character. The Diamond Dyes there are special dyes for cotton and linen, and for wool goods, and special dyes are made for all wool goods. Each Diamond Dye colors is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction, when used according to directions.

FROST STEEL GATES

The strong features of Frost Fence are combined in the Gates. A special feature is the frame of continuous steel tubing. This is vastly stronger than a frame with elbow corners and a malleable casting. The heavy wire filling braces against sagging.

The public is warned against buying gates that infringe against Frost Wire Fence Co's patent, as purchasers as well as users are laying themselves liable. For sale by

THE BEST IS THE CHEAPEST

When you buy a knife for instance, you consider the quality of the steel in the blade. The biggest and heaviest knife need necessarily the best. Now there is just as much difference in the quality and strength of steel in fence wire as there is in a knife blade or razor. The Page Co. use a high carbon steel wire, which though it costs you but little more, is fifty per cent. (50%) stronger than wire in other fences. The lightest PAGE fence is as strong as the heaviest of other makes.

Notice the lock in PAGE "EMPIRE" FENCE. You may have noticed also that others are imitating it. That is a good recommend for it. Where we load others follow.

All PAGE wire is "COILED," not crimped.

Besides the extra strength and superior workmanship, PAGE FENCES are dipped in a special white paint, which on top of the best of galvanizing, will lengthen the life of wire for years. And, also, this white coating makes wire much more sightly.

Owing to the great strength and elasticity of PAGE fencing, one-third less posts are required, thereby reducing the cost of the fencing.

PROLOGUE.

Salah-ed-din, Commander of the Faithful, the king Strong to Aid, Sovereign of the East, sat at night in his palace at Damascus and brooded on the wonderful ways of God, by Whom he had been lifted to his high estate. He remembered how, when he was but small in the eyes of men, Nour-ed-din, king of Syria, forced him to accompany his uncle, Shirkuh, to Egypt, whither he went, "like one driven to his death," and how, against his own will, there he rose to greatness. He thought of his father, the wise Ayoub, and the brethren with whom he was brought up, all of them dead now save one; and of his sisters, whom he had cherished. Most of all did he think of her, Zobeide, who had been stolen away by the knight whom she loved next to the loss of her own soul—yes, by the English friend of his youth, his father's prisoner, Sir Andrew D'Arcy, who, led astray by passion, had done him and his house this grievous wrong. He had sworn, he remembered, that he would bring her back even from England, and already had planned to kill her husband and capture her when he learned her death. She had left a child, or so his spies told him, who, if she still lived, must be a woman now—his own niece, though half of noble English blood.

Then his mind wandered from this old, half-forgotten story to the woe and blood in which his days were set, and to the last great struggle between the followers of the prophets Jesus and Mahomet, that jihad for which he made ready—and he sighed. For he was a merciful man, who loved all his brethren, although his fierce faith drove him on from war to war.

Salah-ed-din slept and dreamed of peace. In his dream a maiden stood before him. Presently, when she lifted her veil, he saw that she was beautiful, with features like him own, but softer, and knew her surely for the daughter of his sister who had fled with the English knight. Now he wondered why she visited him thus, and in his vision prayed Allah to make the matter clear. Then of a sudden he knew that this same woman standing before him on a Syrian plain, and on either side of her a countless host of Saracens and Franks, of whom thousands and tens of thousands were appointed to death. Lo! he, Salah-ed-din, charged at the head of his squadrons, scimitar aloft, but she held up her hand and stayed him.

"What do you hear, my niece?" he asked.

"I am come to save the lives of men through you," she answered; "therefore was I born of your blood, and therefore am I sent to you. Put up your sword, King, and spare them."

"Say, maiden, what ransom do you bring to buy this multitude from doom? What ransom, and what gift?"

"The ransom of my own blood free-

NEWBURGH.

Many dames in years past has the Newburgh High School been the scene of happiness and enjoyment. But nothing in recent years approaches the event of Thursday evening last, when the teachers and students were at home to nearly five hundred friends. The academy was beautifully decorated with evergreens and bunting, the school colors, blue and pink, being very much to the fore. The hall down stairs was used by the gentlemen for their hats and coats, while Form II up stairs was used as a cloak room for the ladies. The reception committees were very attentive in their duties and made all welcome. Owing to the great crowd, it was after nine o'clock when the company were called to order in Form III, by Principal Nesbit, who introduced the chairman of the evening, Mr. G. A. Aylesworth, Chairman of the Board of Education. The Glee Club opened the programme with a chorus, Mr. Aylesworth following with a short address, which was listened to with rapt attention. During the evening, the speaker made reference to the early history of the academy, the fact that years ago a score of students from Ontario Ladies' College came to Newburgh Academy to complete their course, to the public exhibitions held here years ago and to the debt we owe to the value of education, the influence of school life upon the character of the rising generation and their training the love and esteem of their pupils.

The programme consisted of readings by Miss Bradden, Frank Ryan, James Pomeroy and Timothy Pomeroy all of which were well done; a violin solo by F. G. Millar, with piano accompaniment, Miss Graham; a six-mouth organ quartette by Messrs. Nesbit, Quinn, Aylesworth and Spafford; a round by eight girls, a chorus by the boys, and an instrumental solo by Mr. Pearl Nesbit. The closing number was "The Burglar Alarm," a dialogue put on by Misses Pearl Patterson, Mary Vanalstine, Mina Myers, Harry Wagar, John Perry and Percy Nesbit, the latter playing the comedy role of Aunt Diana, in fine fashion.

Refreshments, consisting of sandwiches, cake and coffee were served by the students, and the rest of the evening was spent in promenading, which all took part. The gathering broke up at 12.30, all pleased with their evening's entertainment. Principal Nesbit and his staff of workers are to be congratulated on the great success of the first home. It is a pleasant task handling five hundred people, and the fact that everything went smoothly, each number being carried out with promptness, speaks volumes of praise for those having the arrangements in charge.

Among the out-of-town guests we noticed B. J. Brethen, Charles Miller and wife, Switzerville; Jos. Gardiner and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Stover, Mr. and Mrs. Bicknell, Alex. Dickson, Mr. Longmore, Camden East; Miss Warner, Miss Edna Warner, Mr. Hinch, Miss Martin, Colebrook; Miss Chinnick, Miss Helen Herrington, Miss Jean Gibson, Will. A Specialist's Prescription for women

Who Feel Tired and Run Down.

A Remedy that Gives New Life and Vigor and makes Women Feel Good.

Dr. Hugo's Health Tablets for Women are the prescription of a specialist.

We don't say that no other living physician could prescribe so good a remedy for women. But we do say this. The ordinary practising physician cannot prescribe so good a one, and no living physician can prescribe a better one.

Dr. Hugo put into the prescription all the knowledge, experience and skill which he had acquired in forty years' practice as a specialist in women's diseases, and included as well the discoveries of all other great physicians.

All that is latest in medicine—all that has been found useful to women, is contained in them. Nothing useless has been included. Nothing useful has been left out.

The result is, that every requirement of the female system in any possible condition is met by them.

And this fact has been certified to by leading physicians and chemists on this continent, to whom Dr. Hugo's prescription was submitted.

If you are in a run-down condition and don't feel as well as you would like to, or suffer from any menstruation difficulty, or weakness peculiar to your sex, avail yourself at once of the prescription of this great and good physician.

The cost of 72 tablets, enough for an extended treatment, is only 50c.

Dr. Hugo's Health Tablets Make Healthy Women.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Joliette, N. Dakota,
April 10th, 1906.

Dear Beaver,—I wish to acknowledge through your valued columns, the honorable settlement by the Independent Order of Foresters, my claim of $2,000, as the wife of the late F. P. Hodge, who died on 3d Nov. last, at Melfort, Sask. I left Napanee for Manitoba. There has been considerable delay caused by the four points of operation, viz., Shoal Lake, Man., Toronto, Ont., Tamworth, Ont., and Joliette, N. Dakota, being at such wide spread points of the compass. I also wish to express my deep gratitude and indebtedness to Mr. F. W. Miller, of Shoal Lake, and Mr. D. E. Rose, of Tamworth, for the most kind and prompt assistance given me in establishing my claim. Mr. Rose is an old time and most valued friend, but Mr. Miller, although an utter stranger to me personally, has been equally as kind, considerate and prompt. He claims to have been so on behalf of the Orange Lodge of which the late T. P. Hodge was also a member, but I must say if all the members of the L. O. L. are as kindly disposed as I have found Mr. F. W. Miller, it is certainly an institution for any country to be proud of.

Yours very truly,
F. J. HODGE.

OBITUARY.

MRS. WILLIAM KIDD.

The death of Mrs. William Kidd, which occurred at her home on Thursday, March 29th, has brought forth many expressions of deep regret and heartfelt sympathy for those who are left to mourn her demise. Deceased had been a resident of Sheffield for the past twenty-three years, and was well and favorably known by a large circle of acquaintances. Although bereaved for years she had enjoyed excellent health until a few weeks previous to her death, when she contracted a cold which developed into pneumonia, to which she finally succumbed. She was a member of the R. C. church, and a deep regret for the lively interest she took in all exercises which related to her religion. The remains were placed in the vault at Erinsville. A husband, two sons and two daughters survive to mourn her loss.

VINE—TREELWEES.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at the Eastern Methodist parsonage, at high noon on Monday, 16th April, when one of Napanee's popular young ladies, Miss Ethel Maude Vine, was united to Mr. William Wesley Treleaven, of Toronto, by Rev. W. H. Emsley. The bride is the daughter of our respected townsman, Mr. John Vine, whilst the groom during his short residence here had won golden opinions from those with whom he was associated, both in business and church life. Only a few, the immediate friends of the bride, witnessed the ceremony, the arrangements having been completely changed owing to illness in the family of bride. We wish the young folk all the best wishes and blessings on the occasion and long life to enjoy all temporal prosperity.

WEDDING BELLS.

Monday, April 16th, was a gala day at "Stone Villa", Bathburn, the residence of Mr. and Mrs. J. G. May, when their eldest daughter, Miss Eliza A., was married to Mr. J. Albert Knox, and their youngest daughter, Miss Alice Helen, to Mr. Percy A. Axon, both gentlemen from near Trenton. While the wedding march was being played by Mrs. E. J. May, the bride and groom, attended by their father, carrying bouquets of white carnations, passed through a floral arch formed by four beautifully decorated flower girls, taking their places under a large wedding bell. The flower girls were Miss Edith Cecil and Miss Hazel McMullen, of Trenton. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. W. J. McMullen, of Trenton, brother-in-law of the bride and ladies, at 10 o'clock a.m. in the presence of some fifty invited guests. The presents were both valuable and useful. That of Mr. Knox and his bride a beautiful cut glass smelling bottle and that of Mr. White to his bride a beautiful set of silver. The flower girls and ring bearer received pearl brooches. The parents' gifts to their daughters were in cash. After a dainty and sumptuous repast which was served in courses, the happy couples drove in rigs to Dunlop, taking the train on Tuesday morning for Toronto, when Mr. and Mrs. Knox will go west on their honeymoon, amongst relatives at Hartlin and London, and Mr. and Mrs. White going east, taking in Cobourg and other points. Miss Eliza was beautifully gowned in cream crepe de chine, with lace and satin trimmings. Her going away dress was of black taffeta silk with tuscan hat. Miss Alice was charmingly attired in cream voile de sole, with lace and satin trimming, and her going away dress was blue chiffon broadcloth and hat to match, white chiffon. Both couples will take up their residence in Sidney township, near Trenton, where receptions await them.

GRIP QUICKLY KNOCKED OUT.

"Some weeks ago during the severe winter weather both my wife and myself contracted severe colds which speedily developed into the worst kind of la grippe with all its miserable symptoms," says Mr. J. S. Eggert, of Maple Landing, Iowa. "Pains in the head, back, knees and aching, muscles sore. Then I was stopped up, eyes and nose running, and alternate spells of chills and fever. We began using Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, adding the same with a double dose of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets, and by its timely use soon completely knocked out the grip." AN INSTITUTE TO BE PROUD OF.

Inspector Hodgson after his recent visit to the Napanee Collegiate Institute has sent in his report, which should be very satisfactory to parents, pupils and all interested in its success, as the following will show:

Grading of Accommodations.

Water closets 1, water supply 1, school grounds 1, school buildings 1, cloak rooms 1, halls 1, waiting rooms 2, cap rooms 1, teachers' private rooms 2, desks 1, blackboards 1, lighting 1, heating 1, ventilation 1, gymnasium 1. The school premises are all well looked after by an efficient caretaker.

Organization.

I. Batte of pupils to teachers, slightly in excess of 38 to 1, which is considered somewhat too great.

II. Division of duties among teachers, judicious.

III. Provision for teaching the classes—Good provision is made for all the classes that are taken up.

Character of the Teaching.

English and History 1, Mathematics 2, Science 1, Classics 1, French and German 2, Commercial 1, Art 1, Drawing 1, Drill, Calisthenics, Gymnastics 1.

Character of the Pupils' Work.

I. Book-keeping sets, eminently satisfactory.

II. Work in Art. The success attending the introduction of painting is very gratifying.

III. Note Books in Science, excellent.

IV. Drill, Calisthenics and gymnastics, excellent.

Special Report.

This Institute will in my opinion be entitled to rank as approved.

General Remarks.

This Collegiate Institute continues to be characterized by excellent organization and management and the methods of teaching in the various departments are in keeping therewith.

The attendance has overtaxed the capacity of the building, as well as of the accommodation and consequently the removal of the latter must be hastened as soon as possible.

There cannot be different degrees of purity any more than there can be different degrees of honesty.

If a man be honest, that is all he can be. There is no superlative.

One flour cannot be purer than another. It can only be more nearly pure.

In these times when all flour manufacturers are claiming purity you should remember these two things:

Actual purity in flour can only be secured by the use of electricity.

THE LUST OF HATE

From where I stood, to the place where the man and beast lay, was scarcely eighty yards; therefore, to the spot where the enemy were in ambush, not more than a hundred. For some reason—why, I shall never be able to explain—an irresistible desire to save the injured man came over me. I could not have resisted it, even had I wished to do so. Accordingly, I placed my rifle against the axle, sprang upon the box of the wagon-wheel, vaulted over, and ran as hard as I could go towards the victim of the accident. Ahead of me I could distinctly see the nodding plumes of the foe as they crouched behind their enormous shields. They did not, however, move, and I was thus enabled to reach the man's side at least as soon as my arms unmoleted. I had not gone ten yards on my return journey, however, before I heard their yells, and knew that they were after me. Fortunately, I had nearly a hundred and twenty yards start; but I had a heavy man to carry, and was quite out of breath. However, I was not going to be beaten, so putting out every ounce of strength I boasted in my body, I raced on. By this time I reached the wagons again, the foe were not fifty yards behind me. A couple of assegais whistled past me by ears as I climbed over the wheel and dropped my burden on the ground, but fortunately neither hit me. So exhausted was I that for a moment I leant against the wagon, unable to move. But the instinct of self-preservation gave me strength, and picking up my rifle I let drive blindly at the nearest of the foe who was about to spring on the wheel before me. I saw the man's forehead open out like a cracked walnut as my shot caught it, and for a moment later he fell forward on the tyre—dead. I threw him off in time to shoot the next man as he took his place. Of the following five minutes my only recollection is a sense of burning heat; a throat and mouth parched like the sands of the Great Sahara; a rifle growing every moment hotter in my hand, and dominating all the necessity of steadying, at any cost, the crowd of black humanity that seemed to be overwhelming me. How long the fight lasted I cannot say. But at last a cheer from the other side of the lager reached me, and almost at the same instant the enemy turned tail and fled for their lives. Then, with an empty rifle at my feet, a dripping cutlass in one hand, and a still smoking revolver in the other, I leant against the wagon and finished hysterically till I fell fainting to the ground.

CHAPTER XIII.

When I recovered consciousness I found a stranger dressed in uniform kneeling beside me. He was not the singular still I was not under the wagon as before, but was lying surrounded by a dozen or so of my own grades in the verandah of my own house. Agnes was kneeling beside me, and her father was holding a basin of water at my feet.

"There is nothing at all to be alarmed about, my dear young lady," the man in uniform was saying as he took my pulse. "Your friend has a right to fight another day, or a hundred days for that matter. By this time tomorrow he'll be as well as ever." Then, turning to me, he asked: "how do you feel now?"

I replied that I felt much stronger; and then, looking up at Mr. Maybourne, enquired if we had beaten off the enemy.

"They have been utterly routed," replied the gentleman I addressed. "The credit, however, is due to Captain Haviland and his men; but for their timely arrival I fear we should have been done for. Flesh and blood could not have stood the strain another half hour."

"Stuff and nonsense," said the doctor, for such I afterwards discovered he was, "all the credit is due to yourselves; and, by George, you deserve it. A finer stand was never made in this country, or for that matter in any other."

After a few minutes' rest and another sip of brandy, I managed to get on to my feet. It was a sad sight I had before me. Stretched out in rows beyond the verandah were the bodies of the gallant fellows who had been killed—twelve in number. On rough beds placed in the verandah itself and also in the house were the wounded; while on the plain all round lay mounted infantry, who had unfortunately come to our assistance, were unsaddling after chasing the enemy and preparing a meal.

After I had had a few moments' conversation with the doctor, Mr. Maybourne and Agnes came up to me again, and congratulated me on having saved the stranger's life. The pride they gave me was all altogether undeserved, for, as I have already explained, I had done the thing on the spur of the moment without for an instant considering the danger to which I had exposed myself. When they had finished I enquired where the man was, and in reply they led me into the house.

"The doctor says it is quite a hopeless case," said Agnes, turning to me in the doorway, "the poor fellow must have injured his spine when his horse fell with him."

I followed her into the room which had once been my own sleeping apartment. It was now filled with wounded. The man had been laid on my own mattress in the corner by the window, and, with Agnes beside me, I went over to look at him. He had closed his eyes at the time, and, as I approached, he opened them and looked at me. I could see that he shrank a step away from me, and looked at me with an apprehensive glance. But she soon recovered her composure, and asked if I were certain of what I said.

"As certain as I am that you are standing before me," I replied, frowning. "I should know him anywhere. Where is the doctor?"

A moment later I had found the doctor.

"Doctor," I said, "there is a man in that room yonder whom, I am told, you say has a broken back. He is unconscious. Will he remain so until he dies?"

"Most probably," was the other's matter-of-fact reply. "One cannot begin to bind up the arm of the man he had been operating on. "Why do you ask?"

"Because it is necessary for the most vital importance that I should speak with him before he dies. All the happiness of my life and another's depends upon it."

"Very well. Don't worry yourself. I'll see what I can do for you. Now go away and be quiet. I'm busy."

I went away as he ordered me, and leant against the verandah rail at the back of the house. My head was swimming, and I could hardly think coherently. Now that Bartrand was alive, every obstacle was cleared away between me and marry Agnes as soon as her father would let me. There was no do whatever I pleased in the world. The reaction was not less than I could bear. No words could overestimate my relief and joy.

Half an hour later the doctor came to me.

"Your man is conscious now," he said. "But you'd better be quick after if you want to ask him anything. He won't last long!"

I followed him into the house to the corner where the sick man lay. As soon as he saw me, Bartrand showed with his eyes that he recognized me.

"Pennethorne," he whispered, as I knelt by the bed, "this is a strange meeting. Do you know I've been hunting for you these nine months past?"

"Hunting for me?" I said. "Why, I thought you dead."

"I allowed it to be supposed that I was," he answered. "I can tell you, Pennethorne, that money I swindled you out of never brought me an ounce of luck—nor Gibbs either. He turned cocktail and sent his share back to me almost at once. He was drinking himself to death on it, I heard. Now look at me, I'm here—dying in South Africa. They tell me you saved me to-day at the risk of your life."

"Never mind that now," I said. "We've got other things to talk about."

"But I must say it," he answered. "Listen to what I have to tell you, and don't interrupt me. Three nights before I disappeared, Hester, I made my will, leaving you everything. It's more than the value of the mine, for I brought off one big speculation with the money, and almost doubled my capital. You may not believe it, but I always felt sorry for you even when I stole your secret. I'm a pretty bad lot, but I couldn't steal your money and not be a bit sorry. But, funny as it may seem to say so, I hated you all the time too—hated you more than any one man can hate on earth. Now you've risked your life for me, and I'm dying in your house. How strangely things turn out, Pennethorne!"

Here the doctor gave him something to drink, and bade me let him be quiet for a few minutes. Presently Bartrand recovered his strength, and began again.

"One day, soon after I arrived in London from Australia, I fell in vow with a man named Nikola. I tell you, Pennethorne, if ever you've met and beware of him, for he's the Devil, and nobody else. I tell you he proposed the most fiendish things to me, and showed me such a side of human nature that, if I hadn't quarrelled with him at once, I'm sure I don't know I should have been driven into a lunatic asylum. I can tell you it's not altogether a life of roses to be a millionaire. About this time I began to get threatening letters from men all over Europe trying to extort money from me for one purpose or another. Eventually Nikola told me that that I was the victim of a secret society. How he managed it, the deuce only knows. They wanted me badly, and finally Nikola told me that for half a million he could get me clear. If I did not pay up by a fixed date he said, in a month. But I wasn't to be frightened like that, so I told him I wouldn't give it. Then all sorts of forward attempts were made on my life until my nerve gave way—and in a fool's panic I went over to Paris and sold my stock and shares in my wealth and clear out of England in the hopes of beginning a new life elsewhere.

He paused once more for a few moments; his strength was nearly exhausted, and I could see from his eyes that the end was not far distant now. When he spoke again his voice was much weaker, and he seemed to find it difficult to concentrate his ideas.

"Nikola wanted sixty thousand for himself, I suppose for one of his devilments," he said, huskily. "He used every means in his power to induce me to give it to him, but I refused time after time. He showed me his power, tried to hypnotise me even, and finally told me I should be a dead man in a week if I did not let him have the money. I wasn't going to be bluffed, so I declined again, by this time I distrusted my servants, my friends, and everybody with whom I came in contact. I could not sleep, and I could not eat. All my arrangements were made, and I was going to leave England on the Saturday, but on the Wednesday Nikola and I were to meet at a house on the river, dine there, see each other at a club, and I called a hansom, intending to go on and wait for him. I had a dreadful cold, and carried some cough drops in a little silver box in my pocket. He must have got possession of it, and substituted some preparations of his own. Feeling I could hardly believe my eyes; I stared at him and then looked away—only to look back again half expecting to find him gone. Could this be any mistake? I asked myself. Could it be only a deceiving likeness, or an hallucination of an overwrought brain? Hardly knowing what I did I dragged Agnes by the wrist out of the house to a quiet corner, and leant against the wall feeling as if I were going to faint again.

"What is the matter, Gilbert?" she cried. "Oh, what is the matter with you?"

"Matter!" I almost shouted in my joy. "This is the matter. I am free—free—free! Free to marry you—free to do as I please, and as I please to go where I please! ! ! For there is that beast in my old enemy, the man I told you I had killed!"

For a second she must have thought me mad, for I noticed she shrank a step away from me, and looked at me with an apprehensive glance. But she soon recovered her composure, and asked if I were certain of what I said.

"As certain as I am that you are standing before me," I replied, frowning. "I should know him anywhere. Where is the doctor?"

I had a dreadful cold, and carried some cough drops in a little silver box in my pocket. He must have got possession of it, and substituted some preparations of his own. Feeling I could hardly believe my eyes; I stared at him and then looked away—only to look back again half expecting to find him gone. Could this be any mistake? I asked myself. Could it be only a deceiving likeness, or an hallucination of an overwrought brain? Hardly knowing what I did I dragged Agnes by the wrist out of the house to a quiet corner, and leant against the wall feeling as if I were going to faint again.

"What is the matter, Gilbert?" she cried. "Oh, what is the matter with you?"

"Matter!" I almost shouted in my joy. "This is the matter. I am free—free—free! Free to marry you—free to do as I please, and as I please to go where I please! ! ! For there is that beast in my old enemy, the man I told you I had killed!"

For a second she must have thought me mad, for I noticed she shrank a step away from me, and looked at me with an apprehensive glance. But she soon recovered her composure, and asked if I were certain of what I said.

"As certain as I am that you are standing before me," I replied, frowning. "I should know him anywhere. Where is the doctor?"

A moment later I had found the doctor.

"Doctor," I said, "there is a man in that room yonder whom, I am told, you say has a broken back. He is unconscious. Will he remain so until he dies?"

"Most probably," was the other's matter-of-fact reply.

For Thin, Poor Blood

You can trust a medicine tested 60 years! Sixty years of experience, think of that! Experience with Ayer's Sarsaparilla; the original Sarsaparilla; the Sarsaparilla the doctors endorse for thin blood, weak nerves, general debility.

But even this grand old medicine cannot do its best work if the liver is inactive and the bowels constipated. For the best possible results, you should take laxative doses of Ayer's Pills while taking the Sarsaparilla.

Made by J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass. Also manufacturers of Ayer's AGUE CURE. CHERRY PECTORAL. HAIR VIGOR.

We have no secrets! We publish the formulas of all our medicines.

JOE THE BANKER (3215)

This fine young horse is growing much in favor since his colts have shown so good. His colts figured prominently at the fall fairs, and one owned by Mr. A. V. Price, of Wesley, took first prize as a foal (not a large mare), in the general purpose class at Napanee, Centreville and Tamworth. Joe is well muscled and a heavy-boned horse, a beautiful dapple brown with small star, has excellent feet and has proved a sure foal-getter. Expect to send him west as far as Wesley, and east through the Oak Flats, reinstated via Verona and Petworth, and will be at his owners' stable two or three days each week.

There is, and always will be, a good demand for this class of horse, and if the breeders of to-day had a regular and adequate supply, a large sum of money would flow into the hands of the farmers.

NO VAR (3459)

Commonly known by his every-day name, "Sandy," has spinned wonderfully well in good healthy condition, and has never been over-done, so should be fully as successful a getter this season as he has proved to be in the past one.

We have had a tempting offer to send this fine young horse to New York State for service by a gentleman who saw him at the fairs, but we have decided not to part with him, as the farmers here have given us a good patronage, and "Sandy" has a wide reputation as being one of the best Clydesdales in Ontario. His colts are well and favorably known; some from ten to eleven months old could not be bought for $100 each. We expect to send him to Enterprise and Yarker, and possibly to Centreville and Camden East, and will be at his owners' stable when Joe is out, about three days each week. Both Sandy and Joe balanced the scales at 1,750 lbs. on 19th April, and will likely go 1,800 each by May 1st. See bills for particulars.

Boys' Wash Suits, Boys' Odd Knicker Pants.

Linoleums and Floor Oilcloths Direct from Scotland.

Last fall when the Scotch makers were having their little scrap over prices, we stepped in and placed our entire spring and summer order. It made a big shipment (the largest of its kind that ever passed the Napanee customs office,) but it was values we were after and now our customers may share the benefit. For instances, Linoleums 4 yards wide that were 75c yd. we got to sell at 60c yd. Regular 50c kinds for 40c sq. yd., and so on right through the list. And best of all patterns that are fine.

Women's Skirts to Order in 3 Days.

If we cannot fit you from our ready-to-wear stock, we have an arrangement with a manufacturer to make us special sizes in three days.) No extra charge. It's a feature that pleases. Particularly the large and small women.

Our Ping Pong Cashmere Hose.

All sizes now in stock. Those who are waiting will take the hint.

NEW MILLINERY.

The Easter rush cleared the way for many new things. We try to keep closely in touch with accepted New York styles. During the week we have added many novelties in the way of shapes, ribbons, flowers and ready-to-wears. Ask to see the latest New York sailor. It has lots of good style.

BABIES' AND CHILDREN'S COATS.

We keep adding to the many lines of our Ready-to-wear Department. For instance we have just added a nice assortment of babies' coats. "Cutie" styles is what the girls term them. Dressy creations of cream serge with silk applique. Also washable Buster Brown styles in navy, Russian and linen shades. Not expensive either. From 1.00 to 3.50.

JAPANESE MATTINGS.

The American idea of using mattings freely for bedrooms, is growing with our people. The Japanese have improved the designs wonderfully. When house cleaning better consider the use of some matting.

WOMEN'S & CHILDREN'S UNDERWEAR

Change of season finds us splendidly ready to fill all demands. Medium and light weights, short and long sleeve garments. For the between season we have had great success with our Zenith Unshrinkable Underwear. It is white light weight wool with a percentage of cotton mixed. We guarantee every garment to be unshrinkable. All sizes vests and drawers from child's size to outsize women.

Upholstering and Furniture Covering Materials.

Just opened some very swell furniture covering material. The exclusive stuffs of course come in fairly short lengths. Rich and handsome silk brocbe in the correct tones of green, tan and red. If you are interested even to the extent of seating one chair you are welcome to see what we are showing.

Lace Curtains.

Our display of Lace Curtains continues. We have a stock to show that we are proud of. If you have a friends that you think would like to see our curtains, let us have the address and we will mail our new curtain catalogue.

Our Double Fold Carpets

Have caught the popular fancy. We believe them to be a good thing, and our customers are pleased with them. Next time you are looking for carpets ask to see them.

Carpet Remnants.

We have quite an accumulation of Carpet Remnants. The best selling carpets in the house are of course in the remnants. We have priced them to clear. Better bring the measurements. Enough in some for small rooms.

—The worst piece of road in town is on Thomas st., from the G.T.R. crossing to John st. We understand Councillor Hornby, Chairman of streets, will have it attended to at once.

—Our Gosport correspondent recently was in error in stating that Mrs. I. Sherman had received the first prize at a party at Mr. T. Tierney's. Mrs. Ferd. Bogart was the fortunate one.

—Mrs. J. Stewart and Mr. and Mrs. L. Evans, Moscow, with Rehah their neighbors and the congregation of Moscow church for the exceeding kindness shown them during their late bereavement. Please accept our thanks through the columns of "The Beaver."

—"The Treason of the Senate," by David Graham Phillips, is the leading article in the Cosmopolitan for May. In this number the writer treats of Senator Gorman, "the left arm of the money power in the senate." Mr. Gorman rose to his present distinction all right—from a page on the Senate floor.

—It is said the Napanee river is full of nets this spring. Last week the inspector problemed the farmers along Big Creek netting the stream for suckers. They claim their fathers and grandfathers netted the stream and until this year the present fishermen have never been disturbed in what they consider their inalienable rights.

☞—We understand it is the intention of a number of residents of the town and county to form a branch association of the Ontario Fish and Game Society. A meeting will be called in a short time to consider the matter. Look out for notice advertised in The Beaver. We are heartily in sympathy with this movement and hope a large number will join the society and assist in the work it has in view.

—Mr. T. G. Raynor, the Ontario Representative of the Seed Branch, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, and an inspector under the Seed Control Act, 1905, was in town on Saturday last, 14th inst., in the interest of good seed for farmers. He is explaining the practical application of the Act to seed retailers, and is on the lookout for low grade seed of such a character as would be prohibited from being sold for seeding purposes by the Act. He reports that the general quality of the seed being offered by the trade this year is much improved.

Mrs. Smith is well known and her many friends wish the young couple many years of happiness.

—Kingston Whig, 11th April—Joseph E. Clark, secretary-treasurer of the Lake Ontario and Bay of Quinte Steamboat Company, celebrated his seventy-fifth birthday. This year also marks for him completion of forty years' service with the grand old Glidersleeve Steamboat Company. Mr. Clark was born in Ernestown, on April 10th, 1831, and is thus in his seventy-fifth year of his age. His ancestors were United Empire Loyalists, and came to Canada from near Albany, N.Y. His great grandfather, Robert Clark, built the mills at the place now called Kingston Mills, and also erected mills at Napanee, both for the British government. Mr. Clark came to Kingston with his parents in 1830, when he was seven years old.

—Imlay City, (Mich.) Record, 6th April :— Rev. F. B. Stratton and wife arrived last week Wednesday for a visit with the family of his sister, Mrs. J. Howell. They were on their way to their home in Kingston, after having spent over four months at supply work in Harbour, Ill. Rev. Stratton created an impressive sermon in the M. E. church, which was highly appreciated, the subject being "Supreme Love to Christ." He was also induced to deliver his celebrated lecture on "A Man Wanted" on Tuesday evening, which was full of good hits on the various kinds of men not wanted, and an excellent description of the one that was. A large and delighted audience greeted the speaker and a unanimous and hearty vote of thanks was tendered him. Mr. and Mrs. Stratton are now en route to Lindsay, Ont., where they will remain until conference, and after that proceed to Kingston.

We are very sorry to hear that Mr. Charlie Rose has sold his farm and intends locating in the great Northwest. He and Mrs. Rose will be greatly missed.

We see Mrs. Sid. Sproule out again, she being confined to the house most of the winter.

The annual vestry meeting of St. Alban's church, Odessa, was held on Easter Monday night. The financial statement was very satisfactory showing the receipts thirty-four dollars more than the disbursements. The last payment on the debt was made during the past year, so that the church can now be consecrated at the bishop's visitation in June. R. Bennett and A. H. Shaw are three years' church wardens. W. Calder, W. Dogherty and T. Graham were appointed sidesmen. The lay delegates are A. H. Shaw for three years, T. Graham for two years, F. F. Miller for one year. Perfect harmony prevailed throughout the meeting. A pleasant incident during the evening was the presentation to Mr. George Ferguson of a handsome morris chair. The presentation was made by Rural Dean Dibb, expressing the sincere appreciation of Mr. Ferguson's faithful labors for many years in acting as sexton without remuneration. Mr. Ferguson was completely taken by surprise and was much touched by this mark of the good will of his brethren. The usual votes of thanks followed by the benediction brought the happy meeting to a close. The service on Easter morning was very bright and happy and well attended.

FOR DOUBTING THOMASES

Amplification of Our Conceptions of God Will Lead Us Away From Human Error and Misconceptions of the Almighty and Into Simple Faith and Obedience Wherein Are Peace and Joy.

Entered according to Act of Parliament of Canada, in the year 1906, by Frederick Diver, Toronto, at the Dept. of Agriculture, Ottawa.

Los Angeles, Cal., April 15.—In this sermon the preacher shows how the human misconceptions of God and his promises lead us into error and that the remedy is simple faith and obedience. The text is John iv, 48, "Except ye see signs and wonders, ye will not believe."

We are always demanding gospel proof. Like Gideon of old, we want our faith bolstered up by the wet fleece. Like doubting Thomas, we want to see Christ in the flesh and to thrust our fingers into the torn palms of the hands and into the wounded side before we will believe that he is risen from the dead. When any fact about God or the prophecies is revealed, we are told as we at once say, "Give us the evidence or we will not believe." Now, I want to show you not only the wrath of God at the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen," but we should believe and trust God and accept his words and promises, even when there are no signs and wonders visible to confirm our faith.

Signs and wonders theological have come to us. God and his attributes pass all the realms of human explanation. The story is told that one day Michael Angelo entered the studio of Raphael. You know that the Florentine master was nearly a decade older than the painter of the Sistine Madonna. As an artist who had won his spurs, he had a right to give advice to the younger man. Michael Angelo stood for some time before one of Raphael's easels. The young man at this time was absent from his studio. Angelo lifted a pencil and drew the curves of the figure upon the canvas along broad lines. Then under the picture he wrote this one word three times: "Amplify! Amplify! Amplify!" You who have stood before the wonderful creations of the architect of St. Peter's of Rome know what he meant by that word. He meant "increase the conception of your subjects." Oh, Raphael, knit the muscles of your model's arms and make your figures stand with broader shoulders and more leonine countenances. The taunting Philistine is not a dwarf, but a giant. The prophet builders of history are not pygmies, but Titans. Neptune's trident does not rule a mill pond, but has for its realm the mighty deep. Amplify! Amplify! Amplify! God is not that tiny conception, in an artistic sense. Good advice for us in a theological sense. We have received certain conceptions given in reference to God's personality, but we must not stop with these revelations. We must be continually enlarging the ideas of God. We must try to gain a conception of him greater than our eyes can see and greater than our human intellects can explain.

We must amplify our belief of God's personality in reference to eternal existence. The first verse of the first chapter of Genesis says, "In the beginning God created the heaven and the earth." But that "beginning" simply alludes to the creation of the world and the planetary system. Friend, did not God exist before what? "Oh, yes," you answer, "God has always existed." But what do you mean by "always?" I follow Hugh Miller, the Scottish geologist, in his "Testimony of the Rocks" and in his "Footprints of the Creator," and he tells me that the six days of creation were not six days of twenty-four hours each, but that each day represented ages upon ages of time. This conception of the time of the creation was endorsed by the Psalmist when he said, "A thousand years in thy sight are but as yesterday when it is past, and as a watch in the night." In the creation of the world the seconds are as centuries, and the minutes are millenniums, the hours are eras, and the days are ages upon ages. If you go and stand by the falls of Niagara, the scientists will tell you that the falling waters wear away about six feet of rock every year. Then they will take you for miles down the rapids, toward Lake Ontario, and show you where those rocks are gradually been worn away by the falling waters of thousands of years. Next these geologists will open the leaves of the rocks and tell you that one rocky ridge which have been worn away took ages upon ages to form. Then, after we go back thousands upon thousands of years to the creation of the world, you are not yet at the beginning of God's eternal existence. Any God existed before the world was. Backward to the birth cradle of this world you must go backward, still backward, further backward, until time loses itself you must go, and there you will still find God's eternal existence. Am I trying to get at saying that the eternal life of God passes all human conception and explanation?

What the eternal existence of God means cannot be better illustrated than by the following words of M. Camille Flammagion, the celebrated astronomer. "But this French writer says about the heavens we can easily apply to the duration of time: "Let us imagine that we sail a million years with the velocity of light, 186,000 miles a second. Are we at the confines of the visible universe? By no means. Immensities we must cross! But yonder new stars are lit up in the depth of the heavens. We push on for three years more we reach them—again a million years new revelations, new starry splendors, new systems, new worlds, new suns! What, never an end? We are at the vestibule of the infinite. We have advanced but a single step. We are always at the same point—the centre everywhere, the circumference nowhere. We see before us the infinite of which the study is not yet begun. We have seen nothing. We recoil in terror. We might fall in a straight line during a whole eternity, nor ever reach the bottom. It is infinite in all directions." So whenever we think of God we are always think of God as still farther back. Backward we can go ages upon ages, trillions and trillions of years, and there we still find God's eternal existence. Am I wrong in saying amplify? Amplify! Amplify! Our conceptions of the life of God in the past and amplify your conceptions of the life of God in the future.

Not only must we amplify our ideas in reference to God's eternal existence, but we must also amplify in the reference to God's personal presence. The Bible tells us that we are made after God's image. "So God created man in his own image, in the image of God created he him, male and female created he them." Does this imply that God is like unto us physically—that he has two eyes, two hands, two feet and a beating heart? Just as the life of Queen Victoria's face stamped upon the English shilling, so some people think God's face, in a physical sense, is stamped upon us. But is this true? Nay. Amplify! Amplify your idea of God's personality. In the Twenty-seventh and Thirty-ninth Psalm I read these words. "Whither shall I go from thy spirit or whither shall I flee from thy presence? If I ascend up into heaven, thou art there; if I make my bed in hell, behold, thou art there; if I take the wings of the morning and dwell in the uttermost parts of the sea, even there thy right hand shall hold me. Yea, the darkness hideth not from thee, but the night shineth as the day; the darkness and the light are both alike to thee." In other words, God is here, God is there, God is everywhere. How can all this be and yet God be like ourselves in a physical sense? Men incapable of conception of spirit actually supposed that God has a human form, as did the ancient anthropomorphites, or an animal form, as did the worshipful idolaters, but the Bible doctrine as expounded by Jesus is, God is a spirit, and they that worship him must worship him in spirit.

Not only does the omnipresence of God pass all human conception and explanation, but his personality, called the Trinity, also passes human explanation. Here we have God the Father, God the Son and God the Holy Spirit. How can you interpret it? A dear friend of mine told me how an old Spanish artist once tried to paint a picture of the face of Jesus. Three faces were all the same. Under the picture, in Latin, were the words, "The Father, the Son and the Holy Ghost." These three faces were all alike; they were like three photographs of one face taken from the same negative. But had that artist caught a true conception of the Trinity? No. He no more pictured the true God than did the artist who tried to picture the face of the Trinity as that of one man. The true conception of God's personal existence and of God's personality passes all human grasp.

But, though I have dwelt long upon my first point, I believe it is the least important of any I shall present, for it is almost an impossibility for any one of us to get away from our belief in an overruling God who was the creator of the universe and who is the author of the wonderful harmonies of the natural world. We are like the student of skeptical Cambridge who, in the days of the feet of that master of anatomy, Dr. Marshall. The great professor was explaining to his class the muscles at the joints of the knee or of the hands After he had finished his talk this student exclaimed, "A man must be a fool indeed who, after duly studying his own body, can remain an atheist." So we say, "A man must be a fool who can study the harmonies of nature and not believe that a master mind, called the Creator and the Ruler, is molding and influencing all." But, after we have studied the signs and the wonders of the heaven and the earth and have accepted a belief in a God, the next question which naturally confronts us is this: "How do we know that this God the Creator is the God who is the author of the Bible, and the God Bible, in which the coming of Christ is foretold and the promises of forgiveness of sin in Christ's blood are made to a dying human race?" How do we know that God is the author of the Bible? Why, by the testimony of the Bible itself. The internal evidences of a manuscript carry their own proof of genuineness. Five centuries ago scientists the Bible has had the test of internal criticism applied to it.

Let the first chapter of Genesis come forth and speak. That is to me one of the most wonderful of all passages of the Bible. Recently I carefully studied it? Suppose that Luther Burbank, California's wizard of flowers and fruits, should write me a new kind of fruit. This fruit may be different from any other fruit ever grown. Then suppose I should be asked to test that fruit. Perhaps it was developed by grafting an Italian grape upon a certain kind of American grapevine. If he told us all this, and we knew that no other such grape had ever been grown, we would believe that he had developed that grape. Well, in the same way thousands of years ago God told Moses how he had created the world. First came the water, then the land, then the grass, then the living creatures in the water, then the animals, then man. "Oh," you say, "that is a simple story." Yes, it is so simple that for thousands of years the scientists were trying to discover the order of creation, and now, much to their surprise, the biologists have found out that the order as written by Moses thousands of years ago is the scientifically accepted order of creation of today. Does not the first book of the Bible bear upon it the stamp of God's authorship? Was not its story of creation told before science was born?

Then the miracles of Jesus and the recorded biographies of Christ. How are you going to get around them? Are you going to regard Christ as a fraud and an impostor and yet call him the best of men, as nearly all infidels and agnostics do? I can understand how Voltaire could despise and blaspheme Christ, but I do not understand how Rousseau and Jean Paul Richter could be so illogical as to represent Christ at the same time as a model for humanity and yet as a self-deceived fanatic.

Are you going to take the ridiculous and illogical stand which a noted editor of a city newspaper did when he wrote to a lawyer friend of mine a letter that went thus: "A man who drinks can preach a better temperance lecture than all the fanatics on earth. But you cannot make men good by law. I am not a believer in religion, so called, but I have sometimes long ago that the ultimate redemption of the children of men must come through the inculcation in their hearts of the religion of Jesus Christ. If men make Christ the model, even though it be a superstition, as I believe, virtue will dominate the world of vice and sin will be minimized. But it must come through moral suasion and not through force and compulsion." Now, my friend is that your illogical mind? Are you prepared to assert with your one breath that Jesus Christ is the best of all human beings and then to assert with your next breath that Christ is a deceiver. Nay, nay, not that. As an intelligent man you should be ready to say here and now: "No man could have uttered such words as did Jesus Christ unless he was true. And therefore, if Christ is true, Christ is the Son of God." By the law of logic and common sense we cannot get away from this conclusion. The Bible biographies of Christ, by their internal evidence, prove that Christ's life was divine.

Now, having seen enough of the signs and wonders of the Bible to prove that it is of divine authorship, I am ready to make a confession. I am ready to confess that this holy book is filled with mysteries. Like a blind man, I bump up against them everywhere. But because I cannot understand why God should so love the world that he gave his only begotten Son that whosoever believeth on him should not perish, but have everlasting life, is that any reason why I should reject that divine offer of pardon and eternal life? "Nay, nay," again I say. Why all the promises of God are given to us I cannot explain. But those promises are there. And because they are there I will accept them and live by them and let the explanations for eternity. I have had given to me enough proof to know that the Bible is true. Therefore I will accept upon the faith of those promises the things I cannot understand.

But now, believing that God is a loving Father and that the Bible is given to us by divine inspiration, the next difficult question which confronts us is this: "Why does a loving Father, who is preparing such felicity for us on the other side of the grave, allow so much misery and suffering and injustice to us? Are ones on this side of the grave?" for we all can say with the Psalmist, "I have seen the wicked in great power and spreading himself like a green bay tree." Yes, we have seen wicked Dives in a palace and good Lazarus as a beggar in the gate of the latter. But that is not the universal rule. Religion has in it the promise of the life that now is. A proof of the fact we may see around us in prosperous, happy men, who are leading good Christian lives.

Let me prove this statement by the testimony of one of the greatest of English statesmen of the past century, Hon. William E. Gladstone, who once said: "Christianity is the religion in the communion of whose professors is lodged a proportion of power far exceeding its superiority of numbers, and this power is found in the physical, as accumulated in the hands of Christians in a proportion absolutely overwhelming, and the superiority of influence is not less remarkable than that of force. This is not surprising, for all the elements of influence have come home within the Christian precinct. The art, the literature, the systematized industry, invention and commerce in one word, the power of the world are almost wholly Christian. The nations of Christendom are everywhere arbiters of the fate of non-Christian nations." When people as a nation have honored God there God has always honored and blessed them. Behold the signs of these blessings everywhere prove that God is looking after and caring for them. Do you not know how God blesses his own in great numbers, I am ready to believe that he is blessing me in the same way, and he permits the heavy hand of trouble to fall upon them. I cannot understand always why God permits trouble, but I am ready by faith to accept it as a blessing. And why should not we accept as a blessing the troubles which come to God's dear ones, although we cannot understand why these troubles come? Do we not, as parents, often have to do that which may seem cruel or hard to our children, and why do we thus afflict for our children's good?

In closing I would bid you set your gospel compass. I want you to like the trader going through the western country guided by the beacon light of the North Star and setting out, I would be like a voyager setting sail across the Atlantic. He does not go in a haphazard way to a fisherman of Nantucket and say, "Will you with your sailboat take me to Europe?" But he goes down to the office of a great transatlantic line. There he selects his steamer. He knows that this steamer is bound for Europe, and under God and commanded by an able captain. When the storms come and the winds blow and the billows leap, he does not rush upon the deck and say, "Let me take that wheel." Nay. He says, "The captain knows best, and he will see me through." So may it be with us in life's voyage. May we step into the gospel ship and say, "Master, Commander, wherever thou takest me I know it is best for me to go. Tell me what to do, and I will do it! But thou, O-Divine Captain, stand upon the quarter deck and command, and all will be well.

Some time ago a little girl was out driving with her father. Suddenly the horse grieved, and in a moment the daughter grabbed the reins from her father's hand, and the leaping horse was quickly caused an accident. But the father said: "Daughter, never do that again. You should learn to trust your father. You will not let any harm come to you when I have hold of the lines." We must walk by faith and not by sight. We must let our God take us where he will. Friend, child, are you ready to let God drive? Know that he loves us, will you trust him even when you cannot always understand him? Drive on, thou King of kings drive on!

CHILDHOOD'S PERILS.

The so-called soothing medicines contain poisonous opiates that deaden and stupefy, but never cure the ailments of childhood. Baby's Own Tablets are guaranteed to contain no opiate, they act on the stomach and bowels and thus remove the cause of nearly all the ills that afflict little ones. In this way they bring natural, healthy sleep, and the child wakes up bright and well. Mrs. A. Chartrand, Ste. Cecile de Masham, Que., says: "I have used Baby's Own Tablets and can cheerfully say that I have found them a real blessing for them." These Tablets are good for children of all ages from birth onward. Sold by all medicine dealers or sent by mail at 25c a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

MRS. SECORD WARTMAN.

One of Wesley's esteemed residents, Mrs. Secord Wartman, passed away fully away to her reward, after a week's illness, Saturday morning, the 14th inst., at the age of seventy-six years. Deceased had been in failing health for several years. She was a daughter of the late Elijah Huffman, Monster Camden, and was married fifty years ago to her beloved partner, who predeceased her about seven years ago. She was beloved by her neighbors and friends, and is sadly mourned the loss of a devoted, unselfish mother by seven sons and two daughters, Coleman, George and John, of Wesley; Mrs. Wm. Shorey, Napanee; Mrs. S. Clancy, Wesley; Mrs. N. G. Shorey, Toronto; Mrs. Paul, Newburgh. Rev. Mr. Jones, of Wesley church, will conduct the funeral services, and Wesley church, will be conducted by her pastor, Rev. J. Mears, who visited her in her late illness, and found her faith firm in Christ her Saviour. He preached an impressive sermon from 1 Thess. iv., 13. And what will ye do in the end thereof?" The mortal remains will be laid to rest in Newburgh cemetery to await the resurrection of the just.

A Few Words to Housekeepers

—FROM—

Henry's Bookstore.

Are you going to do any wall papering this spring? If so, you will certainly gain by examining our stock of wall papers. Our buyer tells us we have got the only entirely new stock in town. Last year we cleaned out the old remnants. Now we have new goods, new patterns, ranging from 5 cents to 50 cents per roll, with ceilings and borders to match. Our sales, we do not have exceeded those of any previous year. The same period, because the patterns, the colorings, and the prices appeal to customers. We will have no show if intending purchasers will only come in and look over our stock. Our prices before buying, because we buy in quantities from 100 to 500 of a pattern, and consequently get lower prices to start with. We will get it at lowest freight rates, while the dealer has to pay 25 per cent. extra on ties by express, and the difference between freight and express charges is in itself a good profit. We can show you 1,000 rolls to select from instead of three tons at one shipment. Our patrons will also get the advantage of our new differences.

We have a new stock of window shades, and will not allow any others to give better values in this line.

Our stock of Room Mouldings is larger than ever before, and the prices are lower than last year.

If you have any pictures to frame, we will be pleased to show you our stock of mouldings, and can guarantee satisfaction both as to price and workmanship.

We are invited to look over the samples—we will take pleasure in showing them. Our queuing is next.

THIS MEDICINE IS BREATHED.

That's why it is sure to cure Catarrh. You see it goes direct to the source of the disease—its healing vapor repairs the damage caused by catarrhal inflammation. "Catarrhozone" always cures because it goes into those tiny cells and passages that ordinary remedies can't reach. Just where the disease actually is impossible for "Catarrhozone" to fail as any doctor will tell you. Don't be misled into thinking there is any thing so good as Catarrhozone—use it and you'll soon say good-bye to catarrh.

WISE AND OTHERWISE.

Proprietor of Travelling Menagerie—Are you used to looking after horses and other animals?

Applicant for job—Yessir. Been used to 'orses all my life.

F. G. T. M.—What steps would you take if a lion got loose?

A. F.—Good-bye, sir, mister.

Waiter," called the young man with the unusual appetite, "bring me a broiled lobster."

"Sorry, sir," said the waiter, "but we haven't any lobsters to-day."

"No lobsters? Why, the menu of this hotel states you have all the delicacies of the land."

"Yes, sir," but lobsters are delicacies on the water."

They Never Knew Failure—Careful observation of the effects of Parmelee's Vegetable Pills has shown that they act immediately on the diseased organs of the system and stimulate them to healthy action. There may be cases in which the disease has been long seated and does not easily yield to medicine, but even in such cases these Pills have been known to bring relief when all other so-called remedies have failed. These assertions can be substantiated by those who have used the Pills, and medical men speak highly of their qualities.

The excursion train had just emerged from the dark and dismal tunnel.

"Henry," said the buxom country lass to the gawky swain who occupied the seat by her side, "what did you mean by kissing me in the dark that place?"

I—I—didn't," stammered the young man, "Honest, I—didn't."

"Then," she demanded, "why didn't you?"

A Purely Vegetable Pill— Parmelee's Vegetable Pills are compounded from roots, herbs and gums, which are known to be in the treatment of Liver and Kidney Diseases, and in giving tone to the system whether enfeebled by age, disease or debauchery through excesses in living. They replace no immoral. Their extraordinary qualities are well known to all those who have used them, and they commend themselves to dyspeptics and those subject to headaches and to all who are in quest of a beneficial medicine.

Willie—I believe if I weren't here Mr. James would kiss you.

Mabel—You awful child! Go out of this room immediately!

To Know is to Prevent—If the men who work in cold water most of the day would wash their feet and legs well in Thomas' Eclectric Oil they would escape muscular rheumatism and render the cold water harmless. Try it and the ill effects of exposure to the cold. Try it after getting wet. Running regions would do well to provide themselves with a supply before starting.

Knicker—Did he look the same color after he horse you gave him?

Bocker—Certainly; he was afraid the horse might come back and he would lose more money on him.

Much distress and sickness in children is caused by worms. Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator gives relief by removing the cause. Give it a trial and be convinced.

One day as he was leaving his office in Peterboro, the late Thomas B. Reed was accosted by a stranger who was somewhat imbibing so freely that he was "seeing things double." After addressing profusely, the stranger managed to ask the Ex-Speaker the way to get to a car for the depot.

Mr. Reed replied, "Go to the next corner; there you will see two cars; take the first one; the other won't be there."

Holloway's Corn Cure destroys all kinds of worms and is a root and branch killer. Who, then, would endure them when such a safe and effectual remedy within reach?

Johnny was a good boy, but he loved to fight, and had been reproved over and over again, and at last his mother promised to battle no more. That very night she overheard Johnny fighting with a cat, cheek and swollen nose.

"Johnny," she cried, "you promised me this morning that you would not fight again."

But I haven't been fighting, ma. This is an accident."

"An accident?"

"Yes, ma. I was sitting on Tommy Diggs and I forgot to hold his feet."

Tit-wood—I thought you said you couldn't charge me anything for the little legal question I asked you?

Lawyer—I didn't. I charged you for the answer.

Rickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup needs no recommendation. To all who are familiar with it, it speaks for itself. A score of years of use in the treatment of colds and coughs, and all affections of the throat has unquestionably established its place among the very best medicines for such diseases. If you get it to-day you will find it to give it. You will find it 25 cents well invested.

Mrs. Norwood—The letter you received this morning was addressed in a woman's handwriting. Are you turned pale when you read it. I demand to know—

Mr. Norwood—Certainly. It was your dressmaker's bill.

"Ma," said the little boy, rushing in the kitchen, "Mrs. Prune says she wants to borrow your flatiron. Says she wants to iron out a lately acquired nerve of it," replied his mother, "That ain't the worst of it, ma."

"What else?"

"It is to last me for what she wants to throw them at."

Judge Dow of New Hampshire said one day: "I seldom get angry when his prevaricators strain my credulity. A friend of mine, who objects to efforts to pry into his personal affairs, recently met a prying old gossip.

"What's the matter with your head?" he said, more for the purpose than because I cared what was the matter.

"Well, sir," replied the gossip, "I'll tell you. You will find it 25 cents well invested.

To Catarrh Sufferers.

Hyomei Cures by Breathing Medicated Air.

The popularity and increase in the sales of Hyomei are unique in the annals of medicine. Such astonishing cures have been made by this remedy that the sale is steadily increasing every year.

The complete Hyomei outfit costs but $1.00 and consists of an inhaler that can be carried in the vest pocket, a medicine dropper, and a bottle of Hyomei. The inhaler lasts a life-time, and if one bottle does not cure, an extra bottle of Hyomei can be obtained for 50 cents. It is the most economical of all remedies advertised for the cure of catarrh, and is the only one that follows Nature in her methods of treating diseases of the respiratory organs.

Breathe through the inhaler for a few minutes four times a day, and your catarrh is cured. That's all. If you cannot obtain Hyomei from your dealer, it will be forwarded by mail, postage paid, on receipt of price. Write to-day for consultation blank that will entitle you to services of our medical department without charge. The R. T. Booth Company, Hyomei Building, Ithaca, N.Y.

MAKE OLD DRESSES NEW.

DIAMOND DYES

The Simplest and Easiest Way of Home-Dyeing.

Their Great Superiority over all other ways of Home Dyeing—A Ten Cent Package will Color from one to five Pounds of Goods—Colors that will Not Wash out in Strong Soapsuds.

Success in home dyeing depends wholly upon the kind of dyes used. With Diamond Dyes, if the simple directions on the package are followed carefully, and the special dyes for cotton are used for cotton and mixed goods, and the wool dyes used for wool goods, there is absolutely no chance of failure.

Diamond Dyes are very simple and easy to use, and by using a stick to lift the goods while in the dye bath there is no need of soiling the hands. For beauty, brilliancy and fastness, no other dyestuffs, whether for home use or for the trade, equal those of Diamond Dyes. The latest scientific discoveries are used in their manufacture; they are guaranteed the strongest and fastest of all known dyes, and will not wash out in the strongest soapsuds, nor will they fade when exposed to the sunlight.

Try Diamond Dyes once, and see how easy it is to make old and faded dresses, waists, ribbons, capes, jackets, etc., look like new.

FASHIONS IN NEW YORK.

New York modistes are just now up to their ears in work, preparing trousseaux and gowns for spring weddings, says Helen Berkeley Lloyd in the May Delineator. All the newest bridal gowns are cut on princess lines, but a distinctive feature is the abbreviation of the princess as we have known it, into the "baby princess. The shirt, with the addition of a Medici collar in the back opens out into train, and is the newest effect in wedding gown. The "baby princess" is not essential but as it adds dignity and grace and helps hold the veil in position, its use is advisable. Silk and cotton repin Dimities and linens have a prominent place in the trousseau, as even has a particularly strong vogue, and is for morning frocks in white and colors in sheerest quality and delicate finish this season are simply beautiful, but not beautifully simple. They are made to match the afternoon gowns and show the same trimming. One finds them of hand-painted chiffon, bordered and inserted with dutch lace, and of mousseline de soie, lace wrought in the daintiest lingerie effects. Many of the bridal gowns are completely veiled. The tucks are delicately enameled, and some are extra long and have a hinge near the catch that they may be folded almost out of sight.

MAPLE AVENUE.

Good Friday was a beautiful day, and the appearance of a warm spring.

THAT PALE, TIRED GIRL

She is in society, in business, at home, everywhere you see her. She's pale because she's tired. She hasn't heard of Ferrozone or she would be strong, bright and lively quickly if strengthens—what an appetite it gives her! How it does put the roses in pallid cheeks! The nutriment contained in Ferrozone puts strength into anybody. Laughing eyes, rosy lips, bright quick movements are the result of the use Ferrozone produces. Thousands of nervous, languid women use Ferrozone—Why not you? A box of fifty tablets, late coated tablets costs fifty cents at any drug store.

FROST FENCE is the cheapest you can buy

The first cost may be more—but the first cost is the only cost.

Suppose one fence costs $40, and lasts, say, for 8 years. That fence costs you $5 a year.

Suppose the same length of Frost Fence costs $25. But the Frost Fence—made of High Carbon Steel Wire and locked with the Frost Lock—lasts for 25 years—at a cost of only $1 a year.

Isn't the Frost the cheapest you can buy? Frost Fences are for sale by

WHICH?

NO BUTTER LOST THIS WAY

Which way do you skim your milk? It is hard sometimes to realize just how great the loss of cream is in the gravity pans. Some people may not believe that a

U.S. CREAM SEPARATOR

skims enough closer than the old way to increase their butter yield one-fourth or more. But it does, and there's a plain reason for it. When you set milk the cream and skim milk are separated from one another by the force of gravity, but when you skim milk with a U. S. Separator centrifugal force, which is thousands of times stronger than gravity, does the separating. It squeezes out the last drop of cream. Cream is money—you can't afford to waste it. If you keep three or more cows it will pay you to buy a U. S. Separator. Come in and look one over, anyway. They are sold by

Easier for Women.

How many women fairly groan under too much work? How many despair of ever getting through washing milk things? How many say, "Oh, if I just had fewer pans, cloths and cans, I could read, write or sew more, or even take a little rest each day."

An Easier Time

Ask your husband to make the dairy work 50 per cent. easier, 50 per cent. neater 50 per cent. more pleasant, and 50 per cent. more profitable by using a Sharples Tubular Cream Separator. Until you try the Tubular you can't imagine the difference it makes. It skims the milk immediately after milking—there's no milk standing around—no cans and pans to wash. The Tubular is so simple and convenient. Come with your husband and let us take a Tubular apart for you.

THE NEW FERRY.

A deputation from Napanee will hold a meeting in the Town Hall, Adolphustown, on Monday evening, 30th April, at 7 o'clock, to create an interest in the proposed new ferry and to obtain assistance in building the road to the island. A large attendance of those interested is requested. The same afternoon the deputation will meet the Council of South Fredericksburgh, at the town hall, Sillsville, at 2 o'clock.

SALVATION ARMY.

On Saturday and Sunday, April 21st and 22d, Brigadier Turner, assisted by the Belleville brass band, will conduct the re-opening services in the Salvation Army barracks. On Saturday night a musical festival will be given by the band at 8 o'clock. At 11 a.m., 3 and 8 p.m. on Sunday special services will be held, led by the provincial officer, assisted by the band. A welcome to all.

IMPORTANT EVENT.

The corner stone of the new Eastern Methodist church will be laid on Thursday, 3d May, at 11 o'clock, by Mr. Harvey Warner, of Napanee. At the close of the ceremony dinner will be served in the Town Hall by the Ladies' Aid Society.

A bazaar for the sale of fancy and useful articles will be held on Thursday and Friday, 3d and 4th April, in the Town Hall, for the benefit of the Building Fund.

SALE OF HOUSEHOLD GOODS.

Mr. T. D. Pruyn offers for sale by Public Auction, at Milligan's carriage shop, in rear of Smith's jewelry store, on Saturday, 21st April, at 1 o'clock sharp, the following household goods—Piano, Sewing Machine, two Cook Stoves, one Gas Stove, Book Case, Wardrobe, Bedroom Sets, Chairs, Tables, Sofas, Carpets, Rocking Chairs, Dishes, Ice Tongs, Picks, Shovels, Harness, and other articles too numerous to mention. E. S. Lapum, Auctioneer.

HOW THEY DO IT IN PICTON.

The annual meeting of the Glenora Ferry Fund was held in Picton last week. It was reported that the trade from Adolphustown had been increased since the ferry began running. Officers for the coming season were elected. A committee was appointed to wait upon Picton merchants for subscriptions to the local papers to be sent to residents of Adolphustown until the end of the year. It was suggested that the merchants give a ferry ticket to every one who came across the ferry and made a cash purchase of $5 or over. This arrangement was carried out last year with beneficial results.

FREE POULTRY LECTURES.

The Napanee Poultry Association have made arrangements to have Mr. W. R. Graham, Manager of the Poultry Department, Ontario Agriculture College, Guelph, to deliver lectures in the Town Hall, Napanee, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon and 8 o'clock in the evening on Saturday, 28th April. Mr. Graham is conversant with all lines of poultry industry but is especially at home along practical lines such as "the running of incubators," "rearing of early chickens," "the production of eggs," "fattening poultry for market," etc. These lectures should be especially interesting to farmers and all those who are engaged in the poultry industry. Being also a poultry fancier he will no doubt be able to interest those who take an interest in this line of the work.

PETTY BURGLARIES.

Burglars operated in Napanee last Sunday, both during the day and night, but were not very successful, except that they evidently satisfied their appetites. While the family were away at church the residence of Mr. M. S. Stover, Desoronto Road, just west of the town, was entered, but nothing but a pocket-knife is missing. They forced the cellar door at the rear of the house, and ransacked the place, prying off locks on a sideboard and dresser. They also made a meal of whatever was to be had in the pantry.

On Sunday night probably the same parties forced the front door of Wales' grocery, and apparently helped themselves to something to eat. Two jack knives that had been left on the showcase Saturday night, are missing.

Pruyn's liquor store was next entered. The safe is always left unlocked, but two wooden compartments inside were smashed open and a drawer of papers taken. Next day Master Ross Dafoe found the box and contents back of the big mill.

It is thought the perpetrators are from a neighboring city, but as yet sufficient evidence is not forthcoming to warrant their arrest.

FIRST CLASS ENTERTAINMENT.

The popular and talented Concert Comedian of the City of Toronto, Will J. White, assisted by a number one accompanist, will D.V. give a splendid programme in Hagan's Hall, Camden East, on Friday, April 27th, 1906, under the auspices of the congregation of St. Luke's church. The large audience who heard Will J. White at the Xmas tree at Camden East, will look forward to another most enjoyable evening. Doors open at 7.30 p.m. Adults, 25 cents; children, 10 cents. Rum, rum, rum. 14a

CONCERT AT BATH.

The Bath Amateur Dramatic Club scored a great success in the comedy drama, "Happy Hollow," which was given by them in the town hall, Bath, on Tuesday evening, April 17th, in the interest of a public library. The hall was packed to the doors, all available standing space being occupied. The members of the club are to be congratulated upon the very creditable manner in which they presented the entertainment, each being strong in the character taken. The library committee gratefully acknowledges the services of the Bath Amateur Dramatic Club who so ably assisted them by depositing in the treasury the handsome sum of $45.00, the net result of their efforts, and first deposit to the credit of the library. We are now ready for subscriptions.

CARSCALLEN—SOLMES.

A very quiet and pretty wedding took place at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. N. Carscallen, Deseronto, at eight o'clock Monday evening, 16th April, when their second daughter, Emma May, was united in marriage to Fred. C. Solmes, of Peterboro', formerly of Deseronto, by Rev. A. J. H. Sipkin. The bride wore a very becoming travelling suit of blue, with silk blouse. They were unattended. After the ceremony and congratulations the immediate friends of the contracting parties entered the dining room, where a very dainty supper awaited them. They received many handsome and useful presents, the groom's present to the bride was a gold watch. Mr. and Mrs. Solmes left for their new home in Peterboro'.

PARISH OF CAMDEN.

Easter Day was a Red Letter Day in the history of the Parish. Two services were held at Newburgh, at 6 a.m. and 7 p.m. Two at Yarker, at 8.45 a.m. and 3 p.m., and at Camden East at 11 a.m. The congregations were excellent, offerings liberal, and a great many made their Easter Communion. The floral decorations were in good taste. Music hearty and congregational, reflecting credit on both the organists and the choirs. A feature of the day was the splendid offerings made by the three Sunday School pupils for mission work in the Northwest of Canada, amounting to nearly $25.00, the best in the history of the Parish. The loose cash offerings for church expenses were better than last year. The special Lenten services were well attended this year.

CAUGHT COLD WHILE HUNTING A BURGLAR.

Mr. Wm. Thos. Lancegon, provincial Constable at Chapleau, Ontario, says, "I caught a severe cold while hunting a burglar in the forest swamp last fall. Seeing Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, I tried it, and after using two small bottles, I was completely cured." This remedy is unintended especially for coughs and colds. It will loosen and relieve a severe cold in less time than by any other treatment and is a favorite wherever its superior excellence has become known. For sale at The Red Cross Drug Store. 14a

...on the sea-wall on the coast of ... Rosamund looked across ... ocean eastwards. To right and ... lay a little behind her, like ...tending the person of their ...ician, stood her cousins, the twin ...lding, Godwin and Wulf, tall and ... men. Godwin was still as a ...ure, his hands folded over the hilt ...hing, scabbarded sword, on ... the point was set on the ground ...tain, but Wulf, his brother, ... restlessly, and at length yawn...ud. They were beautiful to look ... three of them, as they appeared ... the splendor of their youth and ... The imperial Rosamund, dark ... and dyed, ivory-skinned and ...ade wasted, a posy of marsh ... in her hand; the pale, stately ... with his dreaming face and ... bold-fronted, blue-eyed warrior, ... Saxon to his fingertips, not...ending his father's Norman

"I know not," she replied, "but often times sacrifice seems easy when one is ... from far away; also, things may be ... lost that are more prized than life."

"What things?" Do mean place, or wealth, or—love?"

"Tell me," said Rosamund, changing her tone, "what is that hot wind ... round the river's mouth? A while ago it hung upon its oars as though those within it watched us."

"Fisher-folk," answered Wulf carelessly. "I saw their nets."

"Yes; but how did them something gleamed bright, like swords."

"Fish," said Wulf, "which are at peace in Essex." Although Rosamund did not look convinced, he went on: "Now for Godwin's thoughts—that were they?"

"Brother, if you would know, of the East place—the East and its wars."

"Which have brought us no great luck, Answered Wulf; "seeing that our sire was slain in them and naught of his came home again save his heart, which lies at Stangate yonder."

"How better could he die," asked Godwin, "than fighting for the Cross of Christ" Is not that death of his at Harene told of to this day? By our Lady I pray for one but half as glorious!"

"Aye, he died well—he died well," said Wulf, his blue eyes flashing and his hand creeping to his sword hilt. "But, brother, there is peace at Jerusalem, as in Essex."

"Peace! Yea, but soon there will be war again. The monk Peter—he whom we saw at Stangate last Sunday, and who left Syria but a very few days ago—told me that it was coming fast. Even now the Sultan Saladin, sitting at Damascus, receives more and more, and hosts from far and wide, while his priests preach battle amongst the tribes and barons of the East. And when it comes, brother, shall we not be there to share it, as were our grandfather, our father, our uncle, and so many of our kin? Shall we rot here in this dull land, as by our uncle's wish we have done these many years, yes, ever since we were home from the Scottish war, and count the kine and plough the fields like peasants while our peers are charging on the pagan, and the heralds tell from the ...ld of battle red upon the holy sands of Palestine?"

Now it was Wulf's turn to take fire.

"By our Lady in Heaven, and our lady Bertha!" cried he, looked at Rosamund, who was watching the pair of them with her quiet, thoughtful eyes "you will be wrapped up and in a shirt of mail, but with a monk's cowl at the last—unless a woman robs you of it and the quickest road to heaven. Tell me now, what are you thinking of you two—for I have been wondering in my dull way, and am curious to learn how far I stand from truth? Rosamund, speak first. Nay, nor all the truth—a maid's thoughts are her own—but just the cream of it, that which rises to the top and should be skimmed."

Rosamund sighed.

"I was thinking of the East, where the sun shines ever and the seas are blue as my girdle stones, and there are full of strange lovings—"

And women are men's slaves!" interrupted Wulf. "Still, it is natural you should think of the East who ...e that blood in your veins, and ...ich blood, if all tales be true, Say, ...ousin—and by heaven to some ...e with an affectation of mockery ...hich could not hide his earnest rev...ence—say, Princess, my cousin, ...ade daughter of Ayoub and niece of ...e mighty monarch, Yusuf Salah-ed-...n do you wish to leave this pale ...d and visit your dominions in Egypt and in Syria?"

She blushed, and at his words her ...es seemed to take fire, the stately ...ion to erect itself, the breast to ...ve and the thin nostrils to grow ...e as though they scented some ...t remembered perfume. Indeed, ...at the moment, standing there on the promontory above the seas, Rosamund looked a very queen.

Hastily she answered him with another question.

"And how should they greet me here, Wulf, who am a Norman D'Arcy and a christian maid?"

"That they would forgive you, since that blood is none so ill either, and for the second—why, faiths can be changed."

Then it was that Godwin spoke for the first time.

"Wulf, Wulf," he said sternly, "keep watch upon your tongue, for there are things that should not be said even as a jest. Be sure that for any cousin here better than aught else upon the earth—"

A Big Field to Draw From

"There, at least, we agree," broke in Wulf.

"Better than aught else on the earth," repeated Godwin; "but, by the Holy Blood and by St. Peter, at whose shrine we are, I would kill her with my own hand before her lips kissed the book of the false prophet."

"Or any of his followers," muttered Wulf to himself, but fortunately, perhaps, too low for either of his companions to hear. Aloud he said, "You understand, Rosamund, you must be careful, for Godwin ever keeps his word, and that would be but a poor end for so much birth and beauty and wisdom."

"Oh, cease mocking, Wulf," she answered, laying her hand lightly on the tunic that hid his shirt of mail. "Cease mocking, and pray St. Chad, the holy saint of this church, that no such dreadful choice may ever be forced upon you or me, or your beloved brother—who, indeed, in such a case would do right to slay me."

"Well, if it were," answered Wulf, and his fair face flushed as he spoke, "I trust that we should know how to meet it. After all, it is a very hard to choose between death and duty."

"I know not," she replied, "but often times sacrifice seems easy when one is ... from far away; also, things may be lost that are more prized than life."

"What things," Do mean place, or wealth, or—love?"

"Tell me," said Rosamund, changing her tone, "what is that hot wind ... round the river's mouth? A while ago it hung upon its oars as though those within it watched us."

"Which have brought us no great luck, Answered Wulf; "seeing that our sire was slain in them and naught of his came home again save his heart, which lies at Stangate yonder."

"How better could he die," asked Godwin, "than fighting for the Cross of Christ" Is not that death of his at Harene told of to this day? By our Lady I pray for one but half as glorious!"

"Aye, he died well—he died well," said Wulf, his blue eyes flashing and his hand creeping to his sword hilt. "But, brother, there is peace at Jerusalem, as in Essex."

"Peace! Yea, but soon there will be war again. The monk Peter—he whom we saw at Stangate last Sunday, and who left Syria but a very few days ago—told me that it was coming fast. Even now the Sultan Saladin, sitting at Damascus, receives more and more, and hosts from far and wide, while his priests preach battle amongst the tribes and barons of the East. And when it comes, brother, shall we not be there to share it, as were our grandfather, our father, our uncle, and so many of our kin? Shall we rot here in this dull land, as by our uncle's wish we have done these many years, yes, ever since we were home from the Scottish war, and count the kine and plough the fields like peasants while our peers are charging on the pagan, and the heralds tell from the ...ld of battle red upon the holy sands of Palestine?"

Now it was Wulf's turn to take fire.

"By our Lady in Heaven, and our lady Bertha!" cried he, looked at Rosamund, who was watching the pair of them with her quiet, thoughtful eyes "you will be wrapped up and in a shirt of mail, but with a monk's cowl at the last—unless a woman robs you of it and the quickest road to heaven. Tell me now, what are you thinking of you two—for I have been wondering in my dull way, and am curious to learn how far I stand from truth? Rosamund, speak first. Nay, nor all the truth—a maid's thoughts are her own—but just the cream of it, that which rises to the top and should be skimmed."

Rosamund sighed.

"I was thinking of the East, where the sun shines ever and the seas are blue as my girdle stones, and there are full of strange lovings—"

"And women are men's slaves!" interrupted Wulf. "Still, it is natural you should think of the East who ...e that blood in your veins, and ...ich blood, if all tales be true, Say, ...ousin—and by heaven to some ...e with an affectation of mockery ...hich could not hide his earnest rev...ence—say, Princess, my cousin, ...ade daughter of Ayoub and niece of ...e mighty monarch, Yusuf Salah-ed-...n do you wish to leave this pale ...d and visit your dominions in Egypt and in Syria?"

She blushed, and at his words her ...es seemed to take fire, the stately ...ion to erect itself, the breast to ...ve and the thin nostrils to grow ...e as though they scented some ...t remembered perfume. Indeed, ...at the moment, standing there on the promontory above the seas, Rosamund looked a very queen.

Hastily she answered him with another question.

"And how should they greet me here, Wulf, who am a Norman D'Arcy and a christian maid?"

"That they would forgive you, since that blood is none so ill either, and for the second—why, faiths can be changed."

Then it was that Godwin spoke for the first time.

"Wulf, Wulf," he said sternly, "keep watch upon your tongue, for there are things that should not be said even as a jest. Be sure that for any cousin here better than aught else upon the earth—"

Rosamund looked a very queen.

"Of Stangate on his right. It was this latter path they choose, since at low tide the going there is good for horse-walking, even in the summer, that of the inland track was not. Also they wished to be at home by supper-time, lest the old knight, Sir Andrew D'Arcy, that the father of Rosamund and the uncle of the orphan brethern, should grow anxious, and perhaps come out to seek them.

For the half of an hour or more they rode along the edge of the Saltings, for the most part in silence that was broken only by the cry of curlew and the lap of the turning tide. No human being did they see, indeed, for this place was very desolate and unvisited, save perchance by fisher-men. At length, just as the sun began to sink, they approached the shore of Death Creek—a sheet of tidal water which ran a mile or more inland, growing ever narrower, but was here some three hundred yards in breadth. They were well mounted, all three of them, indeed, Rosamund's horse, a great grey, her father's gift to her, was famous in that country-side for its swiftness and power, also because it was so docile that a child could ride it; while those of the brethern were heavy-built but well-trained war steeds, taught to stand where they were left, and to charge when they were urged, without fear of shouting men or flashing steel.

Now the ground lay thus. Some seventy yards from the shore of Death Creek and parallel to it, a tongue of land, covered with scrub and a few oaks, ran down into the Saltings, its point ending on their path, beyond which were a wooded bank and a broad river. Between this tongue and the shore of the creek the track wended its way to the uplands. It was an ancient track, indeed the reason of its existence was that here the Romans or some other long dead hands had built a barrier of solid clay of rough stone, forty or fifty yards in length, out into the water of the creek, doubtless to serve as a convenience for fisher boats, which could be alongside of it even at low tide. This mole had in time much decayed, for centuries of washing, so that the end of it lay below water, although the landward part was still almost solid enough.

Coming over the little rise at the tip of the wooded tongue, the quick eyes of Wulf, who rode first, for here the path along the border of the swamp was so narrow that they must go in single file—caught sight of a large, empty boat moored to an iron ring set in the wall of the mole.

"Your fishermen have landed, Rosamund," he said, "and doubtless gone up to Bradwell."

"That is strange," she answered anxiously, "since here no fishermen have come." And she checked her horse as though to turn.

"Whether they come or not, certainly they have gone," said Godwin, craning forward to look about him; "so, as we have nothing to fear from an empty boat, let us push on."

On they rode accordingly, until they came to the foot of the stone quay or pier, when a sound behind them caused them to look back. Then they saw a sight that sent the blood from their hearts, for there behind them, leaping down one by one on to that narrow footway, were men armed with naked swords, six or eight of them, all of whom, they noted, had strips of linen dyed red with ruddle bound about their helms or leather caps, so as to conceal their faces.

"A snare! a snare!" cried Wulf, drawing his sword. "Swift! follow me up the Bradwell path!" and he struck the spurs into his horse. It bounded forward, to be dragged next second with all the weight of his powerful arm almost to its haunches. "God's mercy!" he cried, "there are more of them!" And more there were, for another band of men, armed and linen-hooded like the first, had leapt down on to that Bradwell path, amongst them a stout man, who seemed to be unarmed, except for a long, crooked knife at his girdle and a coat of ringed mail, which shone out through the opening of his loose tunic.

"To the boat!" shouted Godwin, whereat the stout man laughed—a light, penetrating laugh, which even then all three of them heard and noted.

Along the quay they rode, since there was nowhere save there that they could go, with both paths barred, and swamp and water on one side of them, and a steep, wooded bank upon the other. When they reached it, they found why the man had laughed, for the boat was there no more, its painter chain that could not be cut; more, her sail and oars were gone.

"Get into it," shouted Godwin; "or, at least, let the lady get in; it will save us the trouble of carrying her there."

Now Rosamund turned very pale, the face of Wulf went red and white, and he cursed like a drunken man. But Godwin, calm as ever, rode forward a few paces, and said quietly:

"Of your own courage what you need of us. If it be money, we have none—nothing but our arms and horses, as will I think may cost you dear."

Now the man with the crooked knife advanced a little, accompanied by another man, a tall, supple-looking knave, into whose ear he whispered.

"My master says," answered the tall man, "that you have with you that which is more value than all the king's gold—a very lady, of whom someone has urgent need. Give her up now, and go your way with your arms and horses, for you are gallant young men, whose blood we do not wish to shed."

At this it was the turn of the brethren to laugh, which both of them did together.

"Give her up," answered Godwin, "and go our ways dishonored? Ay, with your breath, but not before. Who then has such urgent need of the lady Rosamund?"

Again there was whispering between them.

"My master says," was the answer, "he thinks that all who see her will have need of her, since such lovelyness is rare. But if you wish a name, well, one comes into his mind; the name of the knight Lozelle."

"The knight Lozelle!" murmured Rosamund, turning even paler than before, as well she might. For this Lozelle was a powerful man and Essex-born. He owned ships of whose doings upon the seas and in the East evil tales were told, and once had sought Rosamund's hand in marriage, but being rejected, uttered threats for which Godwin, as the elder of the brethern, had fought and wounded him. Then he vanished—none knew where.

"Is Sir Hugh Lozelle here then?" asked Godwin, "masked like you common cowards? If so, I desire to meet him, to finish the work I began in the now last Christmas twelvemonths."

"Find that out if you can," answered the tall man. But Wulf said, speaking low between his clenched teeth:

"Brother, I see but one chance. We must place Rosamund on her horse and charge them."

The captain of the band seemed to read their thoughts, for again he whispered into the ear of his companion, who called out:

"My master says that if you try to charge, you will be fools, since we shall aim and hamstring your horses, which are too good to waste, and take you quite easily as you fall. Come then, yield, as you can do without shame, seeing there is no escape, and that two men, however brave, cannot stand against a crowd. He gives you one minute to surrender."

Now Rosamund spoke for the first time.

"My cousins," she said, "I pray you not to let me fall living into the hands of Sir Hugh Lozelle, or of yonder men, to be taken to what fate I know not. Let Godwin kill me, then, to save my honor, as but now he said he would to save my soul, and strive to cut your way through, and live to avenge me."

The brethren made no answer, only they looked at the water and then at one another, and nodded. It was Godwin who spoke again, for now that it had come to this struggle for life and their lady, Wulf, whose tongue was commonly so ready, had grown strangely silent, and fierce-faced also.

"Listen, Rosamund, and do not turn your eyes," said Godwin, "for there is but one chance for you, and, poor as it is, you must choose between it and capture, since we cannot kill you. The grey horse you ride is strong and true. Turn him now, and spur into the water of Death Creek and swim it. It is broad, but the incoming tide will help you, and perchance you will not drown."

Rosamund listened and moved her head backwards towards the boat.

Then Wulf spoke—few words and sharp:

"Begone, girl; we guard the boat." she heard, and her dark eyes filled with tears, and her stately head sank for a moment almost to her horse's mane.

"Oh, my knights! my knights! And would you die for me? Well, if God will it, so it must be. But I swear that if you die, that no man shall be aught to me who lives to remember, and if you live—" And she looked at them confusedly, then stopped.

"Bless us, and begone," said Godwin.

So she blessed them in words low and holy; then of a sudden wheeled round the great grey horse, and striking the spurs into its flank, drove straight at the deep water. A moment the stallion hung, then from the low quay-side sprang, out wide and clear. Deep it sank, but not for long, for presently its rider's head rose above the water, and regaining the saddle, from which she had floated, Rosamund sat firm and headed the horse straight for the distant bank. Now a shout of wonderment went up from the woman thieves, for this was a deed that they had never thought a girl would dare. But the brethren laughed as they saw that the grey swam well, and, leaping from their saddles, ran forward a few paces—weight or tow—along the mole to where it met the narrowest, as they went tearing the cloaks from their shoulders, and, since they had none, throwing them over their left arms to serve as bucklers.

The band cursed ruthlessly, only their captain gave an order to his s...okesman, who cried aloud:

"Cut down them, and to the boat! We shall take her before she reaches shore or drowns."

For a moment they wavered, for the tall twin warriors who barred the way had eyes that told of wounds and death. Then with a rush they came, scrambling over the rough stones. But here the causeway was so narrow that while their strength lasted, two men were as good as twenty, nor, because of the mud and water, could they be got at from either side. So after all it was but two to two, and the brethren stood better than many, long swords flashed and smote, and when Wulf's was lifted again, one more stone was red as it had been before, for he tossed it high in the sunlight, and a man fell with a heavy splash into the water. Then, and well, followed there till he died. Godwin's foe was down also, and, as it seemed, spent.

Then, at a muttered word, not wishing to be attacked by others, the brethren sprang forward. The hurt died mob in front of them saw them come, and shrank back, but before they had gone a yard, the swords were at work behind. They swore strange oaths, they caught their feet among the rocks, and rolled upon their faces. In their confusion three of them were pushed into the water, where two sank in the mud and drowned, the third only dragging himself ashore, while the rest made good their escape from the causeway. Some had been cut down, and three had fallen, for whom there was no escape. They strove to rise and fight, but the linen masks flapped about their eyes, so that their breast went wide, while the long swords of the brothers smote and smote again upon their helms and harness as the hammers of smiths smite upon an anvil, until they rolled over silent and stirless.

"Back!" said Godwin; "for here the road is wide, and they will get behind us."

So back they moved slowly, with their faces to the foe, stopping just in front of the first man whom Godwin had seemed to kill, and who lay face upwards with arms outstretched.

"So far we have done well," said Wulf, with a short laugh. "Are you hurt?"

"Nay," answered his brother, "but do not boast till the battle is over, for many are left and they will come on this in force. Pray God they have no spears or bows."

Then he turned and looked behind him, and there, far from the shore now, swam the grey horse steadily, all three upon its back sat Rosamund.

Yea, and she had seen, since the horse must swim somewhat sideways with the tide, for look, she took the kerchief from her throat and waved it to them. Then the brethren knew that she was proud of their great deeds, and thanked the saints that they had lived to do even so much as this for her dear sake.

voice, the band sank from the reach of those awful words, and, instead, sought for stones to hurl at them. But here lay more mud than pebbles, and the rocks of which the causeway was built were far from the shore to lift, so that they found but few, which when thrown either missed the brethren or fell into little heaps. Now, after some while, the man called "master" spoke through his lieutenant, and certain of them ran into the thorn thicket, and thence appeared again bearing the long oars of the boat.

"Their counsel is to batter us down with the oars. What shall we do now, brother?" asked Godwin.

"What we can," answered Wulf. "It matters little if Rosamund is spared by the water, for they will scarcely take her now, who must loose the boat and man it after we are dead."

As he spoke Wulf heard a sound behind him, and of a sudden Godwin threw up his arms and sank to his knees. Round he sprang, and there upon his feet stood that man whom they had thought dead, with a axe in hand a bloody sword. At him leapt Wulf, and so fierce were the blows he smote that the first severed his sword arm and the second shore through cloak and mail deep into the thief's side; so that this time he fell never to stir again. Then he looked at his brother and saw that the blood was flowing out of his face and blinding him.

"Save yourself, Wulf, for I am sped," murmured Godwin.

"Nay, or you could not speak." And he cast his arm round him and kissed him on the brow.

Then a thought came into his mind, and lifting Godwin as though he were a child, he ran back to where the horses stood, and heaved him onto the saddle.

"Hold fast!" he cried, "by mane and pommel. Keep your mind, and hold fast, for I will save you yet."

Passing the reins over his left arm, Wulf leapt upon the back of his own horse, and turned it. Then once more, and the pirates, who were gathering with the oars where the paths joined at the point of the tongue, saw the two great horses thundering down upon them. On one e...ge rode Wulf, his face bright hair dabbled with blood, his hands gripping mane and saddle, and on the other Godwin, white as death, with closing eyes and a face like the face of a flame, shaking his red sword, and with his second time of shouting aloud: "A D'Arcy! a D'Arcy! Contre D'Arcy, contre Mort!"

The band cursed helplessly, only their captain gave an order to his s...okesman, who cried aloud:

"Hold fast!" he cried, "by mane and pommel. Keep your mind, and hold fast, for I will save you yet."

Passing the reins over his left arm, Wulf leapt upon the back of his own horse, and turned it. Then once more, and the pirates, who were gathering with the oars where the paths joined at the point of the tongue, saw the two great horses thundering down upon them. On one e...ge rode Wulf, his face bright hair dabbled with blood, his hands gripping mane and saddle, and on the other Godwin, white as death, with closing eyes and a face like the face of a flame, shaking his red sword, and with his second time of shouting aloud: "A D'Arcy! a D'Arcy! Contre D'Arcy, contre Mort!"

The band cursed helplessly, only their captain gave an order to his s...okesman, who cried aloud:

"Cut down them, and to the boat! We shall take her before she reaches shore or drowns."

For a moment they wavered, for the tall twin warriors who barred the way had eyes that told of wounds and death. Then with a rush they came, scrambling over the rough stones. But here the causeway was so narrow that while their strength lasted, two men were as good as twenty, nor, because of the mud and water, could they be got at from either side. So after all it was but two to two, and the brethren stood better than many, long swords flashed and smote, and when Wulf's was lifted again, one more stone was red as it had been before, for he tossed it high in the sunlight, and a man fell with a heavy splash into the water. Then, and well, followed there till he died. Godwin's foe was down also, and, as it seemed, spent.

Then, at a muttered word, not wishing to be attacked by others, the brethren sprang forward. The hurt died mob in front of them saw them come, and shrank back, but before they had gone a yard, the swords were at work behind. They swore strange oaths, they caught their feet among the rocks, and rolled upon their faces. In their confusion three of them were pushed into the water, where two sank in the mud and drowned, the third only dragging himself ashore, while the rest made good their escape from the causeway. Some had been cut down, and three had fallen, for whom there was no escape. They strove to rise and fight, but the linen masks flapped about their eyes, so that their breast went wide, while the long swords of the brothers smote and smote again upon their helms and harness as the hammers of smiths smite upon an anvil, until they rolled over silent and stirless.

"Back!" said Godwin; "for here the road is wide, and they will get behind us."

So back they moved slowly, with their faces to the foe, stopping just in front of the first man whom Godwin had seemed to kill, and who lay face upwards with arms outstretched.

"So far we have done well," said Wulf, with a short laugh. "Are you hurt?"

"Nay," answered his brother, "but do not boast till the battle is over, for many are left and they will come on this in force. Pray God they have no spears or bows."

Then he turned and looked behind him, and there, far from the shore now, swam the grey horse steadily, all three upon its back sat Rosamund.

Yea, and she had seen, since the horse must swim somewhat sideways with the tide, for look, she took the kerchief from her throat and waved it to them. Then the brethren knew that she was proud of their great deeds, and thanked the saints that they had lived to do even so much as this for her dear sake.

Godwin was right. Although their leader commanded them in a stern voice, the band sank from the reach of those awful words, and, instead, sought for stones to hurl at them. But here lay more mud than pebbles, and the rocks of which the causeway was built were far from the shore to lift, so that they found but few, which when thrown either missed the brethren or fell into little heaps. Now, after some while, the man called "master" spoke through his lieutenant, and certain of them ran into the thorn thicket, and thence appeared again bearing the long oars of the boat.

"Their counsel is to batter us down with the oars. What shall we do now, brother?" asked Godwin.

"What we can," answered Wulf. "It matters little if Rosamund is spared by the water, for they will scarcely take her now, who must loose the boat and man it after we are dead."

As he spoke Wulf heard a sound behind him, and of a sudden Godwin threw up his arms and sank to his knees. Round he sprang, and there upon his feet stood that man whom they had thought dead, with a axe in hand a bloody sword. At him leapt Wulf, and so fierce were the blows he smote that the first severed his sword arm and the second shore through cloak and mail deep into the thief's side; so that this time he fell never to stir again. Then he looked at his brother and saw that the blood was flowing out of his face and blinding him.

"Save yourself, Wulf, for I am sped," murmured Godwin.

"Nay, or you could not speak." And he cast his arm round him and kissed him on the brow.

Then a thought came into his mind, and lifting Godwin as though he were a child, he ran back to where the horses stood, and heaved him onto the saddle.

"Hold fast!" he cried, "by mane and pommel. Keep your mind, and hold fast, for I will save you yet."

Passing the reins over his left arm, Wulf leapt upon the back of his own horse, and turned it. Then once more, and the pirates, who were gathering with the oars where the paths joined at the point of the tongue, saw the two great horses thundering down upon them. On one e...

gold and fear, save that you had been attacked upon the old quay, and she had escaped by swimming the Death Creek—which seemed a thing incredible—I got together what men I could. Then bidding Mary behind, with some of them to guard her, and nurse herself, while she was loth to do, I set out to find you or your bodies. It was dark, but we rode hard, having lanterns with us, as we went rousing men at every cottage, and all came to where the roads join at Mouts. There we found a black horse —your horse, Godwin—sore badly wounded that he could travel no further, and I groaned, thinking that you were dead. Still we went on, till we heard another horse whinny, and presently found the road, also riderless, standing by the path-side with his head down.

"A man on the ground holds him!" cried one, and I sprang from the saddle to see who it might me, to find that it was you, the pair of you, locked in each other's arms, and senseless, it not dead, as well you might be from your wounds. Under the countryfolk cover you up and carry you home, and others to run to Stangate and pray the Prior and the monk Stephen, who is a doctor, come at once to tend you, while we pressed onwards to take vengeance if we could. We reached the quay upon the creek, but there we found nothing save some bloodstains and the print of feet, as I have no doubt, Godwin, the hilt set between two stones, and on the point of writing."

"What was the writing?" asked Godwin.

"Here it is," answered his uncle, drawing a piece of parchment from his robe. "Read it, one of you, since all of you are scholars and my eyes are bad."

Rosamund took it and read what was written, hurriedly, but in a clerkly hand, and in the French tongue. It was thus: "The sword of a brave man. Bury it with him if he be dead, and give it back to him if he lives, as I hope. My master would wish me to do this honor to a gallant foe whom in that case he still may meet. (Signed) Hugh Lozelle, or Another."

"Another, then; not Hugh Lozelle," said Godwin, "since he cannot write, and if he could would never yes words so knightly."

"The words may be knightly, but the writer's deeds were base enough," replied Sir Andrew; "nor, in truth, do I understand this scroll."

"The interpreter speaks of the short man as his master," suggested Wulf.

"Aye, nephew, but him you saw the writing speaks of a master whom Godwin may meet, and who would wish the writer to pay him a certain honor."

"Perhaps he wrote thus to blind us."

"Perchance, perchance, but the matter puzzles me. Moreover, of whom these men were I have been able to learn nothing. A boat was moored to the towards Bradwell—indeed, it seems that you saw it, and that night a boat was seen sailing down and down St. Peter's sands towards a ship that had anchored off Foulness Point. But what that ship's name was I cannot came, and whither she went, none know, though the tidings of this fray have made some stir."

"Well," said Wulf, "at least we have seen the last of her, and of some of those villeins. Had they meant more mischief, they would have shown themselves again ere now."

Sir Andrew looked grave as he answered.

"So I trust, but all the tale is very strange. How came they to know that you and Rosamund were riding that day to St. Peter's-on-the-Wall, and so were able to waylay you? Surely some spy must have warned them, since that they were no common marauders is evident, for they spoke of Lozelle, and bade you two begone unharmed, as it was Rosamund whom they needed. Also, there is the matter of the sword that fell from the hand of Godwin, when he was hurt, which was returned in so strange a fashion. I have known many such deeds of chivalry done in the East by Paynim men—"

"Well, Rosamund is half an Eastern," broke in Wulf, chuckling; "and perhaps that had something to do with it all."

Sir Andrew started, and the color rose to his pale face. Then in a tone in which he showed he wished to speak no more of this matter, he said:

"Enough, enough. Godwin is very weak, and grows weary, and before I leave him I have a word to say that it may please you both to hear. Young men, you are of my household, the nearest to it except Rosamund—the sons of that noble knight, my brother. I have ever loved you well, and been proud of you, but if this was so in the past, how much more it is now, to-day when you have done such high service to my house? Moreover, that deed was done for love of me, and more knightly has been told of in Essex this many a year, and those who wrought it should not be called simple gentlemen, but very knights. This boon it is in my power to grant to you according to the ancient customs. Still, that none may question it, while you lay sick, but after it was believed that Godwin would die, I sent the first we scarcely dared to hope. I journeyed to London and sought audience of my lord the King, and told him this tale, I prayed him that he would be pleased to grant me his command in writing that I should name you knights.

"My nephews, he was so pleased, and bade me write the scroll and bring it for the royal signet, commanding that in his name and my own I should give you the accolade with the long blade and the stroke upon the neck. Therefore, Godwin, the squire, haste you to get well that you may become Sir Godwin the knight; for now, Wulf, save for the hurt to your leg, are well enough already."

Now Godwin's white face went red with pride, and Wulf dropped his bold eyes and looked modest as a girl.

"Speak you," he said to his brother, "for my tongue is blunt and awkward."

"Sir," said Godwin in a weak voice, "we do not know how to thank you for so great an honor, that we never thought to win till we had done more famous deeds than the beating off of a band of robbers. We have no more to say, save that while we live we will strive to be worthy of our name and of you."

well chance, headsound be some stranger."

Now Wulf swore a great oath, then flushed to the roots of his hair, and was silent.

"Nay," said Godwin, "you do not think before you speak, which it is always well to do."

"She were upon the quay yonder" broke in Wulf.

"Forget what she swore. Words uttered in such an hour should not be remembered against a maid."

"God's truth, brother, you are right, as ever. My tongue runs away with me, but still I can't put those words out of my mind, though which of us—"

"Wulf!"

"I mean to say that we are in Pevensey path today, Godwin. Oh, that was a lucky ride! Such fighting as I have never seen or dreamed of. We won it too! And now both of us are alive, and a knighthood for each!"

"Yes; both of us alive, thanks to you. Again ere must I say it, but would never have done it. But as for Fortune's path, it is one that has many turnings, and perhaps before all is done she may lead us round some of them."

"You talk like a priest, not like a squire who is to be knighted at the end of a season on his head. For my part I will kiss Fortune while I may, and if she jilts me afterwards—"

"Wulf," called Rosamund from without the curtain, "cease talking of kissing at the top of your voice, I pray you, and leave Godwin to sleep, for he needs it." And she entered the little chamber, bearing a bowl of broth in her hand.

Thereon, saying that ladies should not listen to what did not concern them, Wulf ceased his crutch and hobbled from the place.

CHAPTER III.

Another month had gone by, and though Godwin was still somewhat weak and suffered from headache at times, the brethren had recovered from their wounds. On the last day of November, about two o'clock in the afternoon, a great procession might have been seen wending its way from the old Hall at Steeple. In it rode many knights fully armed, before whom were carried their banners. These went first. Then came old Sir Andrew D'Arcy, also fully armed, attended by squires and retainers. He was accompanied by his lovely daughter, the lady Rosamund, clad in beautiful apparel under her cloak of fur, who rode at his right hand on that same horse which had swum Death Creek. Next appeared the brethren, modestly arrayed as simple gentlemen, followed each of them by his squire, scions of the noble houses of Salecote and of Dengie. After them rode yet more knights, squires, tenants of various degree, and servants, surrounded by a great number of peasants and others, all of whom had asked and told him this tale, I prayed him that he would be pleased to grant me his command in writing that I should name you knights.

"My nephews, he was so pleased, and bade me write the scroll and bring it for the royal signet, commanding that in his name and my own I should give you the accolade with the long blade and the stroke upon the neck. "Well spoken," said his uncle, adding as though to himself, "this man is courtly as he is brave."

Wulf looked up, a flash of merriment upon his open face.

"I, my uncle, whose speech is, I fear me, not courtly, thank you also. I will add that I think our lady cousin here should be knighted too, if such a thing were possible for a woman, seeing that to swim a horse across Death Creek was a greater deed than to fight some rascals on its quay."

"Rosamund?" answered the old man in the same dreamy voice. "Her rank is high enough—too high, far too high for safety." And turning, he left the little chamber.

"Well, cousin," said Wulf, "if you cannot be a knight, at least you can lessen all this dangerous rank of yours by becoming a knight's wife." Whereat Rosamund looked at him with indignation which struggled with a smile in her dark eyes, and murmuring that she must see to the making of Godwin's broth, followed her father from the place.

"If would have been kinder had she told us that she was glad," said Wulf when she was gone.

"Perhaps she would," answered his brother, "had it not been for your rough jests, Wulf, which might have a meaning in them."

"Nay, I had no meaning. Why should she not become a knight's wife?"

"Ay, but what knights?" "Would it please either of us, brother, if, as may

Then with a lightened heart Godwin returned to the little room that surrounded with rich cloths. Into these, having been undressed by the squires, they entered and their ecclesiastical dresses, while Sir Anthony and Sir Roger spoke to them through the cloths of the high duties of their vocation, ending by pouring water over them, and signing their bare bodies with the sign of the Cross. Next they were dressed again, and preceded by minstrels, led to the church, at the porch of which they found their esquires were given wine to drink.

Here, in the presence of all the company, the two priests, who had been canonics, to signify the whiteness of their hearts; next in red robes, symbolical of the blood they might be called upon to shed for Christ; and lastly, in long black robes, symbolical of the death that must be endured by all. This done, their armour was brought in and piled before them upon the steps of the altar, and the congregation departed homeward, leaving them alone with only the priest to spend the long winter night "in orisons and prayers."

Now, Godwin, he was, in that lonesome, holy place, lit only by a lamp which swung before the altar, Wulf prayed and prayed until he could pray no more, then fell into a half dreamful state that was haunted by the face of Rosamund, where even her face should have been forgotten. Godwin, his elbow resting against the tomb that had his father's beneath, prayed also, until even his earnestness was outworn, and he began to wonder about many things.

That dream of his, for instance, if his sickness when he had seemed to be dead, and what might be the true duty of man. To be brave and upright! Surely, that was the true Creed of Christ against the Saracen? Surely, if the chance came his way, What more? To abandon the world and to spend his life muttering prayers like these priests in the darkness behind him? Could that be needful or of service to God or man? To man, perhaps, because such folk tended the sick and fed the poor. But to God? Was he not sent into the world to bear his part in the world—to live his full life? This seemed a most half-life—one into which no woman might enter, to which no child might be born of, since no maids and wives to certain brotherhoods, all these things, which Nature decreed and Heaven had sanctified, were deadly sin.

It would mean, for instance, that he must think no more of Rosamund. Could he do this for the sake of the welfare of his soul in some future state?

Why, at the thought of it even, in that solemn place and hour of dedication, his spirit quailed, but then there for the first time it was borne in upon him that bestowed this woman in more than human beauty had come to be a joy to him to die for her, not only in the heat of battle, as lately, but almost joyfully in the dark Creek quay, but in cold blood, of set purpose, if there came need. He loved her with body and soul, and, after God, here to her he consecrated his body and his spirit. But could she worship aught upon the gift? What if some other man—?

At this thought, his spirit resting on the altar rails, his eyes fixed upon the beaming armor that he would wear in battle, lamed Wulf, his brother—a mighty man, a knight or knights, fearless, noble, open-hearted; such a one as any woman might love, and he would be also loved Rosamund. Oh! God's will was sure. And, oh! did not Rosamund love Wulf? Bitter jealousy seized upon his vitals. Yes; even then and there, black envy got hold of Godwin, and rent him as sore thirst, cold as was the place, the sweat poured from his brow and body.

Should he abandon hope? Should he fly the battle for fear that he might be defeated? Nay; he would fight as

By now they had reached the porch of the church, to find that the snow was falling fast.

"Let us bide here a minute," he said; "it is but a passing cloud."

So they stayed there in the gloom, and for a while there was silence between them. Then he spoke.

"Rosamund, my cousin and lady, I come to put a question to you, but first—why you will understand afterwards—it is my duty to ask that you will give me no answer to that question until a full day has passed."

"Surely, Godwin, that is easy to promise. But what is this wonderful question which may not be answered?"

"One short and simple. Will you give yourself to me in marriage, Rosamund?"

She leaned back against the wall of the porch.

"My father—" she began.

"Rosamund, I have his leave."

"How can I answer since you yourself forbid me?"

"Till this time to-morrow only. Meanwhile, I pray you hear me, Rosamund. I am your cousin, and we were brought up together—indeed, except when I was away at the Scottish war, we have never been apart. Therefore, we know each other well, as well as any can who are not wedded. There fore, too, you will know that I have always loved you, first as a brother loves his sister, and now as a man loves a woman."

"Nay, Godwin, I knew it not; indeed, I thought that, as it used to be, your heart was other—were—"

"Other—where? What lady—?"

"Nay, no lady; but in your dreams."

"Dreams? Dreams of—but listen."

"I cannot say. Perchance of things that are not here—things higher than the person of a poor maid."

"Cousin, in part you are right, for it is not only the maid whom I love, but her spirit also. Oh, in truth, you are to me a dream—a symbol of all that is noble, high and pure. In you and through you, Rosamund, I worship the heaven I hope to share with you."

"A dream? A symbol? Heaven? Are not these glittering garments to hang about a woman's shape? Why, when a dream came out you would find her but a skull in a jewelled mask, and learn to loath her for a deceit that was not her own, but yours. Godwin, such trappings are not the imagination pictures could only fit an angel's face.

"They fit a face that will become an angel's."

"An angel's? How know you? I am half an Eastern; the blood runs warm in me at times. I, too, have my thoughts and visions. I think that I have power and imagery and the delights of life—a different life from this. Are you sure, Godwin, that this poor face will be an angel's?"

"I wish I were as sure of other things. At least I'll risk it."

"Think of your soul, Godwin. It might be tarnished. You would not risk that for me, would you?"

He thought. Then answered, from my heart, though, in truth, I am grieved that we can be no more brother and sister, as we have been for many a year—and be going."

"Nay, Rosamund, not yet. Although you may not speak, surely you might give me some little sign, who am in torment, and wait for an answer until this time to-morrow. For instance, you might give me some little sign, who might let me kiss your hand—the part sid nothing about kissing."

"I know naught of this pact, Wulf," answered Rosamund nervously, although a smile crept about the corners of her mouth, "but I do know that I shall not suffer you to touch my hand."

"Then I will kiss your robe," and seizing a corner of her cloak, he pressed it to his lips.

"You are strong—I am weak, Wulf, and cannot wrench my garment from you, but I tell you that this play advantages you nothing."

He let the cloak fall.

"Your pardon. I should have remembered that Godwin would never have presumed so far."

"Godwin," she said, tapping her foot upon the ground, "if he gave a promise, would keep it in the spirit as well as in the letter."

"I suppose so. See what is it for an erring man to have a cousin for a brother and a rival! Nay, be not angry with me, Rosamund, who can scarce tread the path of saints."

"That I believe, but at least, Wulf, there is no need to mock those who can."

"I mock him not. I love him as well as—you do." And he watched her face.

It never changed, for in Rosamund's heart were hid the secret strength and silence of the East, which can throw a mask impenetrable over face and features.

"I am glad that you love him, Wulf. See to it that you never forget your love and duty."

"I will; yes—even if you reject me for him."

"Those are honest words, such as I looked to hear you speak," she replied in a gentle voice. "And now, dear Wulf, farewell, for I am weary—"

"To-morrow," he broke in.

"Ay," she answered in a heavy voice. "To-morrow I must speak, and —you must listen."

The sun had run his course again, and once more it was near four o'clock in the afternoon. The brethren stood by the great fire in the hall looking at each other doubtfully—as, indeed, they had looked through all the long hours of the last night, during which neither of them had closed an eye.

"It is time," said Wulf, and Godwin nodded.

As he spoke a woman was seen descending from the solar, and they knew her errand.

"Which?" asked Wulf, but Godwin shook his head.

"Sir Andrew bids me say that he would speak with you both," said the woman, with a curtsey.

"By the saints, I believe its neither!" exclaimed Wulf, with a little laugh.

"We may be thankful for small mercies," and perhaps that would be best for all."

"I don't think so," answered Wulf, as he followed him up the steps of the solar.

Now they had passed the passage and closed the door, and before them was Sir Andrew seated in his chair by the fire, but not alone, for at his side, her hand resting upon his shoulder, stood Rosamund. They noted that she was clad in her richest robes, and a bitter thought came into their minds that this might be to show them how beautiful was the woman whom both of them must lose. As they advanced Sir Andrew stood first to her and then to their uncle, while, lifting her eyes from the ground, she smiled a little in greeting.

"Speak, Rosamund," said her father, "these knights are in doubt and pain." "Now for the coup de grace," muttered Wulf.

"My cousins, began Rosamund in a low, quiet voice, as though she were saying a lesson, "as to the matter of which you spoke to me yesterday, I have talked much with my father and with my own heart. You did me great honor, both of you, in asking me to be the wife of such worthy knights, with whom I have been brought up and have loved since childhood as a sister loves her brothers. I will be brief as I may. Alas! I can give to neither of you the answer which you wish."

"Coup de grace indeed," muttered Wulf, "though bashed, gambeson and shirt, right home to the heart."

But Godwin only turned a trifle paler and said nothing.

Now there was silence for a little space, while from beneath his bushy eyebrows the old knight watched their faces, on which the light of the fire flickered. Then he spoke:

"We thank you, Cousin Come, Wulf, we have our answer; let us be going."

"Not all of it," broke in Rosamund hastily, and they seemed to breathe again.

"Listen," she said; "for if it pleases you, I am willing to make a promise which my father has suggested. Come to me this time two years, and if we all three live, should both of you still wish for me to wife, I will choose and be no further space of pain or waiting. I will name him to whom I shall choose, and marry him at once."

"And if one of us is dead?" asked Godwin.

"Then," replied Rosamund, "if his name be untarnished, and he has done no deed that is base or unlucky, I will forthwith wed the other."

"Pardon me—broke in Wulf.

She held up her hand and stopped him, saying:

"You think this a strange saying, and so, perhaps, it is; but the matter is also strange, and for me the case hard. Remember, all my life is at stake, and I desire some time wherein to make my choice, that between two such men no maiden would find easy. We are all of us still young for marriage, for which, if God guards your lives, there will be time and to spare. Also in two years I can learn which of you is in truth the worthier knight, who to-day both seem so worthy."

"Then is neither of us more to you than the dust beneath your footstool, Rosamund turned red, and her bosom heaved as she replied:

"I will answer that question."

"And Wulf should nor have asked it," said Godwin. Brother, I read Rosamund's saying right. I am one she finds not much to choose, or if she does in her secret heart, out of her kindness—since she has determined not to marry for a while—she will not suffer us to see it and thereby bring grief on one of us. So she says, 'Go forth, you knights, and do deeds worthy of such as I, and perchance he who does the highest deeds shall receive the great reward.' For my part, I find this judgment wise and just, and I am content to abide its issue. Nay, I am even glad of it, since it gives us time and opportunity to show our sweet cousin here, and all our fellows, the mettle whereof we are made, and strive to outshine each other in the achievement of great feats which, as always, we shall attempt side by side."

"Well spoken," said Sir Andrew. "And you, Wulf?"

Then Wulf, feeling that Rosamund was watching his face beneath the shadow of her long eyelashes, answered:

"Before Heaven, I am content also, for whatever may be said against it, now at least I will not be the cause of war in which one or both of us will run a risk, and for this reason, at least no woman can come between our brotherhood. Uncle, I crave your leave to go serve my liege in Normandy."

"And I also," said Godwin.

"In the spring, in the spring," replied Sir Andrew hastily; when King Henry moves his power. Meanwhile, who knows but he will take a wife—and for, who knows—much may happen between now and then, and perhaps your strong arms will be needed as they were not long ago. Moreover, I look to all three of you to hear no more of this talk of love and marriage, which, in truth, disturbs my mind and house. For good or ill, the matter is now settled for two years to come, by which time it is likely I shall be in my grave and beyond all troubling.

"I do not say that things have gone altogether as I could have wished, but they are as Rosamund wishes, and that is enough for me. On which of you she looks in the more favor I do not know, and be you sure I am content to remain in ignorance of what a father does not think it wise to learn of a maid's heart is her own, and her future lies in the hand of God and of his saints, save for all I care. Now we have done with all this business, Rosamund, dismiss your knights, and be you all friends, for as your sister once more till this time two years, when those who live will find an answer waiting."

So Rosamund came forward, and without a word gave her right hand to Godwin and her left to Wulf, and suffered that they should press their lips upon them. So for a while this was the end of the talking of her in marriage.

The brethren left the solar side by side, and had come into it, but changed men in a sense, for now their lives were after the fashion of men's lives, when hate them dare and do and win. Yet they were lighter-hearted than when they entered that room, at least neither had been scorned, while both had hope, and all the future, which the young so seldom fear, lay before them.

As they descended the steps their eyes fell upon the figure of a tall man clad in a pilgrim's cape, hood and low-crowned hat, of which the front was beat upward and laced, who carried in his hand a palmer's staff, and about his waist the scrip and wallet-bottle.

"What do you seek, holy palmer?" asked Godwin, coming towards him, "a night's lodging in my uncle's house?"

The man bowed; then, fixing on him a pair of bead-like brown eyes, which reminded Godwin of some he had seen, he knew not when or where, answered in the humble voice affected by his class:

"Even so, most noble knight. Shelter for a man and bread, for my guile is held without. Also—a word with the lord Sir Andrew D'Arcy, for whom I have a message."

"A mule!" said Wulf. "I thought that palmers always went afoot?"

"True, Sir knight; but, as it chances, I have beggage. Nay, not my own, those earthly gear is all upon my back—but a chest, that contains I know not what, which I am charged to deliver to Sir Andrew D'Arcy, the owner of this hall, or should he be dead, then to the lady Rosamund, his daughter."

"Charged? By whom?" asked Wulf.

"That, sir," said the palmer, bowing, "I will tell to Sir Andrew, who I understand, still lives. Have I your leave, Sir knight, to enter and see if all one of your servants help me, for it is heavy?"

"We will help you," said Godwin. And they went with him into the courtyard, where by the scant light of the stars they saw a fine mule in charge of one of the serving men, and bound upon its back a long-shaped wooden chest, covered with sacking. This the palmer unloosed, and taking one end, while Wulf, after bidding the man stable the mule, took the other, they bore it into the hall, God-win going before them to announce his uncle. Presently he came and the palmer bowed to him.

"What is your name, palmer, and whence is this box?" asked the old knight, looking at him keenly.

"My name, Sir Andrew, is Nicholas of Salisbury, and as to who sent me, with your leave I will whisper in your ear." And, leaning forward, he did so.

Sir Andrew heard and answered back as though a dart had pierced him.

"What?" he said. "Are you a holy palmer, the messenger of—" and he stopped suddenly.

"Sir, I am no prisoner," answered the man, "and he—who at least ever keeps his word—gave me my life—for I had been commanded to take it—the price I brought this to you, and took back your answer, or here, while I have sworn to do."

"Answer? To what?"

"Nay, I know nothing save that there is a writing in the chest in support I am not told, who am but a messenger bound to oath to do certain things. Open the chest, lord, and meanwhile, if you have food, I have traveled far and fast."

Sir Andrew broke the thread and seal.

Sir Andrew went to a door, and called to his men-servants, whom he bade give meat to the palmer and stay with him while he ate. Then he said Godwin and Wulf to lift the box and bring it to the solar, and with it hammer and chisel, in case they should be needed, which they did, setting it upon the oaken table.

"Open," said Sir Andrew. So they ripped off the canvas, two folds of it revealing within a box of dark, foreign looking wood bound with iron bands, at which they labored long before they could break them. At length it was done, and there within was another box made of some kind of polished ebony, and sealed at the front and ends with a strange device. This too had a lock of silver, to which was tied a silver key.

"At least it has not been tampered with," said Wulf, examining it. "Its broken seals, but Sir Andrew only repeated:

"Open, and be swift. Here, Godwin, take the key, for my hand shakes with cold."

The lock turned easily, and the seals being broken, the lid rose upon its hinges, while, as it did so, a score of precious odors filled the place. Beneath, covering the contents of the chest, was an oblong piece of worked silk, and lying on it a parchment.

Sir Andrew broke the thread and seal, and unrolled the parchment. Within it was written over in strange characters. Also, there was a second unsealed roll, written in a French hand in Norman French, and headed, "Translation of this letter, in case the knight, Sir Andrew D'Arcy, has forgotten the Arabic tongue, or that his daughter, the lady Rosamund, has not yet learned the same."

Sir Andrew glanced at both headings, then said:

"Nay, I have not forgotten Arabic, who, while my lady lived, spoke little else with her, and who taught it to our daughter. But the light is bad, and, Godwin, you are scholarly; read me the French. We can compare them afterwards.

At this moment Rosamund entered the hall from her chamber, and seeing the three of them so strangely employed, said:

"Father will that I go, father?"

"No, daughter. Since you are here, stay here. I think that this matter concerns you as well as me. Read on, Godwin."

So Godwin read:

"In the Name of God, the Merciful and Compassionate! I, Salah-ed-din, Yusuf ibn Ayoub, Commander-of the Faithful, cause these words to be written, and seal them with my own hand, to the Frankish lord, Sir Andrew D'Arcy, brother of my sister by another mother, Sitt Zobeide, the beautiful and faithless, on whom Allah has taken vengeance for her sin. Of the child of Zobeide, though he be a Saracen, the greatest man on all the earth's height, I who was a friend of his youth, know well. Ay, and he is right. In a sense I sinned against him as his sister sinned, our love compelling us. Jest! Nay, no jest, but because a vision of the night, which he believes the voice of God, or perhaps some oracle of the magicians has deeply stirred that great soul of his and led him to this wild adventure."

He paused awhile, then looked up and said, "Girl, do you know what Saladin has made of you? Why, there are queens in Europe who would be glad to own that rank and those estates in the rich lands above Damascus. I know the city and the castle of which he speaks. It is a mighty place upon the banks of Litani and Orontes, and after its military governor—for that rule he would not give a Christian—you will be first in it, beneath the seal of Saladin—the surest title in all the earth. Say, will you go and queen it there?"

Rosamund gazed at the gleaming gems and the writing that made her royal, and her eyes flashed and her bosom heaved, as they had done by the church of St. Peter on the Essex coast. Thrice she looked while they read on, then slowly turned her head as from the light of some great temptation and answered one word only—"Nay."

"Well spoken," said her father, who knew her blood and its longings. "At least, how-ever you may" been "yes," you must have gone alone. Give me ink and parchment, Godwin."

They were brought, and he wrote:

"To the Sultan Saladin, from Andrew D'Arcy and his daughter Rosamund.

"We have received your letter, and we answer that where we are there is no bride to wed, such state as God has given us. Nevertheless, we thank you, Sultan, since we believe you honest, and we wish you well, except in your wars against the Cross. As for your threats, we will do our best to bring them to nought. Knowing the customs of the East, we do not send here your gifts to you, since to do so would be to expose them to one of the greatest men in all the world; but if you choose to ask for them, they are yours—but think. Of your dream we say that it was but an empty vision of the night which a wise man should forget.—Peace be upon you and your slave."

Then he signed, and Rosamund signed after him, and the writing was done up, sealed in silk, and sealed.

"Now," said Sir Andrew, "this ends this wealth, since were it known that we had sent treasures in the place every thief in England would be our visitor, some of them bearing high names, I think."

So they laid the gold-embroidered robes and the priceless sets of gems in the chest, and having locked it, hid it away in the great iron bound chest that stood in Sir Andrew's sleeping chamber.

When everything was finished, Sir Andrew said:

"Let us now Rosamund, and you also, my nephews. I have never told you the true tale of how the sister of Saladin, whose name was Zobeide, daughter of Ayoub, and afterwards christened Joan, came to be the mother of Mary, came to be my wife. Yet you should learn it, in order to show how well returns owe to men. After the great Nur-ed-din took Damascus Ayoub was made its governor; then, when three-and-twenty years ago raged the capture of Harenc, in which my brother fell. Here I was wounded and taken prisoner. They bore me to Damascus, where I was lodged in the palace of Ayoub and kindly treated. Here too I was, while I lay sick, that I made friends with the young Saladin, and with his sister Zobeide, whom I used to meet in the gardens of the palace. The rest may be guessed. Although she numbered but half my years, she loved me as I loved her, and for my sake offered to change her faith and fly with me to England if opportunity could be found, which was hard.

"Now, as it chanced, I had a friend, a dark and secret man named Jebal, the young shekh of a terrible people, whose creed has no Christian understands. They are the subjects of one Mahomet, in Persia, and live in castles at Masyaf in Lebanon. This man had been in alliance with the Franks, and once in a battle I saved his life from a Saracen sword at the risk of my own, whereon he swore that did I summon him from the ends of the earth he would come to me if I needed help. Moreover, he gave me his signet-ring as a token, and, by virtue of it, he, it said, power in his dominions equal to his own, though these I never visited. Now I—and bolding up his hand, Sir Andrew showed them a heavy gold ring, in which was set a black agate, whereon was engraving across the stone in the exact shape of a dagger, and beneath the dagger words cut in unknown characters.

"So in my plight I bethought me of Jebal, and found means to send him a letter sealed with his ring. Nor did he forget his promise, for within twelve days I received a letter, dated lopping for Beirut on two horses so swift that all the country of Ayoub could not overtake them. We reached the city, and there were married, Rosamund. There too your mother was baptised a Christian. Thence, since it was not safe for us to stay in the East, we took ship and came safe home, bearing this ring or Jebal with us, for I would not give it up, in the future we took ship and came safe home, bearing this ring or Jebal with us, for I would not give it up, whose oracle has no Christian understands. They are the subjects of one Mahomet, in Persia, and live in castles at Masyaf in Lebanon. This man had been in alliance with the Franks, and once in a battle I saved his life from a Saracen sword at the risk of my own, whereon he swore that did I summon him from the ends of the earth he would come to me if I needed help. Moreover, he gave me his signet-ring as a token, and, by virtue of it, he, it said, power in his dominions equal to his own, though these I never visited. Thence, since it was not safe for us to stay in the East, we took ship and came safe home, bearing this ring or Jebal with us, for I would not give it up, in the future mission was mixed up with this matter. Now I see that the noble lady before me has eyes strangely like those of the Sultan Saladin." And he spread out his hands and ceased.

"You seem to see a good deal, friend Nicholas."

Sir Andrew, a poor palmer who wishes to preserve his throat unsilit must keep his eyes open. Now I have eaten well, and I am weary. Is there a place where I may sleep? I must be gone at daybreak, for those who seek Saladin's business dare not tarry and I have your letter."

"There is a place," answered Sir Andrew. "Wulf, take him to it, and to-morrow, before he leaves, we will speak again. Till then, farewell, holy priest."

With one more searching glance the palmer bowed and went. When the door closed behind him Sir Andrew bestowed Godwin on him, and whispered:

"Friend, now, Godwin, you must take some reward from the Moslems to pay where he goes and what he does for, I feel sure, he has given him—ay, I fear him much! These crusades to and from centuries are a curse to half Christendom now. Also, though he says he longs on it, I think that some he longs, somewhere in England behind, would stop, since the first rebel could shoulder him of an axe, long ere this. Yet, who knows? Where is dishonest would he use knave's tools. Well, I must go and see after such guests as are of rank on this Easter night."

"Ay, and I, too, will think of my dream. I think," shook his head, "I think it was a vision of heaven and wrath on my sins. I have had such dreams before this, and they have been the direct precursors of some great sorrow. Ah, me! I am not sad to-night, and I feel that Saladin is dying or going to die. Saladin is dead! Saladin is dead! Well, I am sorry for him, for he was a great man, and he had a big heart, though he was a Saracen and a Moslem. Saladin is dead! Saladin is dead! Saladin is dead!

Dr. Hugo's Health Tablets for Women

Make Healthy Women.

Upon being taken into the stomach, the various ingredients are absorbed by the blood, and then find their way to every organ and tissue.

Some reach the uterine system. These allay inflammation, stop all drains on the system and make women regular.

Some strengthen the stomach. They help digestion and increase the appetite.

Others act on the bowels. They cure constipation.

Other ingredients stimulate the liver and kidneys in carrying off impurities from the system.

Others reach the nerves. These tone up the nervous system and supply vital energy, thereby curing the nervousness, irritability, and melancholy, to which so many women are subject.

The full effect of all the medicaments in the tablets is to arouse the entire female system to renewed life and vigor.

Improvement is noticed the first week.

WILSON OF LENNOX WILL MOVE
Montreal Star.

Mr Ulrik Wilson, M.P. for Lennox and Addington, has declared that the means to defy the "smoking room" opinion will which he is surrounded at Ottawa and put on the order paper in the House of Commons no less that he will introduce two bills—one to repeal the absurd extreme law possessing every Member who clings to his office for five years, and the other to balk the "indemnity grab."

It is the simple truth that this action on the part of Mr. Wilson has required genuine courage. The fear that have created in the purlieus of Parliament a condition of terrorism that often with many a man, whose soul revolts at the grab all, but whose courage does not equal his perception of duty, is quailing. To stand up to be shot at —as Mr. Wilson has done— is not a slight thing. And what a target will be by all the pea-shooter artillery of the "grabbers" in grab.

The country and his constituency will stand behind him, however; and, in the end, the man who has the people with him is sure to conquer those who command the power to defy "public opinion" of the corridors and smoking rooms of Parliament.

It is a most destructive comment on the character of the "grab" that the "grabbers" do not want it to be discussed in Parliament. They seem afraid to see it ventilated in the press. They feared last session that there should be no chance for a debate to arise; and they entertain towards anyone who insists upon a debate this season the feeling of fear of a sheep-wolf toward the hunter who would expose it from its cave.

But if the "grab" is in the public interest—if it is a good thing for the country—if it is a commendable stroke of public policy—why should it not be discussed? Why should the "grabbers" be "grabbers" do not want it to be discussed in Parliament, they

Does Your Stomach Bother You?

Dr. Shoop's Restorative Cures All Distressing Stomach Troubles Through the Inside Nerves.

As you value your health and happiness don't neglect to care for the stomach. Don't dose it to death. At the first sign of distress use Dr. Shoop's Restorative and cast all these symptoms of coming disease to the winds. Don't say you have a hearty meal with but a sense of fullness to follow. Don't say it fascinates or nauseates you. Neglect the second sick spell and you may have inside distressing indigestion—surely become a sallow, miserable dyspeptic. Do you Feel Like This? toms?—distress after eating, rotten eating, returning of food from mouth, gnawing at pit of stomach, rumbling of gas, belching of wind, sour risings, heartburn, headache, dizziness? If you have suffer in any of these ways, your stomach nutrity is clear—there is but one way open to you to strengthen the inside nerves—these special nerves that govern the whole stomach process. Shoop's Restorative nerves in addition to adding nature intended they should, also increase the digestive juices—just give the inside nerves that vital, nourishing, digestive force, peculiar to Dr. Shoop's Restorative should be taken to do this—is the only prescription which will build up nerves and so restore to health the inside stomach nerves. The BRETHREN

By Rider Haggard, Author of "King Solomon's Mines," "She," "Cleopatra," "Allan Quatermain," "The World's Desire," Etc.

Copyright, 1903-1904, by H. Rider Haggard.

With a roar of rage like that of a wounded lion, he seized his dreadful sword and dragged her back with him down the passage into the solar where a fire burned and lights had been lit ready for their retiring, singing to and bolting the door behind them.

"Swift!" he said, as he tore his gown from him, "there is no escape, but at least I can die fighting for you. Give me my mail."

She snatched his hauberk from the wall, and while they thundered at the door; did it on to him—ay, and his steel helm also, and gave him his long sword and his shield.

"Now," he said, "help me." And they threw the oak table forward, and overset it in front of the door, throwing the chairs and stools on either side, that men might stumble on them.

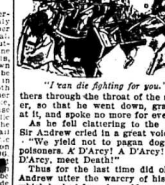
"There is a bow," he said, "and you can use it as I have taught you. Get to one side and out of the line of the sword sweeps, and shoot past me as they rush; it may stay one of them. Oh, that Godwin and Wulf were here, and we would still teach these Pay nim dogs a lesson!"

Rosamund made no answer but there came into her mind a vision of the agony of Godwin and of Wulf should they ever wake again to learn what had chanced to her and them. She looked around. Against the wall stood a little desk, at which Godwin was wont to write, and on it lay pen and parchments. She crossed over and as the door gave slowly inwards, scrawled:

"Follow me to Saladin. In that hope I live on.—Rosamund."

Then as the stout door at length crashed in Rosamund tucked what she had written face downwards on the desk, and resting the bow, set an arrow to its string. Now it was down and on rushed the mob up the six feet of sand-passage. As the first came lit, in front of the overturned table, they halted suddenly. For there before them, skull-encircled, shield on arm, his long sword lifted, and a terrible wrath burning in his eyes, stood the old knight. Like a wall he lay, and by his side, how in hand, the beauteous lady Rosamund, clad in all her festal broideries.

"Yield you!" cried a voice. By way of answer the bowstring twanged, and an arrow sped home to its fellow.



"I van die fighting for you."

there through the throat of the speaker, so that he went down, grabbing at it, and spoke no more for ever.

As he fell clattering to the floor, Sir Andrew cried in a great voice:

"We yield not to pagan dogs and poltroons. Strike over! A D'Arcy! Meet D'Arcy, meet Death!"

Thus for the last time did old Sir Andrew utter the war-cry of his race, which he had feared would never pass his lips again. His prayer had been heard, and he was to die as he had desired.

"Down with him; seize the Princess!" said a voice. It was that of Georgios, no longer humble with a merchant's absequious whine, but speaking in tones of cold command and in Arabic.

For a moment the swarthy mob hung back, as well they might in face of that glittering sword. Then with a cry of "Salah-ed-din!" "Salah-ed-din!" on they surged, with flashing spears and scimitars. The overthrown table was in front of them, and one leapt upon its edge, but as he leapt, the old knight, all his years and sickness forgotten now, sprang forward and struck downwards, so heavy a blow that in the darkling mouth of the passage the sparks streamed out, and where the Saracen's head had been, appeared his heels. Back Sir Andrew stepped again to win space for his two-handed play, while round the ends of the table broke two fierce-faced men. At one of them Rosamund aimed with her bow, and the arrow pierced his thigh, but as he fell he struck with his keen scimitar and shivered the end of the bow, so that it was useless. The second man caught the lady in the hair of the oak chair which he did not see, and went down prone, while Sir Andrew, taking no heed of him, rushed with a shout at the crowd who followed, and catching their blows upon his shield, raised a fearful storm as desperate that, being hampered by their very number, they gave before him, and staggered back along the passage.

"Guard your right, father!" cried Rosamund. He sprang round, to see the Saracen, who had fallen, on his feet again. At him he went, nor did the man wait the onset, but turned to fly, only to find his death, for the great sword caught him between neck and shoulders. Now a voice cried:

"We make poor sport with this old Hon, and lose men. Keep clear of his claws, and wheim him with spear casts."

But Rosamund, who understood their tongue, sprang in front of him, and answered in Arabic:

"Ay, through my breast; and go, tell that tale to Saladin."

Then, clear and calm was heard the command of Georgios. "He who harms the lady dies the death. Take her down both living if you may, but lay no hand on her. Stay, let us talk."

The fury ceased for a while, and laughed and began to consult together.

Rosamund touched her father and pointed to the door which stood on the floor with an arrow through his thigh. He was struggling to his knee, raising himself upon his sword hilt hand. Sir Andrew lifted his sword as a husbandman lifts a stick to kill a rat, then let it fall again, saying:

"I fight not with the wounded. Drop that steel, and get you back to your own folk."

The fellow obeyed him—yes, and even touched the floor with his forehead in salaam as he crawled away, for he knew that he had been given his life, and that the deed was noble towards him who had planned a coward's stroke. Then Georgios stepped forward, no longer the same Georgios who had sold poisoned wine and Eastern broideries, but a proud-looking, high-browed Saracen clad in the mail which he wore beneath his merchant's robe, and in place of the crucifix wearing on his breast a great star-shaped jewel, the emblem of his house and faith.

"Sir Andrew," he said, "hearken to me, I pray you. Noble was that act," and he pointed to the wounded man being dragged away by his fellows, "and noble has been your defence—well worthy of your lineage and of knighthood. It is a tale that my master and he honour, if I may add the word, "will love to hear if it pleases Allah that we return to him in safety. Also you will think that I have played a knave's trick upon you, overcoming the might of those gallant knights, Sir Godwin and Sir Wulf, not with sword blows but with drugged wine, and treating all your servants in like fashion, since not one of them can shake off its fumes before to-morrow's light. So indeed it is—a very scurvy trick which I shall remember with shame to my life's end, and that perchance may yet fall back upon my head in blood and vengeance. But we think you how we stand, and forgive us. We are but a little company of men in your great country, hidden as it were, in a den of lions, who, if they saw us, would slay us without mercy. That, indeed, is a small thing, for what are our lives, of which your sword has taken three, if not one, compared with the lives of the twin brethren on the quay by the water?"

A COINCIDENCE OF ACQUAINTANCES.

Newark, Iowa, Advocate.

A peculiar coincidence occurred, one which had a happy termination occurred at the new Siesel House, which was opened for the first time on Monday night. The coincidence consisted in the fact that the first two persons to write their names on the register of the hotel were Canadians, who had been unknown to each other, had been chums and schoolmates in their boyhood days in the little town of Clark's Mills, now Camden East, in the County of Addington, Ontario. Sunday on Monday night Mr. C. W. Bell, representing the Cary Safe company, of Buffalo, N.Y., with headquarters in Cincinnati, arrived in the town and secured quarters at the hotel, although it had not as yet been opened to the public. On Tuesday Mr. H. A. Dickson, representing a Boston house, also secured accommodation at the hotel. On Tuesday night the two gentlemen met each other, and naturally engaged in conversation along old-time lines. During the conversation the resources of Canada were discussed, and it developed that both they were both Canadians. One question brought on another and they soon discovered that they were from the same town, had gone to school together, played hookey together and also attended the same Sunday School together. It is a rare thing that such old time friends had a good time during the remainder of the evening.

GETTING STARTED AS A MILLINER.

Given a knack and a little knowledge of millinery, nothing is easier to get started in than the actual business. In a hat shop in a delightfully clean place, one where artistic tastes have opportunity to show themselves and to earn a good income for their fortunate possessor.

It is commonly thought that millinery is a matter requiring capital, and so it is if the milliner must begin on a large scale.

Experience, however, that she must not, cannot, but on the contrary must climb into the hat business without capital, she may become a visiting milliner, go from house to house, as many a second-rate material" and furbish up old hats until she has laid by a small sum of money.

The next step in this self-making process is the stage of taking orders. Buttles many are the girls customers—those she has worked for in their own homes—have now come to trust her judgment and admire her taste. So when she asks them to order their hats through, letting her do the work at her own home, and looking for acceptance "on approval, her necessarily increasing gainers from home to home are at an end. She buys materials with her little capital, makes her hats and delivers them. Her profit now is considerably larger than when she sold "ladies own material.

Before long there some day she is rich enough to rent a shop add make her hats in it instead of in her home.

PROVED IN MOUNT FOREST

Every doctor in this town tried his best to relieve Mrs. J. Wilhoite of asthma; none succeeded. "For years, she writes, "I was a dreadful sufferer; nothing gave relief. At times I feared it necessary to have the air doors and windows open to get my my breath. When in despair I heard of "Catarrhozone." I used it and now am perfectly cured. This should be a good doubt that any case of Asthma is curable with Catarrhozone. No remedy so pleasant, none so absolutely certain to thoroughly cure; try "Catarrhozone" yourself; it's guaranteed.

WHITE LAKE.

GRIP QUICKLY KNOCKED OUT.

"Grip was the worst case of the several winter weather both my wife and myself contracted during the winter," writes Mr. Frank Stoupe, of Maple Landing, Iowa. "Aches and pains shooting, muscles sore, head nearly split open, eyes and nose running, with alternate spells of chills and fever. We began using Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, adding the same with a double dose of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets, and by its liberal use soon completely knocked out the grip. The Best Flour, Dafoe's Nonesuch, Dafoe's Manitoba Patent

By numerous tests by the best bakers the above mentioned grades have been proven to be the best flours in the market.

When buying flour, ask for Dafoe's, and patronize your home mill, thereby keeping that money in circulation. You can purchase cheaper than the product of the Western mills, which has to be transported thousands of miles, at great expense, and in many cases it reaches you, of inferior quality.

The grocer complains if the farmer or the mechanic sends to Toronto or to outside points for an article he can get at the home store just as good, but he does not hesitate to buy flour from mills hundreds of miles away, and sell you an inferior flour at the money than you can purchase the home product for, every bag of which is guaranteed.

Choice corn meal and buckwheat flour always on hand. Feed grinding a specialty, with the best feed mills known to the trade.

A full stock of the best Anthracite coals also in the market for the purchase of all kinds of grain.

Ask for prices at the Big Mill, before purchasing your Flour, Feed or Coal.

A western Kansas postmaster wanted to inform the public that the location of the postoffice had been changed, so he inserted this notice in the local paper, "The postoffice has been moved from where it was to where it is now."

Mr. Nervey—I suppose you know the object of my call, sir. To be brief, I want to marry your daughter—

Mr. Rostler—Eh? What? I'm surprised that you should think of such a thing. The idea!

Mr. Nervey—Nonsense! You're prejudiced against the girl. She's all right to Odessa and Napanee on Sunday evening.

Mr. T. Thomas and friend returned to Belleville Albert College on Monday, after spending Easter at home.

Master Harold Smith is sporting a dandy new wheel.

Mr. S. P. Bell is repairing his house.

Miss Laura Mowers is the pleased to state, is improving, after her severe illness.

Miller's Worm Powders are the best laxative medicine for children as a nice as sugar. For sale at the Medical Hall.—Fred. L. Hooper.

"Can't I sell you a painless corn cure, madam?" asked the peddler. "No, you can't!" snapped the woman of the house. "I have no painless corns."

Then the door was shut with a sudden slam.

The Caldwell Pure Wool Clothing Company's guarantee :—Caldwell's Pure Wool Clothing is tailored exclusively from the products of the Clyde Woolen Mills, established 1867, Lanark, Ontario, and the Mississippi Woolen Mills, established 1862, Appleton, Ontario. Every step in the process of manufacture from the wool to the finished garment is attended with the utmost care. A corps of skilled artizans is employed in each department under the direction of a specialist. No work passes from one department to another until it has stood the supreme test of perfection. The same excellence of material which characterizes the manufacture of our cloth is also a striking feature of our tailoring. We use pure linen canvas, haircloth, mohairs, Italians, silks, etc., of the most perfect quality. None other is allowed into the construction of any of our garments. The finish of Caldwell's Pure Wool Clothing will stand the light of criticism as well as the cloth.

All our linings are shrunk in a special shrinking machine ; so are the cloths. This secures a uniformity of texture which prevents that unsightly dragging, so noticeable in badly tailored clothing. Every yard of cloth guaranteed 100 per cent. pure wool. Fit, finish, fabric, fully guaranteed. The Caldwell Pure Wool Clothing Company. We have secured the agency for the above-mentioned high-class of tailor-made Clothing. They have furnished us with a special system of measuring, which totally eliminates all chances of a misfit. PAGE FENCING
THE BEST IS THE CHEAPEST

When you buy a knife for instance, you consider the quality of the steel in the blade. The biggest and heaviest knife is not necessarily the best. Now there is just as much difference in the quality and strength of steel in fence wire as there is in a knife blade or razor. The Page Co. use high carbon steel wire, which though it costs you but little more, is fifty per cent. (50%) stronger than wire in other fences. The lightest PAGE fence is as strong as the heaviest of other makes.

THE LOCK IN PAGE "EMPIRE" FENCES.

Besides the extra strength and superior workmanship, PAGE FENCES are dipped in a special white paint, which on top of the best of galvanizing, will lengthen the life of wire for years. And, also, this white coating makes wire much more sightly.

Owing to the great strength and elasticity of PAGE fencing, one-third less posts are required, thus reducing the cost of the fencing.

As you get in PAGE FENCES one-half more fence strength, greater protection against rust, better workmanship, better appearance, use fewer posts, you afford to use other fences, even though you could buy them for one-half the price of the PAGE? But you cure cost you little, if any more. 408

"Swift!" he said, as he tore his gown from him, "there is no escape, but at least I can die fighting for you. Give me my mail."

She snatched his hauberk from the wall, and while they threatened at the door, did it on to him—ay, and his helmet also, and gave him his long sword and his shield.

"Now," he said, "help me." And they thrust the oak table forward, and erected it in front of the door, throwing the chairs and stools on either side, that men might stumble on them.

"There is a bow," he said, "and you can use it as I have taught you. Get to one side and stay out of reach of the sword sweeps, and shoot past me as they rush; it may stay one of them. Oh, that Godwin and Wulf were here, and we would still teach these Paynim dogs a bad lesson!"

Rosamund made no answer but there came into her mind a vision of the saying of Godwin "and of Wulf should they ever wake again to learn what had chanced to her and them. She looked around. Against the wall stood a little desk, at which Godwin was wont to write, and on it lay pen and parchment. She seized them, and as the door gave slowly inwards, screeched:

"Follow me to Saladin. In that hope I live on.—Rosamund."

Then as the stout door at length crashed in Rosamund turned what she had written face downwards on the desk, and seizing the bow, set an arrow to its string. Now it was down and on rushed the mob up the six feet of narrow passage. At the end of it, in front of the overturned table, they halted suddenly. For there before them, shield-embossed, shield on arm, his long sword lifted, and a terrible wrath burning in his eyes, stood the old knight, like a wall at bay, and by his side, bow in hand, the beauteous lady Rosamund, clad in all her festal broideries.

"Yield you!" cried a voice. By way of answer the knight uttering a yell, and an arrow sped home to its fellow.

"I ran die fighting for you."

thers through the throat of the speaker, so that he went down, grabbing at it, and spoke no more for ever.

As he fell clattering to the floor, Sir Andrew cried in a great voice:

"We yield not to pagan dogs and poisoners. A Christ! A Christ! A Christ! D'Arcy, meet Death!"

Thus for the last time did old Sir Andrew utter the war cry of his race, which he had feared would never pass his lips again. His prayer had been granted, for he died as he had desired.

"Down with him; seize the Princess!" said a voice. It was that of Georgios, no longer humble with a merchant's absorptious whine, but speaking in tones of cold command and in Arabic.

For a moment the swarthy mob flung back, as well they might in face of that glittering sword. Then with a cry of "Salah-ed-din!" Salah-ed-din!" on they surged, with flashing spears and scimitars. The overthrown table was in front of them, and one leapt upon its edge, but as he leapt, the old knight, all his years and sickness forgotten now, sprang forward and struck the Saracen's head had been, appeared at his heels. Back Sir Andrew stepped again to win space for his sword-play, while round the ends of the table broke two Arabs, taking Sir Andrew with a shout at the crowd who followed, and catching their blows upon his shield, raised above him, while to right and left

Mr. Thos. Hyland is busy preparing for drawing milk.

Mr. George Reid and his staff of men have completed R. A. Reid's new house, which is a great improvement to that street. It takes George to handle things, especially when he has such competent men.

Mr. R. J. Reid, B.A., left on Monday, after spending a few days with his parents.

Mrs. Thos. Haynes spent a few days last week with her brother, Mr. J. Wilson.

Mrs. Gladys Wilson enjoyed a week at Tamworth, with her cousin, Miss Fannie McKinnon.

Mr. George Reid was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Reid, on Wednesday evening last.

Miss Lillie Hinchey, and Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Hinchey and little son Mack, were at R. A. Reid's on Sunday.

The matrimonial thermometer indicates a wedding soon.

DEATH AT ERINSVILLE

The late Mrs. Wm. Kidd, who departed this life recently at her home near Erinsville, was born in the County of Wicklow, Ireland, eighty-two years ago. The deceased and a younger sister emigrated to Canada in 1849. The latter died soon after their arrival in this country. In the late Mrs. Kidd, who was Miss Teresa Cavanaugh, being possessed of a good education, engaged in teaching as a means of earning a livelihood in her adopted home. During a period of nine years she taught in Chippewa, Croydon and Centreville. She was married to Wm. Kidd, at the R. C. church, Camden, in 1860. Mr. and Mrs. Kidd lived the early years of their married life on a farm, three miles east of Enterprise. Twenty-three years they moved on the farm occupied by the family in the neighborhood of Erinsville. That the deceased was beloved and respected by her friends and neighbors, was amply testified by the large number who attended her funeral. She was a charitable, kind and unostentatious, as well as being a devout christian. Mrs. Kidd is survived by her husband, two sons, Joseph and John, and two daughters, Mrs. James McKeown and Mrs. William Murphy.

A group of small lots left in different lines from the Easter rush—lines we can't reorder because there are no more of the materials available. There are also about 10 or 15 Youth's Suits, long pants, that will go on sale at half price at the same time. Most of these Suits are from $6.00 to $10.00 each, and will be sold at from $3 to $5 each. There are several Youths' Suits, long pants, marked $4.50 to $5.00, that will sell for 2.25 to 2.50.

Sample Towels on Sale Tuesday.

Tuesday morning, May 1st, commencing at 10 o'clock, we will place on sale the towel sample that were sent out to Canada by the great Scotch House, The J. & W. Campbell Co., of Glasgow. Bath, Huck, Damask. Lots of variety, only one pair of a kind. At 2 saving of at least 20 per cent. Be on hand promptly. None for mail or telephone orders.

Boys' Clothing--Right Sorts.

If the object is to get the best value for your money, you'll certainly come to Robinson's. Lots of men of to-day were clothed here in this store when they were boys. We've carried the business right along, made it better and bigger. We've been giving right clothing for boys so long that now you hear folks say, "it's as good as Robinson's." See our SPECIAL NORFOLK SUITS FOR BOYS 7 to 15 years of age, at 4.50 and 5.00. Equal to what you would find elsewhere at 5.00 and 6.00, and examine the linings and make and sewing, that's where the great test is. AND ABOVE ALL—YOUR MONEY BACK IF NOT SUITED.

Mill End Sale

ON THURSDAY, MAY 3d,

Of Shirtings and Apron Galateas.

Here is a bargain for the farmers and those who use dark Shirtings and Aprons. We secured for this sale a case of Mill Ends of Shirting Galateas. Mostly all dark blue stripes. The lengths run from about two yards to ten yards. The average regular price would be at least 12 1-2 cents a yard. We have had every end ticketed showing the exact measurement in plain figures. For the sale we have bunched them at one price,

10 CENTS A YARD.

Sale will not start until 10 o'clock in the morning, giving all a fair chance to be here.

Women's Tailored Costumes Ready-to-wear.

This season with our new annex we carry a much larger assortment of costumes than we ever had the space for before. While we have sizes from 32 to 42, it is such sizes as 34, 36 and 38, that we have the largest assortments in. If you have a costume need our values and styles are sure to interest you.

Carpets and House Furnishings.

At this seasou when nearly every home is interested in carpets and furnishings let us tell you about some lines that we certainly have the inside track on. Recent sales made, in comparison with city samples and reports of committees who looked in nearby towns, demonstrate very forcibly our strength in carpet values.

Our 75 cent Carpets—Patent Brussels in up-to-date exclusive patterns, border to match for making rugs. They are great value. The many people who are buying them know it.

Oriental Rugs—Some of these rugs form our ledge display in west store now. True copies of the ancient Indian rugs. At prices within the reach of all, 7.00, 10.00, 12.50, 17.50. We are now at the sixth lot of them since October.

Our Dollar Brussels—Speaks for itself. No better value in Canada.

Double Fold Tapestry—Everybody likes them and no more for square yard than ordinary width.

Elbow Length Gloves.

The short sleeve style of dress has created such a big demand for long gloves that the manufacturers were caught unawares. The retail house that is fully supplied is in luck. We are much better ready than lots of big city houses. Just now we can fill orders in White Glace Kid Gloves Mousquetaire, 20 and 24 inches long.

Black Glace Mousquetaire, 16 inch.

Cream, Paris, Mode Glace Mousquetaire, 16 inches.

Black, Cream, White Suede, 24 in.

Cream, White, Black, Grey, Champagne Silk, 20 inches.

White Lisle Mousquetaire, 22 inch.

We would advise selecting the sizes you wish now as we expect to be short later on.

A Window Full of Our Buster Brown Hose Saturday, 15c pair.

Our spring hosiery campaign will start to-morrow, Saturday. Stocks are very complete. Full ranges to choose from in cashmere, cotton, lisle, all sizes. You may judge our values by the window full of our Buster Brown Hose, 15 cents a pair. Black cotton ribbed, spliced triple knees, all sizes from 6 inch to 9 1-2 inches, 15 cents a pair. Sizes, 6 and 6 1-2, 2 pairs for 25 cents. All the other sizes, 15 cents straight.

Our Men's Felt Hat Trade

never was so good as this year. We give our customers the benefit of our good buying. We import direct from the manufacturers and save all middle profits, thus giving you the equal of the hats usually sold for $2.50 and $3 for the special price, $2.00, and $3.50 and $4 hats for $3. —From the "Weekly Calendar" of the Euclid Methodist church, Cleveland, Ohio, we clip the following: Mrs. McKim, wife of our brother, C. S. McKim, passed peacefully to her home last Sunday. Always a devoted Christian and loyal to her church, she developed a beautiful Christian character that made her, up-town and in a large blessing in her home and to a large circle of friends. Loving hands bore her body to the tomb, but her spirit had been called to be with the Lord. The church united in invoking the comfort that God gives, and in assurance to those who mourn that they have sincere sympathy.

—Attention is directed to the advertisement of the Crown Bank on page 5. The bank will be located in the Albert Block, Madole & Wilson's old stand, and will be open for business on May 1st. Note the special inducements they offer.

The item which appeared in last week's personal column to the effect that Ambrose Way and Nellie McKeown spent Thursday in Napanee, on a business trip, is entirely false, as neither of the parties mentioned were in town last week.

A rocking main was held in a barn a short distance west of Deseronto, on Good Friday, and was attended by about fifty sports from Belleville, Napanee and Deseronto, and nearly all have been served with subpoenas. THE NEW FERRY.

The new ferry boat for Bay Ray is rapidly approaching completion, and will be towed around to the Bay on Tuesday next. It is expected it will be running on Thursday, May 3rd. The boat is 23x50 feet with two one-horse tread powers, is substantially built, and will accommodate without crowding four wagons and eight horses. The fee will be 25 cents one way or 40 cents return. Mr. A. Hawley secured a reliable man to operate the ferry, and also intends to open up a store on the Hamilton shore for the convenience of the residents of that locality.

THE AWFUL EARTHQUAKE

We are permitted to publish extracts from a letter from a former resident of this County, Mrs. Robt. Hogeboom, of Santa Rosa, Cal., to friends in Napanee. It's shows that not alone San Francisco, but practically all of California suffered by the awful earthquake. Mrs. Hogeboom is a sister of Mrs. Martha Finkle and Mrs. Alice Gibson, Napanee.

Santa Rosa, April 19th, 1906.

Dear Ones All,—We are all safe, but Percy, we have not heard from him, but hear San Francisco is all burning up after this awful earthquake. Yesterday morning at half past five, and oh! oh! the hall and rolled sixteen steps, bruised my body terribly, but hurt myself. My house stands but the plaster is nearly all off; but most houses around us are all down.

I have sixteen people staying here,—Mrs. Oscar Lapum and three children, another family of four, the wife in the with broken shoulder. Allie, her husband and children live in a cook yard and sleep in drive house. There is not a hotel or business house of any kind in Santa Rosa. The churches are mongrass. Some of my dearest friends laid side by side, mother and son, husband and wife and little cripple son, mother's darling.

Then the dreadful fire came and destroyed the living and dead. Oh! the awful cries of the poor imprisoned people will ring in my ears as long life lasts.

The whole of California is destroyed. Hardly a town escaped. It is enough to tell you that our own Fred. and tell him we are alive.

The richest man in town is poorer than me, and the bank that I had my little all in, is burned, and every other bank in town. The Hall of Records and Carnegie Library, all solid stone, are all gone.

Pray for me all of you. We need your prayers. Erma is prostrated in bed. I hear us all and comfort her. I cannot milk the cows, and feed the little chickens.

We expect some shocks, but none will come. The relief corps sent us a sack of flour and some bread. We will trust in God and have confidence. I hope you will get this. Write at once. Good bye, good bye, JANE HOGEBOOM.

P.S.—The Lord is dealing hard with us, but I must kiss the rod.

WILLIAM AYLESWORTH

Died at his residence, Deseronto, on Friday, April 20th, aged 93 years. He was born in Ernestown, in 1813, and retained all his faculties until about six weeks before his death, and up to that time his mind and body began slowly to fail, and he passed away very peacefully. In his long life he was enabled to see the unimportance of everything of earth. Deceased was a widower of the old veterans who served in the rebellion of 1837. His wife died four years ago. He leaves one son, Lester Aylesworth, Bath, and two daughters, Mrs. White, Sillerville, and Mrs. Purvis, Bath. The funeral service was conducted at his late residence, on Sunday morning, in the presence of a large number of friends, showing the respect in which deceased was held.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Grenfell, Sask., April 20th, '06.

Dear Editor,—I suppose you are watching for a renewal for The Beaver, which I notice has a few days out. I do not want to miss a copy for I find it has been great company to us, since we left Napanee last March, 1905. It gives news that interests me that my friends could not think of writing. Since weeks I have got pretty home sick, and when The Beaver arrived it seemed to recruit life and energy again in me. I suppose you would like to hear some news from the west. In the first place, I have enjoyed myself greatly since I came here. The weather is grand, and the wild flowers are in bloom all over the prairie. We live on the bluffs and I like it much better than on the open prairie. The trees are leafing out and the grass is nice and green. We have Avenue Lake within a quarter of a mile from the house, out of which we take a great deal of pleasure. We have a boat on it in the summer, and skate on it in the winter. We live nine miles from the town of Grenfell. Grenfell is a thriving little town, in which there is a lot of business done. It has seven elevators, five churches and a fine big skating rink, and is as lively a town as there is along the line.

Wishing you and your paper success, I am yours sincerely,

EDITH BARRAGER.

Dear Editor,—As my sister did not tell you about our school and the farmers, I thought I would. I go to school every day. I have two miles to walk. Some days I drive and others I walk. I am eleven years old, and in the fourth book, and expect to be in the fifth next October. The school opens in April and closes in November. We only have two weeks' holidays as we have no winter school. The name of our school is Bellington. The teacher's name is Miss Brown's ridge. She is a fine little teacher and all the pupils like her well.

The farmers are busy seeding, and some are nearly through. It seems quite interesting to me to watch the farmers out here, for they work somewhat different than the Ontario's. They use four horses on a plow, four on a disc, four on a harrow, and four on seed drill. We had lovely weather all winter.

Yours sincerely,

JENNIE PEARL BARRAGAR.

THERE'S A REASON FOR IT.

Why does the sale of Ramsay's Paints (Unicorn Brand) keep increasing year after year? There's a reason for it. We think it is the Quality, in fact we are satisfied it is. A ROCK IN THE BALTIC

The careless firing of a new piece of ordnance by Lieut Alan Drummond, of H.M.S., Conservatorian, while cruising through the Baltic, has been the source of unaccountable and surprising international complications.

Drummond sighted a new gun on an apparently deserted bit of rock that showed up out of the sea. To his amazement his cruiser was at once fired on from the rock, and the German Government demanded an explanation from Great Britain.

The mystery of the whole affair — the presence of cannon on such a site, the anger of Russia and the importance given to so insignificant a matter—worked on Drummond's imagination, and in a moment of tenderness he went to Russia to investigate.

The whole story is splendidly recounted in Robert Barr's great novel, "A Rock in the Baltic," which has just been purchased by The Mail and Empire, and is to be the first novel of the much-talked-of "$150,000 series." Both this enterprising paper is to issue during the forthcoming twelve months.

This series consists of twelve great novels by the most famous living Anglo-Saxon authors.

The Mail and Empire, with its customary alertness, has secured the unique right in this district to publish these novels in serial form, before they appear in book form, which will afford its readers a literary treat never before offered by any newspaper in America.

No other paper in the city or vicinity can publish these great stories. Order in advance to avoid disappointment, as the edition will be exhausted before all are able to buy. Commences on Saturday, May 5th, and each succeeding Saturday. These stories will also be published in the Weekly Mail and Empire, commencing May 10th.

Death has again cast a gloom over this neighborhood. Three deaths in the past six hours on Friday, 20th inst. Mrs. John Murphy passed peacefully away after a brief illness from consumption, aged 27 years. She leaves to mourn her loss a husband and four small children, the youngest being 7 months old. Her funeral took place on Sunday afternoon from her father's residence, Mr. R. Pyles, to the Methodist church where her pastor, Rev. J. F. Mears, preached a very impressive sermon. The remains were interred in the Eastern cemetery, Napanee.

Mr. Harvey Martin died at his home at 10 o'clock on Friday morning with pneumonia, aged 66 years. Mr. Martin was a son of the late Elias Martin, Camden, a U.E.L. pioneer of the county. He was born on the farm where he spent his life there. He was a life long Methodist and respected by all who knew him. Service was conducted at the house by Rev. R. Duke, Selby, and the remains placed in the Newburgh vault.

He leaves to mourn the loss of a loving husband and kind father, a wife and grown up son and daughter at home.

Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock Mrs. Wm. Nugent passed away, her sudden death being a shock to many. Service was conducted at the home by Rev. J. F. Mears, and the remains were interred in the Newburgh cemetery. She leaves a husband, one daughter and three sons, to mourn the loss of a loving wife and mother.

MOST PEOPLE COWARDS

"SKELETON IN THE CLOSET"

Rev. Dr. Talmage Tells How to Get Rid of Hidden Trouble—Men Ought Always to Remember That Their Secret Sins Are Not Hidden in the Light of God's Countenance — The Unrepented Fault.

Entered according to Act of Parliament of Canada, in the year 1906, by Funk & Wagnalls Company, Toronto, at the Dept. of Agriculture, Ottawa.

Los Angeles, Cal., April 22.—How to get rid of the "skeleton in the closet," how to overcome the hidden trouble, the unrepented fault, is the subject of the sermon to-day, the text chosen being Psalm xc, 8, "Our secret sins in the light of thy countenance."

Most men are born cowards. They were as babies rocked in the cradle of fear. As boys they always by night disliked to travel the road which leads to the bridge over which Tam o' Shanter was chased by the hobgoblins. "Of course we do not believe in ghosts," once said a great English evangelist, "but most of us feel squeamish when, alone, we have to walk past a dark country graveyard in the dark hours about midnight. And most of us are afraid of the valley of the shadow of death when, like the Psalmist of old, we look at it in the dim vista of the future, although, as we know well, it is nothing but a black shadow."

Of course there may be men born, like Horatio Nelson, who never knew what the name of fear means. But if such men exist they are very few and far between. They are almost as scarce as clover tops growing in a January snow bank or as diamonds imbedded in a vein of copper ore.

The members of the human race do not dwell all the time in the City of Courage. They nearly all live for a little while, at least once a year, in the City of Timidity. They more often cry and tremble before the imaginary dangers which threaten them than they suffer from the ones inflicted by mortal foe. The legend is told that one day a traveler met the Black Plague journeying to the famous eastern capital of Bagdad. "Where are you going?" asked the eastern pilgrim. "To Bagdad," was the answer. "To kill 5,000 people." A few weeks later, so goes the legend, the same traveler met the Black Plague on the same road, and now returning from Bagdad and going home. "Why," said this traveler, "did you not do as you said? You killed 50,000 people instead of 5,000." "Ah," answered the Black Plague, with a grieved, fiendish grin, "I have kept my word. I killed only 5,000 people on account of my fatal touch, but the other 45,000 people who also died perished of fear. They killed themselves. I had nothing to do with it." Yes, the old legend is right. A great many plagues stalk through this world, destroying their victims everywhere, but the dead that lie in their tracks are not all slain by the germs bringing disease. Most people are born natural cowards. More people die from fear than ever die from the presence of disease.

This assumption is almost a self evident fact or an axiom. Now, as most of us are cowards in more ways than one, the greatest check on wrongdoing in this world is the fear of future punishment. The would-be murderer, if afraid to shoot his victim for fear he will be executed; the young clerk who is getting into the habit of betting on the races is afraid to risk any of his employer's money for fear he will be found out and sent to jail; the men or the men who would like to violate the seventh commandment often are afraid to do it for fear the news paper reporters will get upon their track and the whole scandal will be published in the daily newspapers, and then they will be ostracized from all decent associations, but if a man could sin without being found out or the sinner not be brought to judgment then where there are two sins there would be twenty and where men err once now they might do wrong ten times over. That means, of course, if our sins would never be brought to trial.

Now, as I was thinking along this line the other day my eyes were scanning the Nineteenth Psalm of David. Suddenly my attention was attracted to these words: "Our secret sins in the light of thy countenance." "What," I said to myself—"can it be that there are sins so secret, so completely hidden, that our most intimate friends do not know of them, sins that God knows and sees and that our consciences convict us of?" I do not now refer to the open sins, the faults that the world takes note of, but sins there are others hidden away in the inmost recesses of the heart that will one day be set in the penetrating light of God's countenance? Let us examine ourselves this morning as in God's presence.

Let me, in the first place, speak about the sin of robbing God of those hours of sacred devotion for which we should hold secret communion with Him—those hours of secret prayer and Bible reading which are so essential for our own spiritual life. You know that in that discourse on prayer in which our Lord describes that sincere prayer commands us to pray in secret as well as to pray openly. In Matthew we read, "When thou prayest enter into thy closet, and when thou hast shut thy door pray to thy Father who is in secret, and thy Father who is in secret shall reward thee openly. But, though God commands us to have our secret hours of holy communion with Him, how often the Christian world thinks that we, as professing Christians, have those sacred hours, yet how many of us are they away from God these hours which should be devoted to him. In other words, we want to try to do public work and win spiritual conquests without first making the necessary spiritual preparation for our public work.

We are in exactly the same position in a spiritual sense as is the young man in a temporal sense who wishes to leave the well beaten paths of work and take a short cut up the mountain of fame. Here, for instance, is the young man. He wishes to be a lawyer. He goes to an old lawyer and says: "Judge, I would like to be a lawyer. What shall I do?" "What do you think my boy!" is the natural question. "Why," says the young man, "I have only been to school a few years and studied the common branches." "Then," says the old lawyer, "you would do is to go back to school. Study, study, study! Fit yourself for college. Then go to college, then to law school. Sharpen your weapons first before you go into battle." "Unnecessary," answers the young man. "What is the good of spending the next ten years of my life in rummaging through musty tomes? I do not care what the Roman law was. What I wish to know is what is the law of to-day." So the young man refuses to sit at the feet of the wise Gamaliels of the great law schools. He goes at once into a law office. He is coached and he will command along, and in a couple of years, an undeveloped boy, or, rather, an immature man. He is admitted to the bar, but he is like a cripple with two wooden crutches and one good leg trying to win a race in the Olympian games against the finest athletes of all Greece. He is like an old Chinese junk, with its long banks of oars and antiquated javelins, going forth to naval conflict with the armor plated cruisers of the modern navy. That's with us. We want to do God's work. We desire to win God's victories. But we are not willing to make our necessary spiritual preparations for the same. We are not willing to do what God commands us to do. We are not willing to regularly and systematically hold certain hours of each day sacred for prayer and for secret communion with God.

Sometimes it is religious work itself that monopolizes the time. I remember a dear classmate of mine who as a theological student was asked to preach in a little church near to where I used to preach as a student. This church was not able to support a regular pastor. It was very poor in this world's goods. So when it got a man to preach for a Sunday it worked him as hard as some people drive a horse when they get from the livery stable for a day. They wanted to get the full worth of their money. Thus they got my friend up early to lead the Sunday school and teach a Bible class. Then he conducted a morning service; then after a hurried dinner they drove him back into the mountains, where he had another Sunday school to lead and another sermon to preach and a Christian Endeavor society to address; then they ran him back to the main church again, where he had a Young People's society meeting at which to speak and then another sermon to preach. In the words, from early morning until 10 o'clock at night he was speaking or working all the time. Then on every day and said, "Well, Howard, how did you get on?" "Get on," he answered. "Why, I had as much to do on Sunday when I crawled into bed that night I was completely fagged out. I was so tired that I could not sleep. I was more tired when I got up than I was when I went to bed." Just said, 'O Lord, I have been praying so much for these people I have am just too tired to pray for myself!'" I laughed. But for years and years that plotter of mine tired for God in ways been before me. Ah, I say to myself, how often we get so tired with meeting the many responsibilities that we do not take the needed hours for prayer, for Bible reading and for communion with God for our own souls!

Next to our neglect of secret prayer and quiet Bible reading I believe the greatest secret sin is our unwillingness to bravely and firmly go forth to advocate the causes of right when we see the unpopular side. We see blatant sins stalking around everywhere, but because those sins are well dressed and the perpetrators of those sins are influential men and women in the community in which we live we close our mouth and say nothing. We are afraid to antagonize them and those men and women who are their powerful supporters.

The man who dares to attack sin that is strongly intrenched is bound to be assailed in character and person. His friends come to him and say: "Let it alone. You will make enemies who can ruin you." Have you never had such advice given to you? If you have you have been all your life a Vetimer," a hedger, a politic man. You have not come forth boldly and decisively and attacked any evil which you have seen it lift its hideous head.

The world looks upon you as an honest man. Are you honest? Are you in the higher sense of the word, are you honest with yourself? The city in which you live is in a death grapple with the saloon or, as is Los Angeles, with an infamous gambling corporation. Dare you life up your voice in protest? "Oh, no," you answer; "if I did those men would boycott me and they are my customers. They buy lots of goods at my store." In your silence are you not before God committing a sin? For years and years in our northern states there were hundreds upon hundreds of ministers who were afraid to speak upon the slavery question, because if they did they knew they would split their congregations in twain. When my father as a young man was called to the city of Philadelphia just before the war the padlock of silence was upon many ministers' lips. Afraid

We are afraid to antagonize them and those men and women who are their powerful supporters.

The man who dares to attack sin that is strongly intrenched is bound to be assailed in character and person. His friends come to him and say: "Let it alone. You will make enemies who can ruin you." Have you never had such advice given to you? If you have not you have been all your life a Vetimer," a hedger, a politic man. You have not come forth boldly and decisively and attacked any evil which you have seen it lift its hideous head.

The world looks upon you as an honest man. Are you honest? Are you in the higher sense of the word, are you honest with yourself? The city in which you live is in a death grapple with the saloon or, as is Los Angeles, with an infamous gambling corporation. Dare you life up your voice in protest? "Oh, no," you answer; "if I did those men would boycott me and they are my customers. They buy lots of goods at my store." In your silence are you not before God committing a sin? For years and years in our northern states there were hundreds upon hundreds of ministers who were afraid to speak upon the slavery question, because if they did they knew they would split their congregations in twain. When my father as a young man was called to the city of Philadelphia just before the war the padlock of silence was upon many ministers' lips. Afraid my father had been there a few weeks he preached and announced for the next afternoon thirty of his most prominent families took their hymn books out of the pew racks and walked out of the church and never came back. Tell me, are you ready to defy the sin of your friends as well as the sin of your enemies, or are you going to be numbered among the "trimmers," the hedgers, the politic men, who dare not be "in the night with two or three?" If you do thus, the world may say you are honest, but in the sight of God you are guilty of a black, heinous secret sin. You are guilty of the sin of cowardice, the sin of not being an out and out disciple of Jesus Christ.

But we must not stop here. In this catalogue of sins we must include even the malformed offspring of our minds call "evil thought." By this name I do not mean those "evil thoughts" which some of us are willing to voice in public, but I do mean those carnal thoughts, those impure thoughts, those revengeful and brutal thoughts, those debasing thoughts, which some of us at times, to a greater or less degree, are ready to foster and let live in our hearts.

When there are born into the nursery of the brain licentious thoughts, revengeful thoughts, brutal and accursed thoughts, thoughts which come to us from reading bad books or going with improper companions, or evil thoughts which came to us we know not from whence, then we shield these thoughts. We are foolish enough to suppose that because the world does not know about them we are safe. Ah, no, my friends! Though the world may not see a man's evil thoughts, yet God sees them. "And as a man thinketh in his heart so is he in the sight of God." "For God shall bring every work into judgment with every secret thing, whether it be good or whether it be evil." Beware how you trifle with those bad thoughts, those evil thoughts. By the grace of God crush them out of your life as you would mash the poisonous fang of a deadly adder under your heel. God will condemn you not for what you do, but also for what you think in the inmost recesses of your mind. O God, make us pure in mind as well as pure in deed!

But there are still two other classes of secret sins to which I would call your attention. One of them is the sin of covetousness. The other is the sin of selfish indifference to the misery and wants of others. Now, the sin of covetousness is such a repellent sin in God's sight that he wrote a whole commandment against it. This commandment was not put in the words of a general statement, but went into specific detail. Let me read it now as the Lord gave it as it was given to Moses on a table of stone: "Thou shalt not covet thy neighbor's wife, nor his manservant, nor his maid-servant, nor his ox, nor his ass, nor anything that is thy neighbor's." But, though God in these vehement words has hurled his denunciations against covetousness, yet there are many people who almost every hour of every day of their lives are guilty of this secret sin. They never walk along the streets or see a fine home but they keep saying to themselves, "I wish I lived in a house like that; I wish I could ride in a carriage like that; I wish I might be able to dress like that; I wish I might have a servant to wait upon me like that." And all their lives, instead of thanking God for his mercies some men and women are in secret rebellion against God because he has not done as much for them as he has done for some one else. Now, my friends, I firmly believe that this sin of covetousness is one of the most infamous and repellent of all sins in God's sight. And yet it is a sin which to-day thousands of us are practicing in secret. Our neighbors do not know we are casting lustful eyes upon their possessions, but God knows, and God will condemn us unless we cease to practice this infamy.

But the second secret sin is like the first. The same evil characteristic which makes a person wander around the streets saying, "I wish I could be my neighbor's house, my neighbor's wife, my neighbor's man-servant and his maid-servant," is the same evil characteristic which makes a person ignore the calls for help which are being spoken to him on every hand. Therefore, though the hands for succor are being stretched forth toward these people, they act as did the priest and the Levite when they saw the poor bleeding traveler of the good Samaritan parable. They pass by on the other side and do nothing. Now, some people do not believe this assertion is true but it is, nevertheless.

And, my friends, if we refuse to help those who are in financial trouble, how much more sinful are we in refusing to help those who are in spiritual trouble. The world looks at us as good respectable church members. Are we

Down in the deep recesses of your own hearts, are we? Have we done anything during the past year to win at least one soul to Christ? O God, forgive our spiritual indifference and selfishness! When we appear before thy judgment throne, may we be able to show an honest desire and an honest zeal to save thy wandering prodigals even as you in your infinite mercy sins and brought us back into the gospel fold.

Thus to-day I would have the searchlight of the Holy Spirit turned on to our lives so that in God's sight we should stand as pure as the driven snow. Are you ready to be cleansed of your secret sins? Are you ready to say: "O God, purify my life! O God, cleanse thou me from secret faults! O God, make me clean every whit! O God thou great reader of thoughts, may I live and think and plan and work only for thee!" If thou art not ready to say this, then thou canst never be saved by grace, for the Bible says, "God shall bring every work into judgment with every secret thing whether it be evil." To-day I lift up for inspection the records of your inmost lives. May God by the power of Christ's blood, blot out that debasing and condemnatory past and give us a clean record in the future, with no secret sin to mar the white pages of the book of life

Why Swimming Beginners Fail.

You try hard to keep your mouth closed, but the water somehow will find a way into your mouth and nostrils. A beginner always draws in his breath fast at the moment he strikes out. This insures the getting his mouth and nostrils full of water at once, and a helpless feeling is inevitable. The will or member to take breath between the strokes all will be well. Quite naturally, when you find yourself in unexpected deep water, you will inhale, and just as surely as your feet are thrust from you will you expel the air from your lungs. Knowledge on the management of the breath will come with practice and can only be acquired in that one way.

Tact.

Tact is born with some men and women, like the supple, delicate fingers of the artist's hand, and others will get it use-their gift instinctively. It is not measured alike to those who have it. Men possess it in different degrees, while others again are wanting in it altogether. It is the outcome of intellectual and temperamental qualifications and implies the possession of clear perceptions, quick imagination and delicate sensibilities. It is these that give the tactful person his subtle intuition of another's mental processes and the mood of the moment, and the judgment exactly the right method of dealing with these.

PALE, LISTLESS GIRLS.

Can Only Obtain Health Through New, Rich Pure Blood Made by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

Growing girls in their teens—must have rich, pure blood. Healthy womanhood depends upon the vital change from girlhood to maturity. Every woman should most carefully watch her daughter's health at this critical period. If a girl at this period has headaches, if she is pale, thin and languid, if above all her ear slender blood supply is being overtaxed, she will always be ailing and may slip into a hopeless decline or consumption if her blood is not built up at once with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. The rich, red blood which these pills make bring health and strength to every organ, and make listless, languid girls, bright, rosy-cheeked, active and strong. Miss Maggie Donahue, Erinerville, Ont., says: "Before I began the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills I was badly run down, and it seemed as though my blood had turned to water. I was very pale, suffered from headaches and palpitation of the heart, and often I would pass sleepless nights. I found nothing to help me until I began the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and these have fully restored me. I can truthfully say I never enjoyed better health than I am now doing."

When Dr. Williams' Pink Pills take hold of a run down girl good blood they strike straight at the root of all troubles, such as anæmia, indigestion, kidney and liver disorders, nervous symptoms, neuralgia, St. Vitus dance, paralysis, rheumatism, and the special ailments of growing girls and women. Be sure you get the genuine pills with the full name, "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People," printed on the wrapper around each box. Sold by medicine dealers or sent by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 by writing The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

GRETNA.

While many of us were celebrating the festival of life, one of our friends, Miss Ella Wesley Down, entered into the full and perfect life. Hessie was the second daughter and niece of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Mellow, and had nearly reached her eighteenth birthday. Death resulted from a hemorrhage caused by an ulcer perforating an artery in the throat. When the physicians failed to stop the hemorrhage, she said, "Don't worry, dear, but I am sure that it is all right." Her end was peace, in a very quiet way and one could not help but feel that Heaven's home is more than mansions; if it were not so Christ would have told you. He prepares a place for you. And if I go and prepare a place for you, I will come again and receive you unto myself; that where I am there you may be also." The funeral was largely attended by the relatives, friends and all were anxious to show that their sympathy went out to the esteemed friends' deep and unexpected sorrow. Rev. Mr. Wallace and Rev. Mr. Gerrie here broken hearted, they have the consolation in knowing that their beloved is Safe in the arms of Jesus,

Safe on His gentle breast,
There by His love o'er shadowed
Sweetly her soul doth rest."

HER SKIN WAS YELLOW

"Dr. Hamilton's Pills so appreciate their merit," writes Miss Annie S. Bryce, of Woodstock, Ont., "after a spell of order. My blood was weak and thin. My head ached, and I was complexion was sallow and dry. The first box of Dr. Hamilton's Pills made a wonderful change. I felt better at once. Healthy color came into my face. In a short three weeks I was cured." Dr. Hamilton's Pills are 25 cents per box. Five for $1.00. Sold by druggists, or mailed by The Hamilton Medicine Co., Buffalo, N. Y., on receipt of price. Five boxes for $1.00, at all dealers.

Clydesdales for Service

JOE THE BANKER (3215)

This fine young horse is growing much in favor. His colts have shown up good. His colts figured prominently at the fall fairs, and one owned by Mr. A. V. Price, of Wesley, took first prize, with a dam (not a large mare), in the general purpose class at Napanee, Cattleville and Tamworth. Joe is a well rounded and heavy-boned horse, a beautiful dapple grey, and has excellent action and has proved a sure foal-getter. We expect to send him west as far as Wesley, and east through Tyendinaga. Terms, returning via Verona and Petworth, and will be at his owners' stable two or three days each week.

There is, and always will be, a good demand for this class of horse, and if the right kind is used, regardless of size or quate supply, a large sum of money would flow into the hands of the farmers.

NO VAR (3459)

Commonly known by his every-day name, "Sandy," has wintered well and seems in the pink of condition. He is a horse that will over-done, so should be fully as successful a getter this season as he has proven to be the past two years.

We have had a tempting offer to send this fine young horse to New York State for the season, but possibly to those who saw him here, but we have decided not to send him away, as the farmers here have given us a good patronage, and "Sandy" has gained a reputation as being one of the finest Clydesdales in Ontario. His colts are well and favorably known; some of them ten to eleven months old could not be bought for $300 each. We expect to send him to Enterprise and Tyker, possibly to Demorestville and Camden East, and will be at his owners' stable one day in each week, about three days each week. Both Sandy and Joe balanced the scales at 1,765 lbs. on 19th April, and will likely go 1,800 each by May 1st. See bills for particulars.

A Daring Distribution

The undersigned Druggist at the earnest solicitation of the Ferrol Co., Limited, of Toronto, has made a thorough and searching investigation into the merits of FERROL, and of the methods of that Company, and he finds that: Every cure claimed by the Company is absolutely genuine; that FERROL is manufactured from the best quality of Munn's Celebrated Cod Liver Oil (the whole of the oil) and is richer in oil than any other emulsion, and while it contains just the right quantity of the best forms of Iron and Phosphorous, it is so scientifically prepared, that not one in a thousand finds any trouble in taking it; that the medicine has accomplished the most amazing results in its own city; that its sales in the Home City have been phenomenal; that it is endorsed by all druggists without hesitation or qualification; that it is, in short, all the Company claims for FERROL, and more.

The more I investigated the more enthusiastic I became. It is no longer a question of my willingness to handle the preparation—FERROL—but how can I bring it to the immediate suffering of this city?

It is a heavy responsibility, but I have faith in the honesty and fairness of the Ferrol Company, Limited, of Toronto, and the unequalled merits of their preparation, FERROL.

(Signed) FRED. L. HOOPER.

I find also that the druggists in other cities have taken upon themselves the solemn responsibility of standing behind this medicine; and that these druggists have made in each city a daring and remarkable distribution of full-sized bottles.

Impressed by the action of my fellow-druggists, and convinced that they would not have given this remedy such unqualified approval without positive knowledge of its merits, I have decided to follow their example and distribute free of charge

200 Large Bottles of FERROL Free to the Sick

AT FRED. L. HOOPER'S DRUG STORE---MEDICAL HALL

Beginning Monday, April 30th.

Maintaining a first-class Drug Store, the above named Druggist occupies a commanding position in the retail drug trade of this city, and almost every remedy that is offered to the public seeks an outlet through his store. But with an eye single to the interests of his many patrons he is careful to handle the most reliable preparations. Consequently when a medicine is recommended and endorsed by this Druggist, that medicine must have merit.

The above Druggist, after a rigid investigation, described elsewhere in this announcement, has decided to make, upon his own responsibility, the most remarkable distribution of medicine ever attempted in this city. Convinced by personal experience of the extraordinary merits of he has purchased from the Ferrol Co., Limited, of Toronto, two hundred large sized bottles of this remedy, for free distribution, and he hereby invites every person suffering from any form of blood trouble; any person who is run down, discouraged and in need of a powerful tonic; any person suffering from Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Croup and all Bronchial or Lung Trouble, Chronic Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Insomnia, Loss of Weight and all wasting diseases; any person who has sought relief in any other remedy or Cod Liver Oil preparation, and failed to find it, cut out the certificate printed herewith, fill out the blank lines, present it at the store on the dates given, and get a bottle of this wonderful preparation, FERROL, Free.

It was necessary for me to purchase a large quantity in order to have the privilege of making this free distribution, and the responsibility assumed by me in this matter, I am positive will be appreciated by the public, and the immense sales that are sure to follow will more than compensate me for the expenditure involved.

There is absolutely no sentiment in this endorsement of FERROL. It is merely a business recognition of a preparation that possesses positive merit, and a keen desire on the part of a progressive concern to always supply the best goods at the lowest possible price.

THIS CERTIFICATE,

Properly filled out and signed, entitles the holder to one large sized bottle of FERROL (Cod Liver Oil, Iron and Phosphorus), if presented at FRED. L. HOOPER'S Drug Store, beginning April 30, from 9 a.m. until samples are exhausted.

Name of Patient,

Address,

Disease,

The bearer of this certificate hereby solemnly agrees to give this medicine a thorough and faithful trial and to report to the druggist named above, within three weeks, the improved condition of his health that is almost absolutely certain to follow.

No other distribution will be made, and it will be necessary for you to come early in order to be sure of securing a large size bottle of FERROL ABSOLUTELY FREE

REMEMBER, only ONE bottle will be given to each family. Tell your friends of this Wonderful Offer for fear they will not see this advertisement.

FRED. L. HOOPER

WISE AND OTHERWISE.

A lawyer was talking about Uncle Root's legal talent. One day he was cross-examining a young woman.

"How old are you?" he said.

The young woman hesitated.

"Don't hesitate," said Mr. Root. "The longer you hesitate the older you'll grow."

"Perfectly Trustworthy," is the character of Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup. It can be used with the utmost confidence that it will do what is claimed for it. Its cures are effects, as the use of it will clearly demonstrate and can be relied upon to drive a cold out of the system more effectively than any other medicine. Try it and be convinced that it is what it is claimed to be.

Si Perkins—Here's an advertisement about "Pitfalls of a Great City—How to Avoid Them."

Rube Medders—Yeh! Deacon Kornto sent 'em 25 cents for it and——

Si Perkins—Jimmy crickets! It must be scandalous readin'.

Rube Medders—It was so. It jest said, "Don't leave the farm."

It Has Many Offices.—Before the German soldier starts on a long march he rubs his feet with tallow, for his first care is to keep his feet in good condition. If he knew that Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil would be of much better service he would throw away his tallow and pack a few bottles of the Oil in his knapsack. There is nothing like it.

"It's this way," explained the client. "The fence runs between Brown's place and mine. He claims that I encroach on his land, and I insist that he is trespassing on mine. Now, what would you do if you were in my place?"

"If I were in your place," replied the lawyer, "I'd go over and give Brown a cigar, have a drink with him, and settle the controversy in ten minutes. But as things stand, I advise you to sue him by all means. Let no arrogant domineering, insolent pirate like Brown trample on your sacred rights! Assert your manhood and courage. I need the money."

"Thos. Sabin, of Eglinton, says, "I have removed ten corns from my feet with Holloway's Corn Cure." Reader, go thou and do likewise.

Mabel—Do you believe, Reggie, that love is blind?

Reggie—Well-er it won't do any harm to turn down the light a bit, anyway.

Great Things From Little Causes Grow.—It takes very little to derange the stomach. The cause may be slight, a cold, something eaten or drunk, anxiety, worry, or some other simple cause may have most serious consequences. Many a chronically debilitated constitution to-day owes its destruction to simple causes not dealt with in time. Keep the digestive apparatus in healthy condition and all will be well. Parmelee's Vegetable Pills are better than any other for the purpose.

Mrs. Harix—They've got a picture of our new preacher in the Springtown Banner this week.

Mr. Harix—You don't say! What's he look like?

Mrs. Harix—He looks as if he'd just swallowed a lemon.

A Pleasant Medicine.—There are some pills which have no other purpose evidently than to beget pain and internal disturbances in the patient, adding to his troubles and perplexities rather than diminishing them. One might as well swallow some corrosive material. Parmelee's Vegetable Pills have not this disagreeable and injurious property. They are easy to take, are quite unpleasant to the taste, and their action is mild and soothing. A trial of them will prove this. They offer peace to the dyspeptic.

BASEBALL MEETING.

The prospects for a little sport in the baseball line are extra good this spring. A large number of enthusiasts are putting in an appearance at practice each evening and some very promising new blood is coming to light. A meeting will be held on Monday evening next at 8 o'clock in the Public Library, when a large attendance is requested. Officers will be elected and general business transacted. There is no reason why not every why Napanee should not have a first-class amateur baseball team. Remember the date and place of meeting, and help the sport along by your presence.

FRATERNAL RESOLUTION.

To Mr. Levi Thompson and family.

We, the officers and members of L.O.L. No. 338, Napanee, hereby tender you our heartfelt sympathy in your sad bereavement, in the death of William Thompson, a beloved member of your family and a respected member of our association. You will miss him in the home, while we will miss him in our lodge room. While we mourn for the departed, let us not do so as these without hope, but having faith in the promise of Him who doeth all things well, that we shall meet in the great family of God in that grand lodge above, where sorrow is never known and where peace and harmony reign forever. Signed on behalf of the lodge,

John Jennings, Sec.
J. H. Hartwick, Master.

IMPORTANT EVENT.

The corner stone of the new Eastern Methodist church will be laid on Thursday, 3rd May, at 10 o'clock, by Mr. Harvey Warner, of Napanee. At the close of the ceremony dinner will be served in the Town Hall by the Ladies' Aid Society.

A bazaar for the sale of fancy and useful articles will be held on Thursday and Friday, 3rd and 4th May, in the Town Hall, for the benefit of the Building Fund.

The Ladies' Aid will increase the interest of these bazaar by an entertainment on Friday evening. An interesting programme has been prepared and the mite-boxes will be opened during the entertainment. The mite-box scheme has formed an attractive feature in the ladies' financial plan

"FABIO ROMANI."

The managers of "Fabio Romani," the dramatic version of Marie Corelli's "The Vendetta," have spared neither time nor money to make the present production of this sterling success a suitable one from every point of view. The scenic environment is the most elaborate that has ever been employed in the production of this favorite play, and the acting contingent is the best that could be secured, containing, as it does, some of the foremost artists on the American stage. That it has been possible to secure such an important array of actors has been made possible only on account of the season of the year. That everybody who has had the good fortune to witness this absorbing and highly interesting play will do so goes without saying, and those who have not yet had the chance to enjoy the ineffable charm of "Fabio Romani" should not let this opportunity pass to see one of the greatest and most intensely interesting plays ever shown. "Fabio Romani" will be seen at the Bijou Opera House, Monday evening, 30th April. Prices, 25, 35 and 50 cts.

CAUGHT COLD WHILE HUNTING A BURGLAR.

Mr. Wm. Thos. Lanergan, provincial Constable at Chapleau, Ontario, says, "I caught a severe cold while hunting for a burglar in the forest swamp last fall. Hearing of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, I tried it, and after using two small bottles, was completely cured." This remedy is intended especially for coughs and colds. It will loosen and relieve a severe cold in less time than by any other treatment and is a favorite wherever its superior excellance has become known. For sale at The Red Cross Drug Store. 14d

THE NEW EASTERN CHURCH.

Peculiar interest always centres in the laying of the corner-stone of a new church or public building. The function marks an epoch in the development of a city or town and speaks of religious or national progress. The stone to be laid next Thursday morning will be no exception to the rule. The trustees of the Eastern church have made a forward step which must commend itself to the approbation of our citizens at large. Napanee has always been noted for its great natural beauty and for its disposition to be in the van in social and moral progress.

Our Collegiate Institute occupies an honored place in the list of the educational institutions of the Province. Our Public Library, standing at the entrance to the Harvey Warner Park, is a boon to the town which is distinctly appreciated, while the future holds in prospect other public buildings which we propose to build and not crowd before the present high standard of excellence. The churches as a whole are convenient and for the most part beautiful in their appointments so that measurably we are prepared for the erection of the magnificent edifice which is to stand on the corner of John and Bridge streets, and we would express the hope that its erection will be without accident or loss to those engaged in it.

SAN FRANCISCO CALAMITY.

Napanee and vicinity has sent out its sons and daughters to every part of America, and not a few are to be found in California, in San Francisco and adjacent towns and cities. It is no surprising that considerable anxiety has been manifested here as to the welfare of absent friends since the earthquake and fire. Telegrams have been received from some. Miss Nettie daughter of Mr. H. W. Huff, sent word on Friday that she was safe, although a resident of the doomed city. Mr. Frank Chalmers was also relieved to learn that his mother and two sisters, residing in San Francisco, had escaped unhurt. Mr. and Mrs. Ogden Hinch were in the city at the time of the disaster. Mr. John D. Garrison and Mr. and Mrs. John B. Shaw, formr Napanee residents, are residents of the city. Dr. W. E. Price, son of M. A. V. Price, is a resident of Oakland. Miss Lizzie Hinch resides in San Jose, where the family was badly wrecked. Mr. Will. S. Hinch, son of Mr. Geo. S. Hinch, lives in Fresno, which was greatly damaged by the shock. Mr. Percy Mills, L. Hall has three cousins, and Mr. C. E. Hillman an uncle and aunt living in San Francisco.

A GREAT SUCCESS

The fifth elocutionary contest, held on April 19th, in the Town Hall, was the closest one so far and showed marked improvement in every way. Mr. D. B. Wilson was chairman. The judges were Messrs A. C. Baker, W. J. Shannon, W. J. Campbell, Dr. C. H. Wartman presented the medal to the winner, Miss Mabel Mills. The other contestants were Miss Lillian Legge, Mr. H. Baughan, Miss Ida Handsom, Miss Marguerite Hall, all doing exceptionally well. The musical part of the evening's programme was as follows: Organ solo, Miss Jean Johnston; piano duet, Miss Hall and Master Bruce Johnston; vocal solo, Miss Pearl Grimo; vocal quartette, Messrs. Baughan, Black, Stacey and Wager; piano duet, Misses Marjorie Baughan and Helen Trimble; vocal solo, Miss Helen Williams; vocal quartette, Misses Hall and Smith, and Messrs. Baughan and Stacey. Before closing the chairman announced that a contest of even greater interest would take place in a few weeks, i.e., the winners of the silver medals (five) competing for a gold one.
